Cabinet Ponders Proposal

Rhodesia Is Ready To Talk, Talk, Talk

SALISBURY (Reuters)—The Rhodesian cabinet reached no decision in a meeting Wednesday on the issue of a unilateral declaration of independence for Rhodesia, Prime Minister Smith said Wednesday night.

Speaking in a television interview, he also said his government still is considering a proposal Tuesday night by British Prime Minister Wilson for a Commonwealth mission on the critical issue of independence for the white-ruled African colony.

Smith said he would be glad to welcome Australian Premier Sir Robert Menzies, who has been mentioned as a member of such a mission, to discussions in Salisbury.

IMPORTANT DECISION

The Rhodesian cabinet would "talk and talk and talk" before coming to "the most important decision of their lifetimes," Smith said.

But he reiterated he could think of no better time than the present for Rhodesia to take its independence.

MAKES THREAT

Smith's minority - white government of this British colony has threatened to declare unilateral independence now Rhodesia has refused to grant it on Rhodesia's terms.

Britain has insisted any independent Rhodesian government must give more representation to the country's majority 4,000,000 Negroes.

MINDS UNCHANGED

Smith said he does not think the Rhodesian people have changed their support for a unilateral declaration of independence.

He said if he had any doubts, he would not hesitate to ask for another mandate from the electorate before going ahead.

Tuesday night in a radio-TV speech, Wilson proposed the Commonwealth initiative to break the independence deadlock.

Wise Proposal

Pearson Hails Mission

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson Wednesday acclaimed as "a wise and imaginative proposal" a suggestion of Prime Minister Wilson of Britain that a mission of Commonwealth leaders attempt to solve the problem of independence for Rhodesia.

Mr. Pearson said: "I have wired back that I thought this was a wise and imaginative proposal and we would give it our full support and complete approval. We will do anything we can to help in this matter."

POSTPONEMENT

"I hope that a mission of this kind, if it could be sent and received by the Rhodesian government, might through consultation postpone—if not prevent—a step which I think would be disastrous for Rhodesia."

Asked whether he would be a member of the mission, Mr. Pearson said:

"I have no reason to believe I would be asked to take part in it, but if I were asked to take part and it was considered important that I should be a member of the mission, well of course I would go."

NOT EXPECTED

"But I don't expect that will happen. I haven't heard yet about the composition of the mission."

Sources in London said Mr. Wilson suggested to Commonwealth leaders four prime ministers be chosen—those from Australia, Ceylon, Nigeria and Zambia.

Doctor Bags Elusive Bobo

A doctor with a laundry bag and sheet ended a freedom binge by Bobo, the spider monkey, early today. Bobo was seen entering a room in Royal Jubilee after midnight, and the door was slammed shut behind him.

An intern, Dr. H. J. Helmlich, followed and muffled any resistance with the cloth.

Rush-Hour Pile-Up Snarls Montreal Traffic

Eight cars were damaged and another crushed when large van careened down steep hill into main Mont-

Diefenbaker:

'Liberals Feared Deal Disclosure'

By BON COLLISTER

LETHBRIDGE, Alta.—Opposition leader John Diefenbaker charged Wednesday that the Liberals called an election because they were afraid of disclosures now being made about a Liberal-Creditiste power deal back in April, 1963.

The disclosures, Mr. Diefenbaker said, are new evidence of the "famine in integrity" around the government.

In the controversial deal, six Creditistes reportedly offered to guarantee support for the Liberals, who had come out of the election without a majority.

This forced the hand of John Diefenbaker, then prime minister, who was considering holding on as a minority leader and daring the other parties to defeat him.

The details of the deal are contained in a book authored by former Social Credit whip Guy Marcoux.

The book is sure to be valuable new ammunition for Mr. Diefenbaker as he tries to turf (Continued on Page 2)

Tory Heartland Cheers Pearson

By FRASER KELLY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

ORILLIA—Prime Minister Pearson stormed this bastion of Ontario Toryland with the largest, most enthusiastic political rally of his campaign Wednesday night.

Marcoux and pamphlet

Liberal organizers were surprised and exuberant as about 2,500 supporters jammed the city's community centre in what had been considered a solid Conservative preserve.

According to the building superintendent only Don Messer has withdrawn Mr. Pearson in the arena and they only beat him by about 300.

Just as he had done a few hours before in Guelph Mr. Pearson used the platform in Union Jack country to develop and refine the national unity theme he is carrying across the nation.

He told both audiences of being on stage in Quebec City the night before and singing O Canada in English while (Continued on Page 2)

No Finger on Trigger—But...

Nuclear Say Demanded By Germany

LONDON (UPI)—West Germany has told the Allies bluntly it wants a voice in decisions on when and what types of nuclear weapons should be used and the targets against which they should be directed.

The official English language overseas organ of the ruling Christian Democratic Party reaching here said Bonn "insists" on nuclear co-determination within the alliance.

It spelled out, moreover, the details of terms for German participation in nuclear sharing.

"Bonn wants to be included in the planning of targets, determining target priorities, deciding when atomic weapons will be used as well as the strength and type of atomic weapons at the disposal of the alliance," the CDU organ stated.

The German demands for nuclear sharing came during a revived Anglo-American debate about the controversial issue with British backing away from its earlier projected inter-allied nuclear force.

In talks with U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk in Washington earlier this week, British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart urged a nuclear non-proliferation agreement with Russia as the top priority.

NUCLEAR CONSULTATION

He made it clear Britain does not want to endanger prospects for possible agreements with Russia by promoting either the American-proposed manned nuclear surface fleet or the earlier British plan for an Atlantic nuclear force. Britain now favors instead a nuclear consultative committee within NATO with German participation.

PSYCHOLOGICAL

Meanwhile, West Germany, in setting out its terms for nuclear co-determination in the clearest language yet, said the projected nuclear atom committee has mainly "tactical, psychological meaning."

Bonn does not want a finger on the nuclear trigger, the CDU said, but it wants certainty "that the exchange of blows will not be initially confined solely to German soil, that the attacking enemy will not be fought only on the front lines and that the operative plans of defence are not geared only to a long phase of conventional resistance."

Fishing Rights

Indians Ambush Game Protectors

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP)—More than 40 Indians and a dozen state fish and game protectors tangled Wednesday in a rock-throwing, flat-swinging, club-wielding melee on the banks of the Nisqually River east of here.

The affray, second of its kind in less than a week, stemmed from a state court order prohibiting the Indians from net-fishing off their reservation.

The Indians maintain an ancient treaty with the United States permits them to fish in their usual fishing grounds, even though they are off their reservation.

They stoned the fish and game protectors and succeeded in knocking one of them out of his boat into the river. More than half a dozen other fish and game protectors suffered minor cuts and bruises.

Six Indians were arrested during the melee, brought to jail here, booked, and released on $100 bond each.

Later, two Indian fishermen and a boy were arrested and taken to jail.

Clarence Pratt, a spokesman for the state game department, said the first skirmish was touched off when two Indians put a net into the river as a protest against the court injunction.

Economic Dictatorship

'Canadians Are Fed Up'

YORKTON, Sask. (CP)—New federal election campaign that they never had it so good.

"This is the soft - sell approach—affluence for everybody—but it depends who you are and where you sit in our society."

Mr. Douglas said it is not so good if "you're sitting with the 20 per cent in poverty in Canada or with the other 30 per cent suffering privation."

'CONTROL OLD PARTIES' In the economic dictatorship, he said, those who own and control Canada's economy also control "the old-line parties."

"The glory may be in Ottawa but the power is in Bay Street in Toronto and Jesse James Street in Montreal. They have made the old-line parties their political chore-boys."

Deck Cracked. 30 Aboard

Tanker Stricken In Atlantic Storm

LONDON (AP)—A U.S. navy rescue vessel apparently was the U.S. coastguard cutter Northwind, located about 10 miles from the Orion.

The 13,074-ton Orion, with 30 men aboard, had called for urgent assistance after cracking a main deck and shipping water amid waves 20 to 30 feet high.

A navy spokesman said a C-130 transport sighted the Orion about 370 miles south of Iceland. Winds in the area were blowing up to 50 knots.

PLANES EXPECTED

A U.S. Air Force air-sea rescue plane and a Royal Air Force Shackleton were expected on the scene.

Both the air-sea rescue planes could drop lifeboats. But their main function would be to guide in ships to the Orion's aid.

The navy said the nearest rescue vessel apparently was the U.S. coastguard cutter Northwind, located about 10 miles from the Orion.

Beer Foes Uncork New Talks

VANCOUVER (CP)—A small start toward ending a beer drought in British Columbia was made Wednesday.

Representatives of five breweries and of striking industry workers met separately with a provincial government conciliation officer. Neither side would comment on the talks except to say more discussions would be held today.

Ex-Socred Fears for Life

QUEBEC (CP)—Dr. Guy Marcoux, who says he had to get mixed up with the underworld to dig up information for a booklet he published Wednesday, fears for his life and has asked for police protection.

"I am not able to ensure my security nor that of my family," the former Social Credit member of Parliament said in a written plea for protection sent to Claude Wagner, Quebec justice minister.

At a press conference, Dr. Marcoux said he had been under pressure not to publish the booklet, his version of the circumstances which led six Social Credit members to grant their support to the Liberal party following the 1963 election. (See Page 3B.)

'Nothing to Do with Bribe' Pickersgill Tells Pearson

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson issued here Wednesday night the following statement in connection with a pamphlet by Dr. Guy Marcoux:

"I have spoken to Mr. (Transport Minister) Pickersgill and he has assured me that he had nothing to do—directly or indirectly—with any offer of a bribe to any member of Parliament or to anyone else on the matters referred to in the reports on Dr. Marcoux's book."

Rhodesia Ready to Talk

would be an act of rebellion and the cabinet meeting that the Rhodesian officials said after

On his return to Salisbury Tuesday after the London talks, Smith told reporters it was an even bet that this British colony, internally self-governing, would be independent by Christmas.

"The sooner a decision is made the better," he said.

Meanwhile, the Rhodesian constitutional association, a political group opposed to the Smith government, organized a public-opinion poll designed to show that "there is a wide range of public opinion against UDI (unilateral declaration of independence) in the present circumstances."

The group inserted advertisements in Rhodesia's two daily newspapers, asking readers to indicate their views on a ballot form.

Informed observers here believed the Smith government will go ahead with a unilateral independence declaration, now that Britain has refused to soften its stand, but that no date will be set for an actual changeover. One official source said it might be delayed "for a very long time."

out the government on the scandal issue.

The Liberals, he said, were afraid of what would come out in the case of Molese Darabauer, who faces fraud and arson charges in Quebec and is credited with "making contacts" in a Liberal-Creditiste deal.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the disclosures show that the government, even before it was born, was "honeycombed with this conspiratorial attitude."

Since that time, he had learned about "some of the artifices and deception that were used to secure the signatures of the six Creditistes."

It was this kind of Liberal philosophy that finally culminated in wrongdoing in high places.

Asked if he expected Prime Minister Pearson to investigate Marcoux's charges, he replied: "I imagine that Mr. Pearson would look at that campaign college document."

"This document will afford him a basis for continued silence."

Facing Up to Problem Key to Smoother Nerves

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: My 28-year-old daughter is not feeling well. She has a responsible position with a large concern but about a year ago there was a change in management and since then she has become increasingly nervous.

Our family doctor gave her a checkup and said it was just a case of nerves and she would have to conquer the problem herself. He suggested no medication except aspirin.

Yesterday morning at breakfast she rested her elbow on the table and her whole arm shook. I commented on it. She told me this condition improves as the day goes on.

Should she consult another doctor or visit one of the very good clinics in our vicinity? — MRS. M.N.

I've said quite a lot about mental health, because there is too little understanding of the problems involved. After all, look how long it took us to understand smallpox — or the value of vaccination, or typhoid, and the need for pure water. And others.

In discussing mental health, I don't want to give the impression that there's some magic method by which everybody can be made permanently comfortable. Even if that were possible, it wouldn't be good for us. We shouldn't be comfortable or relaxed if we are confronted with problems that need to be solved. We should be alert (but not panicky) and aware of dangers. If they exist. Every sane person tenses up in the face of danger. It's stupid not to.

SCARED

Your daughter, since the new management came in, obviously is scared. But she also has kept her job. Maybe she has a reason to be nervous over the change, and maybe not. How would I know? But she is old enough to have good sense, and smart enough to have achieved the responsible position which she now holds.

If I were you, I'd leave the whole thing to her. She sounds to me like a woman who may well be tense, because she has to face up to the problem of figuring out just what the new management wants her to do, and I rather have a hunch that she will do so.

LET HER WORRY

Don't confuse explainable nerves with unexplainable ones. In your particular case, Mrs. M.N., you have a smart, not to say brilliant, daughter, with business worries on her mind. Let her worry, if she needs to. Tell her that if she gets demotivated or fired or whatnot, she'll still find another job. What will be, will be. Don't try to turn her business problems into medical, or psychiatric ones.

Dear Dr. Molner: When anyone has a thorough checkup, is a proctoscopic examination included? I have read that many cancers of the colon can be detected by this type of examination. — MRS. L.D.

I am, thoroughly convinced that the minutes required for a proctoscopic examination are well worth the time and effort. Harmful conditions in the colon other than cancer can also be detected.

... EDUCATION FIRST. IF UNIVERSITY CAN BE FREE FOR ALL ABLE STUDENTS IN BRITAIN, SO CAN IT BE HERE.

I have seen the BENEFITS of free university education in other countries, both capitalist and socialist... There are complaints... but these come from a few of the well-to-do whose youngsters have not reached the standard demanded for admission.

... MAKE SOCIETY WORTHY OF OUR TEACHERS. BACK UP OUR TEACHERS BY PUTTING THEIR BEST PRODUCTS IN CHARGE OF AFFAIRS...

No wonder many students lack purpose and drive when they see the way popular literature, films, radio, and TV urge them to be sex-conscious, grasping, unscrupulous. The NDP aims to transform society, so that we produce goods primarily for use and not just for the profit to be made by our employers; so that integrity and knowledge are valued more than slickness and money.

'Victory by February' Predicted In Viet Nam

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Western diplomatic sources predicted Wednesday that the American military build-up in Viet Nam will force the communists to seek peace by next February or March.

This estimate came from ranking delegates as the Vietnamese problem drew varying comments from almost everyone taking part in the General Assembly's annual policy debate.

HEAVY ATTACK

The United States was under heavy attack from communist and some other delegations, while its efforts to end the Vietnamese war was staunchly supported by others.

Outside the United Nations, South Viet Nam's U.N. observer, Ambassador Nguyen Duy Lien, said at a news conference that the military situation was greatly improved in his country and he believed it would lead in time to an end of the conflict.

CONFIDENCE SHATTERED

He said he saw no sign now that the communists are willing to negotiate a peace. He added, however, that their confidence of victory had been shattered.

"I don't think the Hanoi regime can ask the people of the north to continue to sacrifice themselves without hope," he said.

Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman of neighboring Thailand said in a speech at the Overseas Press Club that victory for South Viet Nam was possible "in the not too distant future."

"If we are determined enough, we can reach a position of co-existence in Asia," Khoman added.

Big Operation Held 'Success'

AN KHE, South Viet Nam (AP)—The biggest U.S.-South Vietnamese operation of the war came to a virtual end in South Viet Nam's central highlands Wednesday and the American commander declared it a success.

The offensive, launched Sunday, was more a measure of pacification than an attempt to kill large numbers of Viet Cong guerrillas, said Maj. Gen. Harry Kinnard.

He said a civil government will move into the scene of the operation, the Suai Ca Valley. Thirty-four Viet Cong were reported killed and 93 others captured in the four-day operation 280 miles northeast of Saigon.

But reports from captured Viet Cong indicated the bulk of the Communist forces, tipped to the offensive, pulled out Saturday.

Thousands of U.S. Flying Horsemen of the 1st Cavalry (Airmobile) Division joined South Vietnamese army and marine units in the operation.

Major Program

Immigration Laws Due For Revision

VANCOUVER (CP)—A seven-point plan of revision of immigration regulations was presented by Immigration Minister Nicholson here Wednesday.

Mr. Nicholson told a German-American club the changes likely to be contained in a white paper now being prepared for presentation to parliament include:

- Admission of visitors as distinguished from landed immigrants.
- More effective control over criminal and other undesirable elements seeking to infiltrate Canada.

'Sell Scotland' Plan Afoot

EDINBURGH (Reuters)—A "sell Scotland" mission to Canada by a group of Scottish businessmen will take place next June and July, the Scottish Chamber of Commerce has announced here.

- Relaxation of medical prohibitions, particularly against certain types of insanity and epilepsy.
- Adequate safeguards against real or imagined "abuses."
- Effective appeal avenues without a weakening of Canada's right to protect itself against undesirable aliens.
- Modernization of refugee policies in co-operation with other countries and international agencies.
- Provision of an adequate legal basis for a strong and long-range immigration policy, closely co-ordinated with Canada's other national development projects.

Mr. Nicholson, Liberal candidate in Vancouver Centre in the Nov. 8 federal election, said the revised program will require greater emphasis on obtaining immigrants who are schooled, trained and adaptable.

Killer-Drug Maker Shoots Himself

VOGHERA, Italy (UPI)—The maker of the drug linked to the death of eight women mental patients killed himself Wednesday while health ministry officials were inspecting his plant, police said.

They said Dr. Roberto Dazzini, 41, had been quietly answering the inspectors' questions in his laboratory at nearby Casteggio. Suddenly he left the room, went into an adjoining office and shot himself through the heart with a shotgun.

COLLAPSED

He slumped back into the room, bleeding profusely, and collapsed into his brother's arms. He died shortly after an ambulance rushed him to a hospital.

The inspectors were investigating the death of eight women at the Bergamo mental hospital. The women, aged 65 to 85, died Saturday, hours after being given injections of a heart-supporting drug named cardiobaina, which is made by Dr. Dazzini's firm.

NINE YEARS OLD
Two days ago Dazzini said cardiobaina is now produced only for oral use. He said production of vials for injections was discontinued in 1956—thus indicating that the drug used at the Bergamo hospital must be at least nine years old.

Police said Dazzini did not leave any suicide note. Relatives said he apparently had remained calm during the investigation. They believed his suicide was the result of a sudden nervous breakdown.

Battle Against Underworld

Anti-Crime Fight Underway

QUEBEC CITY (UPI)—An anti-crime committee set up to fight organized vice in Quebec held its first meeting here Wednesday.

The co-ordinating committee had been formed to assist Justice Minister Claude Wagner in his battle against the underworld.

Representatives of Montreal police, Quebec Provincial Police, Fire Underwriters Investigation Bureau, Crown attorneys, RCMP and a member of the FBI, attended today's meetings.

Police investigation into fraudulent bankruptcies and arson has started what Wagner termed "panic in the underworld."

Four bodies have been found by police in what they believe were a series of murders to prevent gangland informers from talking.

"Criminals have their co-ordinating committee, we have ours," Wagner told newsmen. "In our active battle against syndicated crime I never saw a more perfect collaboration between all the services concerned."

On the search for buried bodies, Wagner said he believed three more would be found.

"A certain number of people tried to leave the country when this investigation started but they were prevented from doing so," he said. "All their movements were watched by the police."

"As Premier Lesage already said, no political considerations or others can stop judicial organs in their fight against crime. Not only arsonists, but crime as a whole," Wagner warned.

WASHINGTON — President Johnson, spending more time out of bed, moved about "with less pain and less strain." But official business was kept to a minimum.

More Uncertainty

SOME ASSURANCE may be taken from Prime Minister Pearson's word to workers in shipyards at Levis, Quebec, that a re-elected Liberal government would not abandon the shipbuilding subsidy it peremptorily suspended at the beginning of last February. No less welcome, though no more illuminating as to its exact eventual meaning, is his promise of a national shipbuilding plan "that will take care of all regional interests."

But it is amazing and disappointing that Mr. Pearson after all this time, and when he is seeking votes, cannot or does not choose to be more specific.

He says that his government has not dropped the subsidy, but is re-examining it, looking for a new kind. He says that he is quite aware that the uncertainty about government policy is damaging the shipbuilding industry. He says that an effort will be made to correct this situation "as quickly as possible," with decisions very shortly after the election.

The fact is of course that the shipbuilders have been put at a great disadvantage for more than eight months now since the subsidy, initiated by the Diefenbaker government in 1961 to restore and maintain the health of an important part of the Canadian economy, was suspended pending a study by a federal committee. More than two months ago the explanation was that this committee—surely one of the slowest-moving on record—still required "a few more weeks" before handing its recommendations to the minister of transport.

A few weeks, nine of them, have gone by. In these circumstances, the phrase "as quickly as possible" has the hollow ring of mockery. Mr. Pearson's boast of having spent $40 million last year on the subsidy, "greater than it's ever been," rubs in the lack of it this year. And the Liberal government, at this late time, offers Canada not a firm plan but only a vague image of what may come if it continues in power. For the shipbuilders, for the workers, for the communities around them, this is a most inappropriate continuation of a protracted, economically disruptive guessing-game.

Steps for Peace

SOME statements made by men of prominence are apt to be taken by themselves and given a connotation outside their context and thus in a wider sense become misleading. Such for example was the opening remark of Dr. Linus Pauling before a local audience last week that "all governments are immoral."

This could be applied in too ready a fashion to foster disrespect of governments per se and thus of authority in general, a tendency prone to be too prevalent for comfort apart altogether from the theme of the address given by this noted American physicist and Nobel prize winner—that of the quest for universal peace.

All governments are scarcely to be indicted as lacking in morality for instance simply because they have been unable to make the United Nations the competent instrument hoped for in settling international disputes and solving all problems without recourse by any nation to the use of force. If they are then mankind as a whole must be equally arraigned, for people in their private lives have not yet managed to live in complete harmony with one another.

Dr. Pauling did of course make the reservation that in his view governments are immoral because there is no effective international law to bind nations, but even so the assertion is too sweeping. Some governments are endeavoring to use the utmost of their influence—Canada must be counted as one—to bring that desired situation about. It is much easier said than done, however.

His further statement, also, that "law is an effort to put the principles of ethics and morality into practical operation," offsets his general indictment in this respect, for such laws that do exist, even if the powers of the UN's International Court of Justice are limited and do not have compulsive authority, are an indication that nations do attempt to move towards the morality of ethical operation.

In spite of the failings he finds in governments Dr. Pauling had an optimistic note to voice during his visit here, however. He believes that nuclear war will never break out, that a world without war in fact is a certainty in the future, and that there is a steady trend towards the understanding of problems that plague the paths of peace.

What is required is the realization of all nations that disputes must be settled by negotiation and political settlement instead of by military arms. Effective world law will yet come, he thinks, and all peoples will gladly echo his hopes in this direction.

Not Good Enough

THE royal commission appointed by Ontario to inquire into the stock exchange trading in the shares of Windfall Oils and Mines in the summer of 1964, has produced a report that has caused criminal charges to be laid against the president of that company and his wife, as well as the former director of the Ontario Securities Commission.

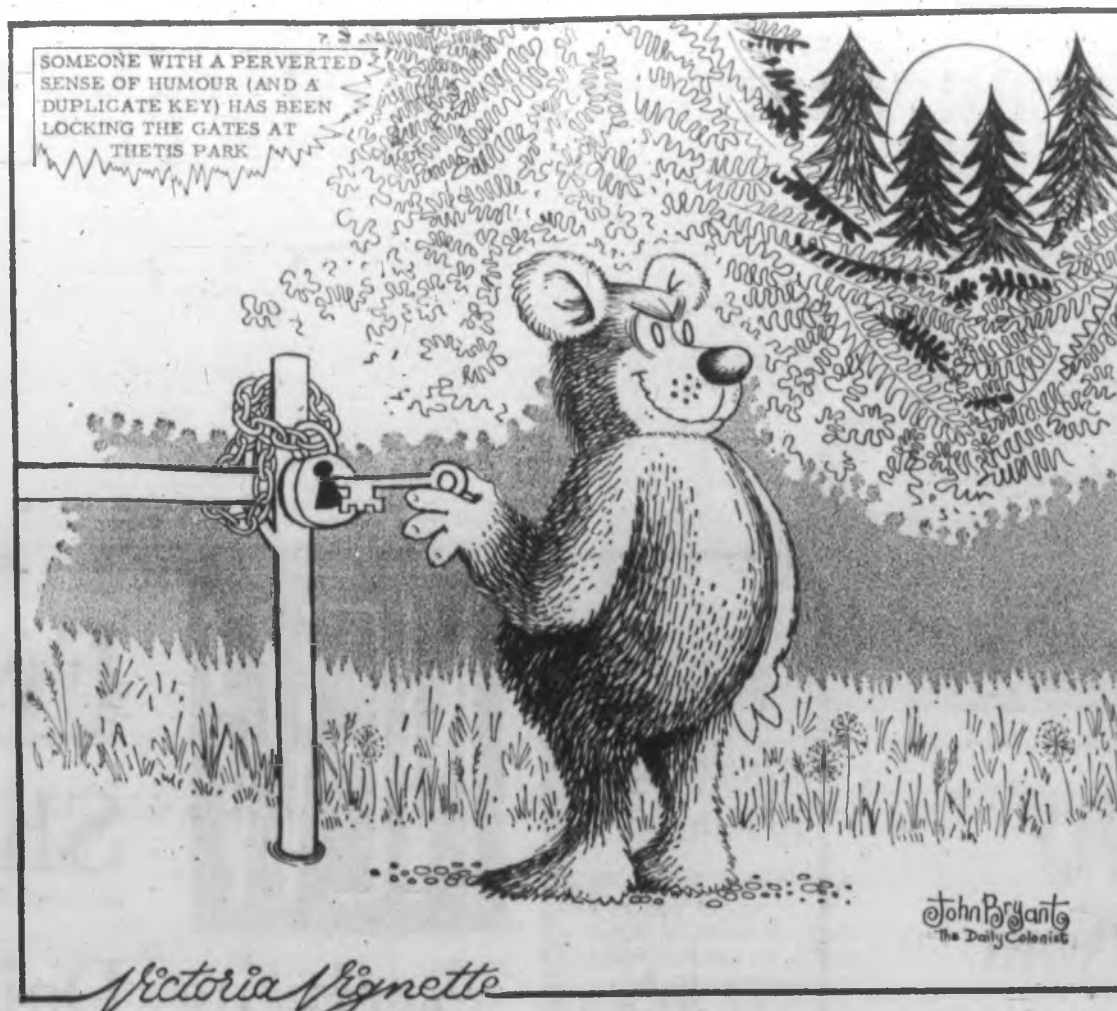

While the "laying of the blame" was no doubt one of the main reasons why the royal commission was appointed, probably the most important phase of the report is in the suggestions it makes as a preventive against further stock manipulations of this type.

One of these is that in future there should be two distinct classes of persons dealing professionally in securities. There should be the investment dealer who would buy and sell stocks for his clients purely on a commission basis, and there should be the other class of broker who would deal in shares on his own account and not be dealing directly with the investing public.

The royal commission report found that more than 30 per cent of the buy and sell orders for Windfall during its hectic spree were placed by brokers on their own or their firms' accounts.

It is hardly surprising therefore Mr. Justice Kelly made his famous comment that the Toronto Stock Exchange was being used as "a private gaming club for its members."

Not only the Ontario Securities Commission but the stock exchange too should not require further prompting to put their respective houses in order. The present system is obviously not good enough, and the Toronto Stock Exchange for all its efforts to throw responsibility on the Ontario Securities Commission for guidance, cannot escape blame.

Economy To Be Overhauled

Upheaval in the Soviet Union

By ISAAC DEUTSCHER
(First of Two Articles)

THE Soviet Union has just become the scene of gigantic economic and administrative upheaval. The party's central committee at its last session decided to undo and obliterate most of the Khrushchev reforms of the 1950s.

The whole structure of the Soviet economy is to be overhauled; and Alexei Kossygin, the Soviet prime minister, has made it clear that it must take two or three years before the resulting disarray is brought under control. The overhauling purpose of the changes is to reinvest in Moscow the strict central control over the economy that was once, before Mr. Khrushchev's days, exercised from the Kremlin.

It is over eight years now since Mr. Khrushchev struck a heavy blow against Moscow's bureaucracy, ordered the dismantling of scores of central economic ministries, and set up over 100 Sovnarkhozy, or economic councils, each of which was to manage the affairs of the 100 or so economic regions into which the country was divided. That reform was expected to break the rigidities of the Stalinist centralization, to do justice to local interests and to release local initiative and social energy.

In the years 1957 and 1958 Moscow witnessed the dispersal of its managerial aristocracy, whose members were leaving the capital to take up more modest posts in remote provinces. In vain did Molotov, Kaganovich, and Malenkov then try to rally the industrial "barons" and to preserve the central management of the economy. That was the heyday of de-Stalinization, and Mr. Khrushchev appeared to be the Soviet St. George slaying the dragon of bureaucracy.

Now, a year after Mr. Khrushchev's downfall, the dragon seems to be reviving and returning in triumph. The central economic ministries are being recreated, while the regional Sovnarkhozy are disbanded. A new migration of the bureaucracy is beginning; after a decade lasting eight years the barons of the industrial bureaucracy are about to return to the old seats of power in Moscow.

Meanwhile, there is an interregnum in the immense realm of Soviet industry; the Sovnarkhozy have lost power; the central ministries are not yet formed; and for the time being the Gosplan, the state planning commission, which has no experience in the practical management of industry, is supposed to exercise authority.

It is with some obvious misgivings that the Soviet prime minister has launched this counter-reform. Between the lines of his long and grim speech at the central committee he tried to reassure the country that what it is experiencing is not a relapse into the absurdities of the Stalinist bureaucracy.

While he insisted on the imperative need to restore central control of industry, he also dwelt on the need to restrict that control to a few selected but crucial areas, and to guarantee the rights and prerogatives of local managers and producers.

A special charter of the socialist factory is to rationalize the system of management on the spot and to protect it against arbitrary interference from the top. The new ministries, unlike their Stalinist predecessors, should avoid creating managers and workers for more quantitative production records. They should judge the work of any factory not so much by its indices of gross output, which often conceal inferior produce, but by the indices of actual sales which measure more accurately the socio-economic value of the output.

In this respect, Mr. Kossygin has intimated, Soviet industry should move even further away from the Stalin era than it has done so far.

The state, Mr. Kossygin has further announced, will gradually stop paying subsidies to all industrial concerns working at a deficit; henceforth every industrial unit should produce at a profit. This does not amount to the "rehabilitation of the profit motive" predicted by some Western Sovietologists in connection with the so-called Liberman debate.

For one thing, there has hardly been the need for any "rehabilitation of profit" — in each of the last two years, for instance, profits shown by Soviet industry amounted to something like 40 billion rubles, between 20 and 25 per cent of the national income. At present half of the national investment funds and other government expenditure is provided by industry's profits and half by indirect taxation. The proportions becoming to carry this policy a long step further. Henceforth industry is to ensure its continued expansion by means of self-financing, that is by drawing on its own profits. This implies a further reduction in indirect taxation and a relative increase in the population's purchasing power, which must find its counterpart in an increased volume of available consumer goods.

Throughout the decades of forced industrialization Stalin obtained most of the accumulation funds from heavy indirect taxation which served to keep down popular consumption, and to expand industries which were growing much faster than their own accumulation funds.

With the progress of industrialization, indirect taxation has played a decreasing part in the industrial profits have played an increasing part in financing further economic development. (Therein, to put it in technical Marxist terms, comes the transition from "primitive" to "normal" socialist accumulation.)

Mr. Kossygin has now announced that the government is going to carry this policy a long step further. Henceforth industry is to ensure its continued expansion by means of self-financing, that is by drawing on its own profits. This implies a further reduction in indirect taxation and a relative increase in the population's purchasing power, which must find its counterpart in an increased volume of available consumer goods.

In a state-owned economy, however, the question whether any industry can draw on its profits is often a matter of book-keeping, for the profitability of an industry may depend on the price it obtains for its produce; and it is the government that fixes the prices. A new pricing commission is now, therefore, to revise the entire price structure of the Soviet economy, with an eye to enabling producer industries to become financially self-supporting and consumer industries to expand faster than hitherto.

Washington Calling

A Perilous Imbalance

By MARQUIS CHILMAN

THE leading bankers of the world, who recently spent a week in Washington bravely braving a tide of cocktail parties, receptions and dinners, did nothing radical to alter the mysteries of the money market. But they heard plain words spoken by a banker with distinguished credentials in both private and public fields. And if they heard there was good reason why the complexity of those getting from the prosaic little island of the West should have been shaken.

In his 2½ years as president of the World Bank, George D. Woods has developed a dedicated conviction of the need to correct the perilous imbalance that finds three-fourths of the peoples of the earth desperately poor and one-fourth comparatively rich. What he told his board of governors in his annual address was that the rich have been getting richer while the poor have at best been standing still or getting poorer.

This is a long way for the chairman of the First Boston Corp., a conservative New York investment house, to have come in outward appearance he's a banker's banker of the new breed, looking much younger than his 64 years, concerned with philanthropy, cultural and civic endeavors. Yet it was in his early business career roaming the world in search of investment opportunities that he laid the base for his present role.

Out of 80 developing countries in the World Bank's membership, Woods said, one-third have attained recently a rate of 5 per cent or more in growth in real income which is the target of the United Nations Development Decade. But on the other hand, close to half the 80 countries, with more than 50 per cent of their population, income per head has risen by 1 per cent or less.

"Even to keep abreast of recent high rates of population growth," Woods said, "is not a negligible achievement but is far from sufficient. The average per capita income in this group is no more than $120 a year. At a 1 per cent growth rate income levels will hardly reach $170 a year by the end of this century. In some countries it will be much lower."

If the present trends are allowed to continue there will be no adequate improvement in living standards in vast areas of the globe for the balance of this century. The rich developed countries are simply not coming through with sufficient capital investment in the public or the private sector. And in many instances, Woods said, interest rates have been jacked up to such a point that a considerable share of the capital currently going into investment in must be used to service debts. The underdeveloped countries for their part have in too many instances failed to carry out reforms essential if loans and grants are to be used profitably.

While he pointed no finger there must have been red faces among the bankers who heard him. The goal of the Development Assistance Committee of the European Common Market and also of the United Nations is 1 per cent of a rich nation's income channeled into investment in the poor countries. With two or three exceptions the rich Western powers have failed to meet this standard.

Today In History

By The Canadian Press

William Penn, the Quaker founder of Pennsylvania, was born 321 years ago today—in 1644—in England. Perpetually persecuted for his religious beliefs, he converted a claim on the government in his father's estate to a land grant in America and founded a colony in 1682 for a haven for other people suffering for their beliefs. He spent only four years in Pennsylvania, on two visits, and left the colonists fairly free to run their own lives.

1806 — Battle of Jena was fought.

1927 — French aviators Dieudonne Cote and Joseph Le Brix flew from Africa to South America.

First World War: Fifty years ago today—in 1915—Pozarevatz was stormed as the Austro-German invasion of Serbia gathered momentum; on the Western Front, German troops reoccupied lost trenches near Auberv.

Second World War: Twenty-five years ago today—in 1940—London underwent its heaviest air raid to date, only one German aircraft being shot down for four RAF fighters lost; Russian engineers were reported to be building airfields in Bessarabia.

denally by 3 to 4 billion of American aid poured in at the end of the war, is a conspicuous example. The figure for 1963 was .77 per cent, for 1964 .94, and this while national income was rising at a fast clip. And Germany has also been conspicuous for setting high interest rates on loans and credit sales to the developing nations.

The external debt of the developing nations has gone from $10 billion in 1956 to $33 billion in 1964. Higher interest rates amortization and dividends paid out to foreign companies today offset half of the actual flow of capital to these nations and this offset is continuing at an accelerating rate. This was Woods' clincher:

"In short to go on doing what we are doing will, in the not too long run, amount on balance to doing nothing at all."

Last July in Paris before the ministerial meeting of the Development Assistance Committee, Woods noted that there had been a steady hardening of the terms of assistance to the developing countries from the United States—a shift to loans from grants and to loans repayable in dollars at higher interest rates. In that earlier warning Woods said that when the net contribution to the developing countries in all categories was balanced off against out-going payments it added up to only six-tenths of 1 per cent of national income. In banker's language the handwriting on the wall is plain — poverty equals breakdown, chaos, an invitation to Communism and banditry. That threat weighs heavily in the balance between those who grow richer and those who grow poorer.

Symphony Criticism

Our Readers' Views

THE ability to take constructive criticism is the hallmark of maturity and I, for one, believe that the Victoria audience has earned the right to be treated as adults rather than as adolescents.

Victoria has been a music loving city for a long time, and justly proud of the growth of our fine amateur orchestra. Now we can be equally proud that we have grown beyond the village concert stage and though we'll continue to be kind and to applaud effort when a performance does not quite "come off," we are fortunate indeed to have a music critic who can and does give an honest opinion.

As long as we were purely an amateur orchestra it was obligatory for any critic to take into account the age of the artist and his other activities but now that we are part professional, different standards of criticism are demanded.

It was quite apparent that Mr. Thomas had a very sound understanding of the wishes of the composers included in the last symphony concert and most gratifying that he should accord to his readers the compliment of intelligent listening. Mr. Anger is a professional musician and he would be the first to admit that the applause given to him was for effort rather than for a faithful interpretation of the work performed. This is no reflection upon the sweetness of tone produced by this young and most welcome addition to our orchestra.

It seems insulting to think that after all our years of hard work to develop a good orchestra, Mr. Graeme still feels it necessary to defend a performance upon the grounds of youth and extracurricular activities rather than on its musical worth.

We cannot have it both ways. Either we remain in the village concert class with its patronizing acceptance of a poor performance or we demand that our musical growth be acknowledged by honest criticism.

And so I say—Thank you for Mr. Thomas.

2056 Granville St.

Much to Enjoy

While every sincere musician welcomes informed criticism, I am very surprised that your critic, Mr. William Thomas, found virtually nothing to praise in the Sidney concert of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

Although I have heard most of the world's greatest orchestras on many occasions, I found much to enjoy and appreciate in our own symphony and I wonder if Mr. Thomas realizes how lucky Victoria is to have performers of this standard.

ROBIN WOOD,
Assistant Director of the Victoria School of Music,
Professor and Fellow of the Royal Academy of Music.

Historic Homes

In a recent editorial in The Colonist entitled "Question of Values" doubt was expressed as to whether it were advisable for the Greater Victoria Historic Buildings Foundation to try to save the family home of Emily Carr (207 Government Street) as it is presently doing, or to devote its efforts towards preserving the small cottage in James Bay where Emily Carr lived in later years.

The Historic Sites Committee of the University Women's Club believes that, of the two, the Carr home is of greater value as an historic relic. Not only is it the birthplace of the artist, but it is the setting of her book, "The House of Small" and members of her family lived there till the 1930s. In addition, it is a fine example of mid-Victorian domestic architecture.

The editorial queries whether there are any other privately owned homes in Victoria (excluding perhaps "Spencer Castle") which are worth preserving for their historical and architectural qualities. Besides the Carr residence, we believe that there are three houses which, eventually, should become historic monuments.

(1) The residence of Chief Trader John Tod, 2564 Heron Street. Built in 1851, this charming cottage is believed to be the oldest house still standing in Victoria.

(2) Craigflower Manor (Island Highway and Admirals Road). Built in 1856 by a subsidiary of the Hudson's Bay Co. It is gratifying to know that an agreement has been reached between federal and provincial governments for the purchase of the farm-house and its development as an historic museum.

(3) "Point Ellice House," the residence of Hon. Peter O'Reilly on Pleasant Street. Mr. O'Reilly, who was the first gold commissioner in the colony, took up his residence here in 1867. The original section of the house was built by John Work. It is a fine example of colonial architecture and the fact that it still contains the original furnishings makes it of unique interest.

Besides these three homes which are of special importance, there are other houses which, we believe, are of real historic interest. Most of these are over 100 years old and add much dignity and charm to the city streets. We think that these houses should be looked upon as a unique cultural asset, and that not one of them should be destroyed if there is any reasonable way of preventing it. Now, too often, the citizenry knows nothing of demolition plans till a heap of rubble tells the story. Owners should be encouraged to keep the buildings in good condition and, whenever possible, adapt them to modern needs. We would welcome some action at this time by the advisory board appointed to assist the provincial secretary in the administration of the "Archaeological and Historic Sites Protection Act." The board could perform a most useful service by listing the buildings of historic interest in the province and formulating a policy for their protection. Municipal authorities, private organizations and individuals need help and direction. ELLEN HART, Convenor, Historic Sites Committee, University Women's Club of Victoria.

Lonely People

As one of the older generation, I have been interested, and also somewhat puzzled, by the letters from people claiming to be lonely, and seeking kindred friendships.

Being unmarried, I suppose I am considered to be unqualified to pass judgment, although it is a quite absurd belief so many people seem to have that single people "get used" to being alone. They don't. The only difference, I think, is that the ex-overturned single person learns, much earlier, how to get out and make friends, and to fill up the blank spaces.

There is no better way to meet congenial people, and to cure loneliness, whether widowed, or single, than to go out and seek to bring happiness and comfort to lonely people, many of whom, one finds, are often in far less fortunate circumstances. By the "outgiving" of our time and affection, and the constant forgetting of one's own loneliness, suddenly our whole world changes, and new and delightful friends come, unbidden, into our circle!

In a city like Victoria there is no lack of opportunities of this kind. There are countless demands on the kindly folk who will visit hospitals, and nursing homes, and other places, and names can always be received from churches and fraternal organizations.

It is only by "giving" we "receive"—whether in friendship, or anything else! We can't expect it to come and sit on our own doorstep, with little or no effort.

Being single, and therefore having no children of my own (and I love children), I can look upon all children as my own, to love and be interested in. The same applies to those who are bereft of their marriage partners. They can look upon all those who have been similarly bereft, as their neighbors, and friends, who need real kindness and interest. Very soon, the congenial friendships will come along! Just try it!

Delighted

The article "Deplorable" in the Colonist is enlightening and adding with its condemnation of the CBC.

There is little doubt that very many were delighted with the satirical poem item in "This Hour Has Seven Days."

There was no insult to the Pope. He is a human and must be prepared to be treated as such.

Such words as "revere" and "sacred" have no meaning where free discussion is upheld. "Revere"—to stand in awe or, fear of; to regard with fear mingled with respect and affection.

"Sacred"—pertaining to God; or to His worship. Etc., etc. See dictionary.

M. N. SHERMAN,
2901 Seaview Road.

Own Opinion

I would like to correct the impression that a letter recently published in the Colonist, opposing Red Chinese membership in the UN, was written by a team expressing the viewpoint of the members of our UN Club. I am sorry if this impression was conveyed, as I was expressing my personal opinions, not to be thought of as the opinions of the UN Club of Oak Bay High School as a whole. I used the personal "I" in my letter, but obviously some people assumed the letter represented a collective opinion.

I am personally convinced that the best interests of the UN are served by Nationalist Chinese membership. I am not blind to the "progress" made by China in the past ten years—industrial expansion, controlled education and some degree of material betterment can usually be attained through methods destroying individual liberty.

The real danger of Red China lies not in her nuclear tests of themselves but rather in the various atomic threats she has issued to the world. Communist China has not shown herself in words or actions to be a responsible nation. The principal obstacle to the admission of Red China into the UN remains Red China herself!

Smith Meets Press

Rhodesia Algeria Over Again

By EDWIN ROTH, from London
(Special to the Colonist)

Much of what Rhodesia's 45-year-old Prime Minister Ian Smith said at his big international press conference immediately after the dramatic collapse of his independence talks with the British government was for me only an English translation of passionate words I had heard in Algiers.

Exactly the same words were said with the same angry, bitter, desperate expression by French Algerians when French rule in Algeria ended with immense bloodshed.

"If we have to go out of our country, then we would rather go out fighting than crawling on our hands and knees," said Smith. He described himself and the white Rhodesians supporting him as the guardians of Christian and European civilization in Africa.

This was exactly what was said to me in Algiers by leaders, members and supporters of the French-Algerian Secret Army Organization during their futile blood bath.

Only Date Unknown

The unilateral declaration of independence now expected from Smith will declare an independent Rhodesia in which the black Africans have no political rights. In fact, Smith's London press conference was his unilateral declaration of independence, on which he now cannot go back. Only its official date is not yet known.

But some of its consequences are already inevitable: Rhodesia's expulsion from the British Commonwealth; no recognition from most countries; of course exclusion from the United Nations; economic sanctions by Britain and others.

Probable further consequences, which may be disastrous for the western world, are an African exile government of Rhodesia-African name "Zimbabwe"—which would be recognized by African, Asian and Communist states; disorders in Rhodesia; bloodshed; military intervention by other African states and perhaps also by the United Nations.

Friends Protected

Smith remarked that "very good friends" in other countries had given him various assurances. I asked him: "Who are your friends?"

"I have no wish to embarrass anybody," replied Smith. "It would be very wrong to divulge any names and embarrass our friends."

It is most unusual to hear a prime minister state during an international press conference that he would embarrass his friends by revealing who they are. So I asked, "Why do you think this would embarrass your friends?"

"Ask our friends," answered Smith. "The British government believes we would carry out an unconstitutional act, and friendship with us could be interpreted as an unfriendly act towards Britain."

Under very tough cross-examination, Smith revealed that during his talks with the British government, the American and

German ambassadors in London had told him "that their governments would be very sorry if we solved the problem unconstitutionally."

With a smile — his only smile during this press conference — Smith pointed out that the United States of America were created by an illegal, unconstitutional, unilateral declaration of independence. (But he did not mention that the Redskins had less international influence in 1776 than the Blackbills have today.)

Smith was asked why he insisted on immediate independence, and refused to continue as a British colony ruled entirely by his white minority, with only the white minority making all its laws.

He answered angrily: "The African racial extremists won't even talk to my government. They want to step up from being nobody today to being the government and the prime minister tomorrow."

'Won't Talk to Us'

"So they won't talk to us. They come to London and talk to the British government. They have a better hope of getting it from Britain or from the United Nations."

"Once we get our independence, this sort of thing will stop. Then these people will come to their senses. They will come to us, because there will be no other government which has any say."

"We are the people who have got to live with this. We have got to go on living there. We would be fools if we did something which would stop us from living there. Look at what's been happening north of us."

"Americans who visit us admire our wonderful racial climate. They say if you want to see racial anger and hatred, you must go to the United States."

As justification of his attitude towards the black Africans, Prime Minister Ian Smith declared passionately: "Recently a very high-up member of an African government who had a young European girl secretary — she was the daughter of a colonial official, only 19 years old — locked the door, and tried to assault her. She ran hysterically out into the street."

Very angrily, Smith continued: "There were 11 other similar cases. If these conditions develop in Rhodesia, no self-respecting European can be asked to stay. We shall see that civilization is maintained in Rhodesia."

An American correspondent asked: "Are you seriously suggesting that because a member of an African government attempted to seduce his secretary, all Africans should be deprived of the vote?"

Furious about the laughter among the correspondents, Smith answered: "It was not seduction, but attempted rape. How would you feel if it had been your wife or your daughter?"

Dental Plan Recommended

EDMONTON (CP)—A prepaid dental insurance program should be given immediate consideration by the provincial government, a legislature-appointed study committee reports.

The 12-member committee, headed by Provincial Treasurer A. O. Aalberg, also recommended that the necessary majority for fluoridation of water supplies in a local plebiscite should be reduced to 50 per cent. Provincial law now requires approval of 66 per cent of people voting before fluorides can be introduced.

Canadians 'Find' Marx — Izvestia

By PETER WORTHINGTON
From Moscow

Many young Canadians are fed up with capitalism and are "discovering" Marx and Lenin the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia has claimed in an article on Canada.

The author, K. Vishnevsky, said it was "dangerous" for Canadians to study Marx because the people were afraid of becoming victims of Communist witch hunts.

A number of young Canadians were alleged to have said: "We fail to find anything new, reasonable, and inspiring in the ideas of our capitalistic society — actually there are no ideas, only a vacuum."

"We start to ponder what they in that other Great Society have. We start to discover Marx and Lenin..."

Izvestia said many Canadians were struggling to overcome their fear of being persecuted if they showed an interest in Communism.

The article quoted Prof. John Porter of Carleton University (who wrote the book Vertical Mosaic) as telling Izvestia's man: "On top of our country are the elite and below are the working people. All the others are in between and striving to get to the top. They push and kick one another down and generally saddle the working man."

Canada was called a place where Europe and the United States meet, but U.S. influence was symbolized by the U.S. Embassy flagpole opposite the parliament buildings in Ottawa which seemed "aimed straight at the Peace Tower."

The political youthfulness of Canada compelled it to "heed the opinion of one's elders — of relatives in London and neighbors in Washington."

Canada's youthfulness was also responsible for the "inferiority complex that affects a large number of thinking Canadians."

An anonymous Canadian scientist was quoted as saying: "We cannot do anything to stop the war in Viet Nam... we are a young country without any influence."

Izvestia called Canada "an economic Klondike" in the midst of a boom sparked by U.S. capital, which accounted for 85 per cent of our investments.

The United States has brought to Canada "false slogans about equal opportunities and a classless society. However, it's apparent to even visitors that this does not reflect the real state of affairs."

MONTREAL — The start of the holiday season as a result of the holiday accident cost to Canadians an estimated 8,500 claims are flooding into automobile insurance companies as the final aftermath of the Thanksgiving weekend, which took some 85 lives on Canadian streets and highways.

Insurance officials said no accurate assessment of the total number of claims resulting from the weekend could be made for some months, but past performances on this type of weekend indicated that the 8,500 estimate would be reasonably accurate.

2,000 INSURED

They also predicted — once again on the basis of previous reports — that between 1,500 and 2,000 of the claims would be made by Canadians injured in the "Thanksgiving" carnage. Another imponderable at the moment is the total amount auto insurance companies will pay.

Yorkshire Group

Well-Known Financial House Sold

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

A British Columbia financial house which for 87 years has been controlled by one English family has been sold, thus snapping a link with the pioneer days of the province.

The Yorkshire group of companies, with one exception, have been sold to Canadian interests, of which Power Corporation of Canada Limited is the biggest shareholder.

INCLUDED IN SALE

Included in the sale are the Yorkshire and Canadian Trust Ltd., the Yorkshire Savings and Loan Association, and the general insurance business owned by the Yorkshire Corporation Limited. The new company will operate under the title, Yorkshire Financial Corporation Limited, a newly incorporated Canadian company.

Excluded from the deal is Yorkshire Securities Limited, which has been purchased by senior members of the company in Vancouver and Victoria. It will continue under their guidance to operate separately as dealers in investment securities.

NO ELECTRICITY

Yorkshire came to British Columbia in 1888, when the province had a population of 80,000 people. There was no electricity in Vancouver when Yorkshire set up its first office on Cordova Street.

Founder of the firm was George P. Norton, a Huddersfield, Yorkshire, chartered accountant, who was looking for a wider field of business and who saw in British Columbia a vision of greatness.

FOREMOST FIRM

The firm established itself and quickly became the first and foremost financial company in the province.

It grew from a one-room office and George Norton lived to see it the owner of two large office buildings in Vancouver and Victoria before he died in 1939.

COMPLETE CYCLE

He was succeeded as chairman of the board by his son Colonel Gilbert P. Norton, and more latterly by his namesake and grandson, George P. Norton, to complete a three generation cycle.

The new company will take over Nov. 1 with the present president Harry M. Boyce as chairman and with Frank D. Trebell as president. Mr. Trebell was formerly vice-president and general manager of Greenfields Inc., a Montreal investment company.

LUNCH PAUSE NEEDED

After November 1, the trading session on the Vancouver Stock Exchange will be longer than on any other stock exchange in the country.

The lunch break between 12:30 and 1:30 will be eliminated as from that date, and the session will commence at 7 a.m. and continue without a stop until the close at 2:30.

PROMPTED BY GROWTH

The 7½ hours trading day will compare with the 5½ hours day enjoyed by those who operate on the Toronto and Montreal Stock Exchanges, where the hours are 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. (EDT).

Jack Van Luven, executive officer of the Vancouver Stock Exchange, says the growing importance of the exchange has prompted the move. It means that when the eastern exchanges close at 12:30 p.m. (our time) the Vancouver will still have two solid hours of trading on its own.

It is expected that the move will add considerably to the exchange volume, particularly when late news breaks near to the eastern stock exchange closing time.

FLIGHTS LENGTHENED

Scandinavian Airlines has made a second order of four 158-passenger Douglas DC-8 Mark 62 jets on a new $37,000,000 contract. SAS ordered four of the new planes last May for delivery early in 1967.

With the new longrange planes SAS will schedule a non-stop flight between Copenhagen and Los Angeles over the Polar route. The Mark 62 jets can fly barrels a day in September compared with 231,395 barrels in September, 1964.

5,300 miles non-stop against 4,300 miles for the DC-8's now in the fleet.

TRANS MOUNTAIN BUSY
Trans Mountain Oil Pipe Line moved an average of 239,348

Deliveries for October are expected to average 238,000 barrels a day, including 6,000 barrels of butane.

Made Somebody Happy

Howdy Doody, Scotty On Mudcat's Mind

By JOE REICHLER
MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Jim Grant read the telegram once more.

"Win the next one for Scotty... your friend, Howdy Doody." Grant carefully put the paper back into the envelope, laid it atop the shelf in his locker, walked out on the field and proceeded to pitch and bat Minnesota Twins to a 5-1 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers Wednesday.

Minutes later, the strong-armed right-hander was explaining the telegram.

"Howdy Doody is a close friend of mine from Kansas City," Grant said. "His wife, Scotty, was killed in an automobile accident about a week and a half ago. They had been married less than a year."

"I thought about her and the telegram when I went out to the mound. I'm glad I made my friend a little happier."

Grant's performance made a great many people happy. The partisan crowd of 49,578 gave the 30-year-old native of Lacoochee, Fla., a standing ovation after he hit a three-run homer in the sixth inning that clinched the Twins' victory and ended the world series at three games apiece.

GAVE HIM THRILL

"That gave me a bigger thrill than the home run," Grant said. "Imagine looking up and seeing more than 49,000 standing up and cheering just for you. I'll never forget it."

Neither will the fans, Grant, bothered by a nagging cold and balking knees, and pitching with just two days' rest, pitched perhaps his greatest game of the year.

It was a game the Twins had to win. A defeat would give Dodgers the series.

HE WAS SHARP

Grant allowed only six hits. None until Ron Fairly led off the fifth with a single to centre. He struck out five and walked none, not allowing a runner to pass second except for Fairly's home run in the seventh.

But he wanted to talk about his home run, not his pitching. "I watched the pitcher (Howie Reed) carefully as I walked in the deck circle while he was purposely walking Frank (Quilici) to get at me."

"I said to myself, 'he's going to throw me a curve. He can't afford to give me a fast ball in a situation like this.' We had runners on first and second, you know."

"Sure enough, he threw the curve. I knew it was gone the moment I hit it. I remember starting to run, then stopping and yelling 'a home run, a home run.'"

"When I rounded third base, Billy Martin, our coach, grabbed my hand. 'How about that, baby,' I grinned at him. I was laughing by the time I reached the dugout."

Someone asked Grant if Reed has thrown him a high-arching curve.

"It was a helluva curve," Jim corrected. "It was a beauty... sharp breaking... right around the knees."

Grant, a fairly good hitter for a pitcher, recalled that he had hit three or four home runs during his big league career—none this past season—but couldn't remember his last one.

The cold that has been bothering him for six weeks is still there, he said. "But I forgot about it once the game started."

"After the series, I'm going to take a complete physical and find out what's wrong with me. The cold, or whatever it is, is lasting too long to suit me."

Soccer Player Dies of Injury

Funeral services were held yesterday for Derek Fendt, 30, a member of Victoria West second division soccer team who died Sunday as a result of injuries suffered in a match Sept. 26.

Fendt, who turned out with the club as a means of staying in shape, was playing in its first match against Esquimalt. He and another player went up to head a ball, and Fendt slumped to the ground.

He died as a result of brain injuries. There will be no inquest.

Victoria and Oak Bay Co-Leaders in League

Victoria High and Oak Bay maintained their deadlock in first place in the inter-high school senior soccer league yesterday, clearing the way for the big game of the season Friday night.

Oak Bay won by default over Esquimalt, which couldn't field a full team. Vic High edged Claremont, 2-1, and third-place

Mount View beat Mt. Douglas, 1-0.

The Bays, defending B.C. champions, play Vic High Friday night at 6:30 at Royal Athletic Park.

Vic Grass gave Vic High an early lead, but Rod Sutton tied it up in the second half on a penalty shot. Rick Couch tapped in the winner on a cross with 15 minutes left.

At Simon Fraser

Five from Ontario Given Scholarships

BURNABY (CP) — Five players from Ontario are among 18 winners of football scholarships announced by Simon Fraser University.

They are Robert Boyer and Robert McGee of Brantford, Ronald Faulkner and Kim Rawley of Ottawa, and Hans Jansson of Toronto.

The new Simon Fraser University opened its doors last month. British Columbia football scholarship winners are Doug Sheffield of Kelowna, and Christopher Beaton, Patrick Fears, Leonard Harding, Simon Korlsto, Herb Lang, Don Lumb, Robert Main, Joseph Marcuzzi, William O'Doherty, Ron Reichelt, Richard Sanders and Bolko Skapski, all of the Vancouver area.

Basketball scholarships are awarded to Emery Baker of Abbotsford, Gunnar Kuehn of Oliver, James Mills of White Rock, David Murphy of Kamloops, Robert Wright of New Westminster, and Douglas Dougan and Gary Field of Vancouver.

Special scholarship awards went to football players James W. Jardine, Russell W. Jenkins, R. J. McLaren and Edward B. Warkentin, and swimmer Mary Stewart, all of Vancouver.

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — Jim (Mudcat) Grant, pitching with only two days rest, squared the world series for the Minnesota Twins Wednesday by hurling a six-hitter and belting a three-run homer in a 5-1 sixth-game victory over Los Angeles Dodgers.

Grant's triumph, the Twins' third in three games at Metropolitan Stadium after losing three straight in Los Angeles, threw the series into a decisive seventh game today. So far, it has been a home park series.

Twins' manager Sam Mele named left-hander Jim Kaat to start the seventh game, but Walter Alston of the Dodgers refused to pick a pitcher, saying he would not decide until Thursday between right-hander Don Drysdale and left-hander Sandy Koufax.

Bob Allison's two-run homer off Claude Osteen in the fourth gave the muscular Grant the margin he needed. Then he came up in the sixth and blasted reliever Howie Reed's first pitch 332 feet and deep into the left field stands with two men on base.

WILD APPLAUSE

A record crowd of 49,578 rose in a thunderous ovation to Grant, 21-game winner, as he trotted home. Grant was the first pitcher to hit a homer in the series since Lew Burdette did it for Milwaukee, Oct. 2, 1955. It was the first by an American League pitcher since old Jim Bagby for Cleveland in 1920.

Grant, beaten Sunday in the fourth game when he was knocked out in the sixth inning, came back strong as though he had a month's rest. He had a no-hitter going until Ron Fairly opened the fifth with a single to centre.

RUINED SHOUTOUT

Fairly's seventh-inning home run ruined Grant's bid for a shutout, but the big fellow never faltered.

After Lou Johnson singled for the sixth hit with two out in the ninth, Grant closed out the Dodgers by making Wes Parker roll out to Frank Quilici. The entire Twins' bench came out to greet the 30-year-old right-hander as he walked off the mound.

Osteen, who never before had lost to the Twins in his days with Washington and the Dodgers, finally dropped his first decision to the Minnesota slugger after beating them six times.

The craft lefty had shut out the Twins in Los Angeles in the third game Saturday 4-0.

The Twins started out making life miserable for Osteen in the first inning when Zoilo Versalles led off with a single. He was erased on a double by Earl Battey, but Tony Oliva kept the water boiling with a single to left.

Earl Battey led off the second with a triple to left centre, and Don Mincher walked, but Osteen escaped with a whole arm.

WALKED VERSALLES

Again in the third, Osteen was in trouble when he walked Versalles on a 3-2 pitch, but the next three went quietly.

Dick Tracewski, playing second for the injured Jim Lefebvre, muffed up Battey's lead-off grounder in the fourth. Allison, who had struck out earlier and had only one hit in 10 trips, ripped into Osteen's third pitch and drove it into the lower pavilion in left for the two-run homer that really won the ball game.

Osteen had been getting behind the hitters, and his pitches were high instead of in his usual low-breaking groove.

Grant was in command all the way. The Dodgers never got a chance to use the speed that practically ran the Twins out of the park in Los Angeles. Only once, in the sixth when Tracewski and Maury Wills singled, did they have two on base at the same time.

The second guessers will have a field day with dodger manager Walter Alston for his move in walking the weak-hitting rookie Quilici in the sixth to pitch to Grant.

SUPERB PLAY

Parker had made a superb play to throw out leadoff man Battey in the sixth, but Allison walked. Reed, who had just replaced Osteen at the start of the inning, curled a third strike past Don Mincher.

Allison ordered Reed to give Quilici a free ticket to first, setting the stage for Grant.

The powerful pitcher, who was one of the Twins' best-hitting pitchers in regular season play with a .355 average, slammed the first pitch into the wildly-cheering fans in the left field pavilion.

It was Grant's first homer of the year, and he wouldn't sell it for $10,000—the amount he can make if the Twins follow through and win the seventh game.

Happy Twins pummel Grant at dugout steps

Series Notes and Quotes:

Sandy or Don, Dodgers Favored

MINNEAPOLIS — If Don Drysdale pitches today, Los Angeles Dodgers are 13-10 favorites for the whole ball of wax. If Sandy Koufax is manager Walt Alston's choice, the odds are even higher at 3-2.

Last night's rain showers were expected to continue through this morning and there was a distinct chance that the game would be postponed until Friday.

About $3,000 per player will be riding on every pitch.

Winners will get about $10,000 each and the losers about $7,000.

Alston plans no lineup changes today. This means that Dick Tracewski will stay at second base even though he made a big error Wednesday. There is no controversy tag at second base in the first inning of the fourth game. The Twins outfielder was trying to stretch a single into a double.

Hurley and Martin both spent much of yesterday denying that the statement himself and Twin coach Billy Martin in trouble with the umpiring staff after a ghost-written article appeared recently.

Johnson, writing under Martin's name, wrote that umpire Ed Hurley said Sandy Valdespino was really safe, and not out, on a controversial tag at second base in the first inning of the fourth game. The Twins outfielder was trying to stretch a single into a double.

Hurley and Martin both spent much of yesterday denying that the statement was made. Writer Johnson is sticking to his version.

Asked about the pitch that Bob Allison hit for a homer, Dodger pitcher Claude Osteen said: "It was high. I didn't intend for it to be there."

Somebody asked Minnesota manager Sam Mele if he really believed that the home crowd meant that much to professional athletes.

"Certainly do," he replied. "I think the fans inspired our players. Being met by all those fans on a cold night when we came back from California was a big lift."

Portland Still Tough Club; Totem Lineup in Tatters

Criticism sports writer Jim Taylor has completed a tour of West Coast hockey training camps. Here he reports on Seattle Totem and Portland Buckaroos.

By JIM TAYLOR

Portland Buckaroos have lost Andy Heberton and Pat Stapleton, but coach Hal Laycoe is still smiling. Seattle Totems have lost seven regulars, and coach Bobby Kromm isn't.

With the Western Hockey League set to open tomorrow night, the word is that the Buckaroos are threats to repeat their league and playoff championship and the Totems, who chased them all last season, may have a struggle to reach the playoffs.

First let's look at the Buckaroos.

Heberton, with Victoria Maple Leafs this year, was an all-star.

right winger, Stapleton made all-star on defence, played centre or wing when he had to, and set up with Portland odd-man play.

Losing one would hurt; losing two should cripple. But Laycoe says no.

SAME SETUP

"Look at it this way," he told WHL writers. "I've got the same defence I had when Stapleton was playing forward, and the same forwards, with the exception of Heberton, that I had when Stapleton played defence."

"And we've brought in Len Ronson, who scored 25 goals with Providence last year, and Chuck Holmes from Seattle."

FULL BEASON

Laycoe also points out that he'll have Larry Leach for the full season or part of it, and Jack Blonda for the season instead of 16 games on defence.

Blonda is one of question marks. He has a knee injury that isn't coming around as well as Portland had hoped. But the Bucks still have Don Head in goal and some solid defencemen in Con Madigan, Red Eay, Doug Messier and Mike Donaldson, as well as a husky rookie from Toronto Marlboroughs named Ray Winterstein.

THEY'RE LOADED

Up front, Portland seems to be loaded. At the moment the lines are Tom McVie, Gerry Goyer and Ronson; Cliff Schnautz, Art Jones and Dick Van Impe; Chuck Holmes, Larry Leach and Bill Saunders, and Arnie Schmutz, rookie Murray Owen of Nelson, and Arlo Goodwin.

McVie is moving from left wing, where he was an all-star last year, to right wing, where he was an all-star in 1961-62.

BEST CAMP

"We've had the best training camp we've ever had—maybe not the best team, but the best camp. We're still the champs from last year and I think we've got a good club again."

The situation is not so rosy in Seattle, where rookie coach Kromm knows a lot of rookies have to come through for him. Kromm says he'll be perfectly happy if Totems just make the playoffs.

ALL GONE

Gone from last year's club are Larry Zeidel, Bob Barlow, Ray Kinasevich, Jean Marie Cossette, Chuck Holmes and Bob Sabourin. And Gerry Brisson, slated for the first line with Guyie Fielder and Bill Dineen, suffered a shoulder separation in the club's intra-squad game. Kromm doesn't know when he'll be back.

Kromm's other two lines at the moment are Bill MacFarland, Gord Wilkie (from Cleveland) and rookie Gary Butler; Jim Powers, Gerry Leonard and rookie Earl Heikala. Other forwards are Don Chis and two other rookies, Red Campbell and Ray Clearwater.

SOLID IN GOAL

Jim McLeod appears solid in goal, with Don Ward, Gord Sinclair, Larry Hale, Mo Mantha and Adam Keller (from Detroit) on defence.

Kromm says he figures he's got the rookies of the year in Heikala and Butler, but he knows the rookies have to come through.

Guyie Fielder, great as he is, is going to need more help than ever in what shapes up as a tougher league.

Tommy Can Really Run

They keep running back at Sandown Park, even back to last year.

There are many examples, but none is better than Tommy Can, who came to Sandown last year to win three of four races and get unofficially crowned as Sandown's first two-year-old champion.

But the chestnut gelding had hardly repeated that effort this season—at least before he came to Sandown. In 10 races at Exhibition Park, the slate showed only one win and two show finishes.

Being at Sandown immediately got that straightened away. Tommy Can won on Oct. 1, he won again on Oct. 8, and he made it three in a row yesterday with jockey Jack Phillips again in the irons.

SLIGHT CHANGE

There was only a slight change in tactics. In the first two races, Phillips stayed close to the pace but never quite on it. Yesterday, apparently recognizing that the improved Who's Haydn just might open up too much daylight, Phillips challenged from the start and although he got a good argument in the stretch, he had the most horse under him.

Tommy Can went off as the favorite in the featured seventh race, but the same could hardly be said of Aleja in the fourth. Although she had led twice until the stretch and then won her last by two lengths, not too many believed the daughter of Dark Hawk had it in her to do it again. But she did, paying off at

And, that with the extra day, that Sandown should pass the $2,000,000 mark this meeting. . . . the sale of Chickie and the claiming of Star Pal and Harlow have just about, for the time being at least, put George Harknett's Colwood Stables out of business. Bugalenkov, 27, is a school teacher in the Latvian capital of Riga. He first made the Russian team in 1960 and was named the outstanding player in the world tournament. In 1962, Russia won the world title, and again Bugalenkov was named the top player.

Standing a shade over six feet and weighing 180 pounds, the Russian ace is particularly known for the extraordinary spring in his legs. From a standing position, he can leap higher than world high jump champ Valeri Brumel.

OTHER STARS

Among the other stars of the men's team are Vazha Kacharova, a member of the winning team at the 1963 World Student Games, and Valeri Kravchenko, a first-year man rated among the best. # World's Best Volleyball Player

The man they call the world's finest volleyball player will be at Memorial Arena Friday night, leading the world's finest team.

Ivan Bugalenkov, called Russia's ace killer because of his ability to spike the ball, will be in the lineup when the Russian men's team plays an intra-squad match as part of a Canadian tour.

Original plans called for the Russian and U.S. men's teams to meet, but the Russian declined. Their theory is that they have made a thorough study of the game and are reluctant to have the Americans playing and studying them over too many games.

However, Sokol says that some of the best matches he has ever seen have been Russian intra-squad matches, where the rivalry is high.

Parker Hurts Knee

TORONTO (CP) — Jackie Parker, Toronto Argonauts' defensive halfback and reverse quarterback, had his knee injured by a teammate in the final quarter of a Canadian Football League game here last Friday against Calgary Stampeders.

The injury is either a badly strained ligament or one with a slight tear.

Parker is not likely to play in the defensive backfield but may dress as a backup man to quarterback Pete Liske here this Saturday when the Argos play an Eastern Football Conference game against Montreal.

Polish Polish Off Scotland, 2-1

GLASGOW (AP) — Poland's soccer team scored two goals within a minute Wednesday night and defeated Scotland 2-1 in a vital World Cup qualifying game.

The Scots, doing nearly all the attacking, led 1-0 at half-time before a 100,000 crowd at Hampden Park Stadium.

The Polish goals, in the 81st and 82nd minutes, sent Scotland's chances of a place in next year's finals to a low level. Scotland and Italy are level with five points each in group 8 of the European Zone, but the Scots have only two games left and the Italians have three.

Anyone who thinks it's a sports car has been taken for a ride.

Our 1966 Volkswagen fastback sedan can fool you.

When you take it for a ride, it corners and handles so well you might forget it's a family car.

But don't worry. You're not alone.

Even some sports car buffs are astonished at the way it performs. One enthusiast went as far as to say it handles a lot like a $6000 Porsche. We just blushed.

Mind you, we can see how some of its features might give the impression our new fastback is a bit of a sport.

Like 4-wheel independent torsion bar suspension. Bucket seats. 4-speed floor shift. Dual carburetor engine. And front-wheel disc brakes.

You don't normally find those things in a family car. Any more than you find a back seat in a sports car. Or 17 cu. ft. of luggage room. Some sports cars barely have 17 cu. feet of sports car.

Our '66 fastback sedan uses regular gas. Gets about 34 miles to the gallon. And goes to a Volkswagen dealer for service.

With features like that you really can't call our fastback a sports car.

Can you?

Smooth talk will never make a whisky mellow.

Extra charcoal filtering will. That's why every drop of Gooderham's Brown Jug is filtered through layer after layer of hard maple charcoal. It's a slow process, but we're in no hurry. In fact when it's finished, we take the time to do it all over again. Just to make sure Brown Jug is perfectly polished. Remember that when someone tries to smooth-talk you into buying another brand of whisky. The charcoal filtering story is printed on the back of every bottle of Gooderham's Brown Jug. Why don't you pick one up and read it sometime?

Gooderham's have been distilling fine whiskies since 1832.

Eight Banned for Life

Red Soccer Stars Rapped for Drinking

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russian newspapers have launched a full-scale campaign to clean up Soviet soccer following a life ban on eight top players for "systematic drunkenness."

The ban was ordered by officials of the Soviet Soccer Federation.

Several big clubs came under fire. One newspaper said two first division teams organized "drunken debauches."

Other players, including some, international competitors, have been criticized for dirty play and one team captain has been accused of "speculating with foreign clothes."

Members of one leading club, Tbilisi Dynamo, have been attacked or "letting success go to their heads."

None of the eight banned stars is an international player, but all come from first- and second-division clubs.

One newspaper linked the stiff sentences with the current campaign here against drunkenness as a whole, and said soccer players, idolized by many young people, had to set a good example or be driven out of the game.

The newspaper also complained that Tbilisi Dynamo had deteriorated badly this season because its players started to believe they were "some sort of supermasters who can do anything and to whom anything is allowed."

The former champion club, now in the middle of the first division, led the league in dirty play, the newspaper alleged.

One player, Yuri Sevidov, of the Moscow Spartak team, was reported to be in jail facing a manslaughter charge. He allegedly ran down and killed a nuclear physicist while drunk at the wheel of his car.

The last big scandal in Soviet soccer was in 1958 when a member of the Russian national team, Eduard Streltsov, was sentenced to 12 years in prison for rape. Streltsov later was freed from a labor camp "for good conduct" and is back with his old team, Moscow Torpedo.

Aussie Tennis Stars Quit Over Expenses

LONDON (UPI) — Australians Bob Carmichael and John Sharpe have lashed out at the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia after reaching the quarter finals of the British covered court lawn tennis championships at Queens Club.

They walked off the court and stormed, "we're fed up with the Australian Association and have just decided not to play under their jurisdiction any more."

Both players had been told by their association that they had exceeded the number of days for which they could receive expenses this year.

They would not be able to take expenses for any reason from the British championships.

Carmichael, a 25-year-old and third seed, had just beaten another Australian, Bruce Larkham, 6-4, 6-0, 6-4.

He said: "I wouldn't mind but I haven't been in Australia for three years."

Sharpe, 26, a former Australian doubles champion, commented: "I have decided to go to Canada to live next week."

"I'm fed up with my association. They don't reply to any of my letters. In fact the only time I hear from them is when someone thinks I might be getting too much in the way of expenses."

Victoria Boys Take Lead

Victoria High moved into first place in the high school junior soccer league Tuesday with a 4-0 win over Mount View.

Future Recipe: Handful of Bugs, Stir, Gobble

WINNIPEG (CP) — People should eat more creepy, crawly things, says a Winnipeg researcher.

"Entomologists estimate that an acre of land can yield more insect protein than best protein," members of the Canadian Institute of Food Technology were told Tuesday. "Assuming that many of the more than 600,000 species of insects have possibilities as food or drugs, there remains only the problem of how to harvest this protein."

The witch's brew menu was suggested by Ben Berck, a chemist with the agricultural research station here.

Mr. Berck said affluent North Americans should chew over the examples set in Asia and Africa where people eat silkworm pupae, caterpillars, grasshoppers, locusts, termites and beetles.

As the world's population increases, he said, food-growing areas will decrease and need to develop new foods will become more apparent.

A modest start has already been made, Mr. Berck said, adding:

"For many in our affluent society, the thought of using insects for food evokes disgust. Yet, insects are arthropods, related to crustaceans, and many enjoy crustaceans such as lobsters, shrimps and crabs.

"We may also enjoy truffles or mushrooms, which are fungi, or chams, oysters, eels, lampreys, octopi, frogs legs and purified cheese."

CAMBRIDGE (Reuters) — Cambridge University will have the first co-educational college in its 800-year history. It was announced today.

J. S. Morrison, president of the first mixed college—University College—which has been given a $375,000 grant by Cambridge University, said a four-acre site will be developed with apartments for married and single men and women.

It will be a graduate college with 100 students when it is fully operational. It now has 30 students including two women.

Magazine

Society Peek Given

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Life and About Town, a 60-cents-a-month peek at how the opulent half lives, has hit the magazine stands in a blaze of color.

As Jack Wasserman of The Sun describes it: "The first issue contains the fattest ad volume of any new Canadian magazine in recent history. It is also a fine, slick professional product."

DOGGY SET

"At its present rate of operation, it won't lose more than a million dollars in its first year of operation."

VL and AT, as the magazine refers to itself, is published by Donald Cromie, former publisher of The Sun.

It's a chronicle for the doggy set—one picture shows a pooch wearing a bib "to keep him from drooling on his freshly groomed hairdo."

POLO, ANYONE?

It's also for the horsey people:

"Polo is back where it was in the halcyon '20s and '30s and British Columbia's top horsemen are once again gleefully risking their necks on Sunday afternoons."

There is an article on the Vancouver Festival and a picture of "100-a-head golfers" in a tournament to aid junior players.

NICKNAMES

In a unique blend of formal informality, VL and AT uses nicknames but never forgets the "Mr." as in "Mr. Gordie Howe" or "Mr. Joe Kapp."

The centre spread is a large real-estate advertisement in which the cheap houses are listed at $45,000, the most expensive at $125,000.

LONG POEM

House parties get a large play, as does the theatre. A society wedding is featured in color and there are articles on bridge, the drinking of wine and boating.

Volume 1, No. 1, has a long poem by Dr. Earle Birney extolling Vancouver as, among many other things, "a body, hardbacked, wanting shape and forever in need of swelling."

The symphony and the opera are featured.

MOTORBIKE

Among the advertisements is one by a trust company which offers a motorcycle to anyone opening a $20,000 account; a leading furrier features a floor-length mink.

Pictures show the pool and patio antics at the party thrown by the Cromies for artists of the Royal Ballet, but do not show the police visit—a command performance on behalf of neighbors kept awake through the morning hours by a rock 'n' roll combo.

VL and AT sets out Life's Happy Purpose as "a colorful chronicling of the new tempo that sparks Vancouver's activities in the arts and sciences, entertainment, business and just leisurely good living."

Camp Kalitan

Successful Season Reported

Camp Kalitan has experienced its most successful year to date, says Ronald Harvard, executive director of the Boys' Club of Victoria.

A total of 150 boys attended at varying times and enjoyed a full program of swimming, boating, sailing, canoeing, archery, nature lore, punning and the use of fire, knife and axe. Those successful in completing courses in each activity were awarded merit badges.

The campsite is located at Shields Lake in the Sooke Hills. A program of winter camping is now being planned for members of the club.

Cat Couldn't Eat His Pals

LINCOLN, Eng. — Harold and Rosemary Beel were fined two pounds ($5.60) apiece for abandoning three goldfish.

W. P. Patterson, prosecuting for the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, told a court the couple left the fish behind in a garden when they moved home. They also abandoned a cat.

Court chairman H. N. Newsam suggested the fish could have been a source of food for the cat. Replied an indignant Patterson, "the cat looked upon the fish as his pals."

TORONTO — Dr. Cheddi Jagan, former premier of British Guiana, said John F. Kennedy, late president of the United States, was pushed into taking action on Negro voting rights by Afro-Asian nations. Dr. Jagan said President Kennedy was looking for support from the non-aligned nations. "And you can't woo the Afro-Asian bloc and still live with Jim Crow at home."

MONTE CARLO, Monaco — Commander Jacques Yves Cousteau's underwater house Precontinent 111 is due to surface, the French aquanaut announced. Precontinent 111 has been submerged at a depth of 330 feet off St. Jean Cap Ferrat since Sept. 22 in what Cousteau describes as an experiment in living under the sea.

BRUSSELS — Belgium's Queen Fabiola attended a ceremony commemorating the 50th anniversary of the execution of British nurse Edith Cavell by the Germans in the First World War. The nurse had been arrested for helping Belgium and British soldiers escape to Allied lines.

JERUSALEM, Israel — Former Israeli premier David Ben-Gurion postponed his traditional birthday pilgrimage to the Negev Desert retreat until after the Nov. 2 election. He said he would mark his 79th birthday by addressing a rally at Eilat.

HOLLYWOOD — Film and television star Dorothy Malone continued to improve after a weekend infection that pushed her temperature to 102. The actress, hospitalized since Sept. 23 when she underwent surgery for massive blood clots in her lungs, developed the new flareup Sunday and was not permitted to see visitors in her room at Cedars of Lebanon hospital.

HAGERSTOWN, Md. — A 20-year-old New York college student, Walter Mott of Massapequa, N.Y., who allegedly kidnapped and raped an 11-year-old Girl Scout was captured when he walked into an FBI trap at his grandmother's home. Mott allegedly snatched the blonde child out of a Fairlane, N.J., school when she went to the room. In a five hour period, police said, he carried her across the state line into New York and raped her three times. The child escaped when Mott left her unattended in his home town while he visited a dentist's office.

COPENHAGEN — Prince Masahito Hitoachi, youngest son of Japanese Emperor Hirohito, and his wife arrived in Denmark for a three-day visit. The royal couple will spend six weeks touring Europe.

QUEBEC — Jean-Jacques Jagan entered a guilty plea to five charges of arson and five of conspiracy to commit arson.

All the charges against him involved fires in Quebec that have taken place in 1961 and 1962.

NEW HAVEN — Burglars made off with more than $10,000 worth of jewelry belonging to actress Anne Jeffreys. Miss Jeffreys is co-starring with Alfred Drake in Klamet at the Shubert Theatre.

SEATTLE — Mrs. O. C. Mayes of Clinton, Tenn., concluded the 17th year of searching for the body of her son undisputed by failure. "I'll be back next year," she said. ## Battling Nun Moves Pets Pending Sale of Home Mother Cecilia of the Good Shepherd Animal Shelter is moving her wards pending sale of the shelter property in Metchoin.

The nun, who has been under fire from the Roman Catholic Church for her work with animals, says all the animals will be moved out of the shelter in about three weeks.

Some will be housed in the El Hunt Kennels at Mill Bay.

The rest will be taken to a newly-purchased property at a location Mother Cecilia refused to disclose.

She said that, although she has bought new land for the shelter, she has so far found no buyer for the Metchoin land.

Asking price for the 24-acre tract is about $58,000.

Mini-Metro Out

Library Plan—'No'

By A. H. MURPHY

A Victoria proposal to bring the district's long-standing and highly controversial public library problem under mini-metro received little support Wednesday at a meeting of the inter-municipal committee.

A meeting will be held Oct. 26 at which an inter-municipal sub-committee will consider a tentative agreement between municipalities in the area.

HEAD SWIMMING
The agreement, which has been worked out by municipal solicitors in the Greater Victoria area is complex.

"It is so involved that it makes my head swim," said Mayor Wilson. It was this complexity, he added, which resulted in the plan to bring library functions under regional planning.

TOO MUCH
One objection, said Reeve Allan Cox, of Oak Bay, is that the regional plan, as envisaged by the provincial-municipal affairs department, takes in much more territory than the library was prepared to handle at this time.

The proposed agreement, added the reeve, might be contentious but there were other contentious documents in existence such as those from which developed the metropolitan board of health and the family and district court.

Municipalities might argue over these agreements but the fact remained that the inter-municipal services were provided, argument or not, said Reeve Cox.

There were several ways of handling the matter, in the opinion of Mayor Wilson.

Blood Clinic Hungry

A large turn-out of Victoria blood donors is vitally needed today after disappointing response to the first two in a series of three clinics.

A better response is urged today at Red Cross House, 1016 Fort, from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. and 6:30 to 8 p.m.

Facilities at Y Full of Bounce

Ten-year-old Maria Newberry, 124 Haultain, so intent on her ping pong game, is only one of almost 3,000 Greater Victoria children who enjoy the facilities of the new YM-YWCA.

The Y's youth department is the only department which shares in United Appeal funds.

Its grant from the appeal helps the department make up the difference between the low fees charged children and the higher cost of providing them with facilities and instruction.

Fees charged are $14 a year per child but costs to the Y are estimated at $40 to $50 a child. The deficit is made up by the Community Chest and augmented by profits from other Y departments.

No Community Chest money is used for other departments or for capital costs such as buildings.

As well as keeping youth department fees low, the Y has a system of sponsors who pay all or part of the fee for children whose parents cannot afford it.

The residential canvass for the United Appeal begins Monday.

Albert Smith sets bait for Bobo

Sweet Trap Set for Bobo

By BILL STAVDAL

Bobo the squirrel monkey remains free in the depths of Royal Jubilee Hospital.

After three days of scampering along the dark crawl spaces and utility tunnels of the hospital, it look like only hunger will bring him out.

Bobo, pet of Albert J. Smith, 1124 Yates, got loose in Royal Jubilee Sunday afternoon. He was taken there by Stanley Reddeman, 1224 Rudlin Street, after Bobo bit his finger when Reddeman found the monkey in his house and picked him up.

The SPCA has given up chasing Bobo in the maze of tunnels that service the hospital. Festeoned with water, sewage and steam pipes, they are a monkey's paradise.

Armed with trap borrowed from the SPCA, Mr. Smith Wednesday night made his first attempt to catch Bobo. He baited it with candy and lettuce—Bobo's favorite snacks—and set the trap in a tunnel under the children's ward.

Meantime, some of Bobo's neighbors aren't keen on seeing him come home.

"That thing is an absolute nuisance," complained Mrs. Olive McAdam, 1225 Johnson Street, Wednesday night.

She accused Bobo of having pilfered $39 from her bedroom last summer, of having ransacked the room on another occasion, and of scaring four budgies to death over a period of time.

Bobo also spends his time shaking fruit off branches and plundering bird nests, said Mrs. McAdam.

Annoyed but less concerned about Bobo is Bernard Barber, 1237 Johnson.

"He sits in the tree and bothers the dog all day," he reported.

He admitted that fruit-tree raiding may be partly the work of children.

If Bobo is trapped, his days of mischief may be nearly over. As he set the trap Wednesday Mr. Smith was heard to mutter: "I think Bobo is going to the zoo."

No Need To Beg—Campbell

By IAN STREET

The old notion of "begging in the streets" for hospital funds is completely out of date, Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell said Wednesday.

The municipal affairs department is not "in the hospital business," the minister said. But it is there to provide administrative means of maintaining the community's share of hospital construction costs on an equitable basis.

With the scheduled start of full medicare in 1967, he said, there is now more need than ever for local hospital financing to become a function of the proposed regional services board for the Capital Region.

The minister was answering the argument, put forward earlier by government backbencher John Tisdalle of Saanich, that the present system of voluntary contributions by citizens and municipalities was preferable to instituting a tax.

Busy Sessions in Sight For Courts of Revision

Mrs. Vera Pipes, the Social Credit candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich, said Wednesday night it looks to her as if the courts of revision are going to be awfully busy places when they sit Oct. 21 to Oct. 23.

The business of these courts is to attend to omissions, errors, adjustments and complaints concerning the voters' lists. The court for Victoria riding will be in the Eagles' Hall, 755 View, and at a number of places in far-flung Esquimalt-Saanich.

"I know of three names not on the list from the 600 block Dupplin Road, alone," said Mrs. Pipes, who fears there are many more missing from many areas.

Coffee parties for Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal candidate, James Gorst, will start today. One will be held at a private home in the morning and another at 7:30 p.m. in campaign headquarters at the Burnside Plaza, 3466 Tillicum Road.

Election Notebook By Ian Arrol

Public coffee parties at 8 p.m. for Liberal candidate David Groos will be held Friday in Oak Bay in Henderson Hall on Yale Street.

Tuesday in the city at Holyrood House and next Thursday in Esquimalt at Jubilee Hall on Fraser Street.

Victoria Young Progressive Conservatives met Wednesday night at 492 St. Patrick along with fellow and sister members from the University of Victoria to arrange whoope-de-do and rah-rah-rah for the John Diefenbaker rally at 8 p.m. Friday in Bay Street Armory.

The time of the national party leader's arrival at the airport has now been set at 4:45 p.m. A 20-car cavalcade has been organized as an escort into the city.

Herbert Anscomb, former provincial leader of the Conservatives, will be chairman at the rally.

"What are we running, a horse race?"

That is the question which Herbert Bruch, Social Credit organizer and MLA for Esquimalt, asks those who feel their vote is "lost" unless it is for the successful candidate of the party that wins the election.

"Those who stand behind some principle they believe in never lose; they can influence," he said at last week's Social Credit nominating convention for Esquimalt-Saanich.

He gave as examples, the influence of the NDP on the Liberals at Ottawa and of the Republicans on the Democrats at Washington.

New Comet

Death Plunge Visible

Victorians for the next week can watch a comet on its one-way trip to the sun.

It's the Ikeya-Seki comet, discovered Sept. 28 by two Japanese astronomers, and predicted to die about Oct. 21 when the sun consumes it.

It will grow day by day as the sun vaporizes its nucleus and solar radiation rushes gases farther and farther behind, forming the characteristic comet tail.

MAJOR COMET

Ikeya-Seki is the first major comet since Halley's in 1910.

Dr. Graham Odgers of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory in Saanich said Wednesday that the best time to see the comet is about 6:30 a.m., before the sun has risen.

At the comet nears the sun and grows it may be visible by day, said Dr. Odgers.

Downtown Bus Pass On Way

A "downtown" bus pass, good outside of rush hours within a specified area, will be introduced by B.C. Hydro from Nov. 1, city hall was informed by letter Wednesday.

The pass, which will sell for 25 cents, will be good from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. from Monday to Saturday, inclusive (except for holidays).

The pass will be good for as many rides as desired in the district bounded on the north by Herald Street, on the east by Blanshard on the south by Humboldt and on the west by Wharf and Store streets.

In addition the pass will enable a patron to ride home from the downtown area providing he boards a bus before 3:30 p.m.

Hydro transportation manager H. R. Halls said the experiment will be carried on for three months and possibly beyond that time depending upon its acceptance by the public. A close check will be made, he stated.

Mr. Halls said he believed this to be a suitable time of year to try the experiment as it will include the Christmas shopping period.

200 Farmers Meet Nov. 22

Pearson's Medicare Target of NDP

By GUY STANLEY

Dr. Ray Parkinson, New Democratic Party candidate for Vancouver Burrard, lashed out Tuesday at Prime Minister Pearson's medicare proposals and called for full implementation of the recommendations of the Hall Report on health services.

"Out of 200 recommendations contained in the report, Mr. Parkinson has picked only one of them," he said.

"Mr. Parkinson's plan hasn't changed anything as far as B.C. is concerned. We already have it," he said, referring to the provincial health plan.

As for research, Dr. Parkinson, a psychiatrist, charged that the United States spends more in Canada on medical research than Canada does.

"Canada is losing all its best brains in the medical fields," he said.

"Medicare is no good without the underpinnings of education and research."

Dr. Parkinson spoke to about 30 members of the University of Victoria's political science forum at noon and in the evening to a public meeting at 1316 Government Street.

At the night meeting, Len Stephenson, NDP candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich criticized the thinking of old-line parties.

"The department of national defence was willing to allow commercial race-track use of property at Colwood Corners but declined a recent request for use of some of this land for a community centennial recreational project."

The NDP candidate for Victoria, J. Lloyd Brereton, called for a new sense of national purpose in Canada.

"Tommy Douglas is the only leader who could generate this feeling across Canada."

"Once Canada had such a sense of purpose, the communal conflicts, such as between French and English-speaking Canada would fall away because there would be positive action we could all take part in."

Matron Shows Chewed Arm To Magistrate

It was police matron against German shepherd dog.

DISPLAYED ARM

And she displayed the chewed right forearm which told of the result of the match.

Mrs. Elverhoy was giving evidence during the trial of Robert and Rebecca Bowden, 1216 Oxford, who are charged with illegally registering bets.

STRUCK

The police matron had entered the house with Det. Douglas Grant, who the prosecution alleges was struck by Mr. Bowden after the officer had tried to seize a piece of paper from Mrs. Bowden.

Mrs. Elverhoy said she anticipated there was going to be a fight and went towards the rear of the house to let other police officers in.

HELD ON

She said as she tried to open the back door, the dog attacked her and kept hold of her arm until Mrs. Bowden came and removed the animal.

Diplomatic Exchange

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada and Ethiopia are to establish diplomatic relations, it was announced here. Canada plans to open an embassy in Addis Ababa, Ethiopian capital and headquarters of the Organization of African Unity. Names of officers for the new embassy were not announced.

The police matron later went to hospital for treatment.

Trial continues today.

Party sequel for Robert Edward Baldwin, RMCS St. Theresa, came in the form of $150 in fines and a one-year driving suspension.

Police said he crossed to the wrong side of Constance in Esquimalt Oct. 3, hit a parked car and continued for one block without stopping.

Baldwin, who pleaded guilty to driving while disqualified and leaving the scene of an accident, was stated to have told police he had just left a driveway following a party.

***

Kenneth George Morrison, 2832 Knotty Pine, Langford, was fined $100 for failing to remain at the scene after a rear-end collision at Burnside and Tillicum Sept. 17.

He pleaded guilty, was said to have explained he stopped a short distance past the accident, but thought he saw the other vehicle drive off.

Rossland Mayor Unsure of Act

ROSSLAND (CP)—Mayor Harold Elmes of Rossland says he feels the provincial government is trying to shift some of its responsibilities for unorganized territories to organized areas.

Mr. Elmes says he is still not sure about what is intended on some matters concerning financing. The B.C. Municipal Act has been amended to permit the grouping of municipalities for certain joint functions.

Lawsuit Loss By Newspaper

SEALHOFF (Reuters)—A newspaper was ordered Wednesday to pay the brother of the late Dag Hammarskjöld 10,000 crowns (about $2,000) damages for an article which said the former United Nations Secretary-General committed suicide by planting a bomb aboard his plane.

Christmas Holidays Identical

Christmas and New Year holidays at municipal halls in Victoria, Saanich, Esquimalt and Oak Bay will follow the pattern set by the provincial government, it was decided Wednesday at a meeting of the intermunicipal committee.

Christmas falls on a Saturday. Provincial and civil employees will be off work Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

On the New Year weekend they will be off Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

***

Appointment of a senior official to consult with civil employees' union leaders will be suggested to municipalities by the intermunicipal committee.

Topic will be the problem of superimposition of the forthcoming Canada Pension Plan on employee superannuation schemes.

***

A meeting will be set up to look over plans for the proposed new building for the family and children's court. Preparation of drawings was commissioned some time ago.

Approval of the principle of a sports stadium as an intermunicipal centennial project was tabled in view of the fact that a meeting is scheduled between University of Victoria and civil officials with regard to establishing the stadium on the campus.

Evening Walk Takes Days

MONTREAL (UPI)—"It was rather an embarrassing situation..."

With those words, experienced woodsman George Beta began to explain to rescuers how he, his wife, and their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Wolff and their three children got lost in the Laurentian hills, some 55 miles north of here.

What started as an after-dinner walk Thanksgiving Monday ended Wednesday morning, some 40 hours later, when a massive air and ground hunt finally spotted the two families—only five miles from their cabin. All were drenched but unharmed.

WANDERED AIMLESSLY

Pelted by rain by day, and with only a lighter as help against the night's below-freezing cold and scattered snow, they had wandered in aimless circles around a cabin they had used for eight years.

Radio-guided helicopters lifted out the lost seven, after they were spotted Wednesday morning in dense woods on the edge of Lac Pilon, eight miles north-east of Mont Rouland, a paper-mill community 55 miles north of Montreal.

WRONG TURN

It all started with a "20-minute stroll," Beta recounted to some of the 100 searchers who had been combing the woods since Tuesday.

"We had been hunting during the afternoon but didn't have any luck, so we took a gun along, just in case," he said. The two families took a wrong turn on an unfamiliar trail when they began to return to their cottage.

As night fell, they realized they were lost.

BUILD FIRE

"We built a fire with pine branches... and tucked the children with more branches," he said, explaining they believed it wiser to try to find their way out by daylight.

"But the next day it was raining... there was no sun to go by, and we had no compass.

"We wandered around... the walking was very hard on the little ones, as they didn't have proper shoes on. Shoes were our biggest problem. Only the men wore warm clothing and boots.

FIND CAVE

"On the second night we found a rocky cave and built a fire in front of it.

"And we shot a rabbit, so we had dinner. It was delicious. I never thought rabbit liver was as good as it was.

RESCUED

"Just after supper we heard a plane... we ran up a hill and lit a fire. The plane dipped its wings and then flew off.

"We knew we were being sought, because we heard sirens every so often."

Mr. Wolff said the children came through it all well and "they'll be back at school tomorrow."

Nuclear Blast Set for Oct. 27

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The defense department will detonate an underground nuclear explosion Oct. 27 at Amchitka Island close to the western end of Alaska's Aleutian chain.

Called Project Long Shot, the test is intended to provide information on the characteristics of seismic signals from underground nuclear explosions and to assist in discriminating between earthquakes and manmade disturbances.

Bedtime Survey

French Favor Frills, Germans Sleep Nude

PARIS (UPI)—If she's French, she probably doesn't sleep nude. She likes something frilly on her at night.

So says a survey made by the afternoon paper France Soir published here today in the wake of reports that German lingerie makers are up in arms because Greta doesn't wear anything in bed.

German nightgown makers are complaining because, they say, the average German woman's outlay on nightwear has dropped from the equivalent of $3.50 in 1953 to only $3.30 in 1964.

Not so in France, says "France Soir."

NIGHTGOWNS PLEASE

Here only one girl out of 15 sleeps nude. And those who cover up come out wholeheartedly in favor of the traditional nightgown rather than mannish pajamas.

In the land which produced the perfume which used to be Marilyn Monroe's only bedtime garb, French women spent a total of 169 million francs ($33,800,000) on nightgowns last year, "France Soir" said.

FRANK ABOUT IT

But they only spent a total of 64 million francs ($12,800,000) on pajamas, according to the paper.

Each little Josette laid out an average of 37.33 francs ($7.46) for bedclothes last year, a substantial $4.16 more than her German sister, the paper said.

SEX APPEAL

France Soir theorized that the girls do it for sex appeal here.

"The nightgown is their favorite because of its femininity," the survey said.

Marie Louise Angel, mother of a teenage daughter, put it this way.

"I buy about two nightgowns a year and I'm more tempted by the pretty ones than the practical ones," she said. "My sixteen and a half year old daughter prefers pajamas."

PAJAMA TOPS—ONLY

On the other hand, Myriam Donzeau has found a compromise. "Long live the pajama," she said. "... when it is warm, like now, I only wear the top. That's what I do."

PREFERS NOTHING

Speaking for the minority, Alberta Combier replied, "Nothing to sleep in. Any clothing which slows down my movements is out. I am nervous and wriggle around a lot."

Two Hurt, Traffic Blocked

Two women were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital after traffic-halting car-truck crash at Patricia Bay Highway and Royal Oak Avenue Wednesday. Both are in fair condition. Victims are sisters and were identified by

Saanich police as Mrs. Valentine Barnerman, 62, and Mrs. Nellie Cosgrove, 74, both of Calgary. Truck driver was identified as Merle S. Moore, 10061 Third Avenue, Sidney. (William E. John photos)

Baby Death 'Parental Negligence'

A coroner's jury found Wednesday that parental negligence caused the death of 15-year-old Carol Denise Charles, of Becher Bay Indian Reserve. Carol died of suffocation during the night of Oct. 1-2. Dr. Ross McNeeley, pathologist at Royal Jubilee Hospital, told the jury.

'Nematode Society' Bilks Homeowner

Two men collecting donations for the "Golden Nematode Society" bilked at least one Saanich resident of $5, a spokesman for the Better Business Bureau said Wednesday.

Two smooth talking men between 21 and 30 have been canvassing the Quadra area supposedly collecting funds for the farmers who have been hit by infestations of the golden nematode.

According to the Better Business Bureau no such organization exists, and assistance for farmers stricken by the worm will come from the federal government.

The pair asked a 50-year-old homeowner for $10 to help combat the "potato bug," but settled for $5.

A neighbor of the homeowner said the two men, both wearing raincoats — one man wore glasses — drove away in a light-colored convertible.

Saanich police are investigating.

Could modern jazz or even rock and roll replace Rock of Ages, as common fare in church music?

A panel of city clergymen will discuss the past, present and future of church music at a discussion in the lower hall of St. John's Church at 8:15 p.m. Friday.

Moderator will be Rodney Webster, and panelists will be Canon Graeme Baker of St. John's Church, Rev. Albert King of Metropolitan United, Rev. Samuel Parsons of Centennial United, Archdeacon C. E. F. Wolff of St. Luke's and Father Bullock of St. Andrew's Cathedral.

Thirty-two persons from nine different countries became Canadian citizens Wednesday at a ceremony before Judge Mon-tagne Tyrwhitt-Drake in Victoria Citizenship Court. They were formerly Danish, American, Chinese, Dutch, Italian, German, Hungarian, Ukrainian and Norwegian. Largest group, 10, was Chinese.

Dr. Neil Perry, newly-appointed deputy minister of education, will officially open Sooke school district's new Savory Elementary School at 8 p.m. Friday in the school on Granger Road off Goldstream Ave.

Teachers In Sooke Seek Raise

Teachers of Sooke School District Wednesday asked an average 9.2 per cent salary increase for 1966.

The request was made by a four-man teachers' negotiating committee headed by Wayne F. King.

Joe Miyazawa, labor relations officer for the B.C. School Trustees' Association, received the submission without rebuttal. Mr. Miyazawa is expected to present the school board's case at the next negotiations, Oct. 20.

On Tuesday in Victoria, teachers' spokesman Gerald Guest asked an average 10 per cent salary increase next year, plus increases for supervisors. Saanich teachers last week sought a seven per cent salary boost, and supervisors' increases.

All three boards are studying submissions of their teachers before getting down to hard bargaining.

Mr. Miyazawa is representing the three boards and will argue for identical contract conditions in all three districts.

'A Matter for Art Lovers'

Purchase and restoration of Emily Carr's birthplace at 207 Government is a matter for art lovers across the country, says a member of the Intermunicipal committee.

There must be hundreds of devoted Carr fans who would be happy to contribute to a shrine for one of Canada's great artists, said Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis.

ART LOVERS

This is not a matter for the Greater Victoria municipalities, but for art lovers everywhere, he said.

The reeve made the statements following a request by the Victoria Historic Building Foundation for a $15,000 grant to buy the building. The federal government is reported willing to match the grant.

EASIER

"At one time societies would have appealed for public contributions," said the reeve. "Now it seems to be easier to go to a government. Things are not the way they used to be."

He said the society will be asked to conduct an appeal, possibly on a national basis.

Ellen Hart, chairman of the historic sites committee of the Women's University Club, said the Carr birthplace is the more important of two homes occupied here by the artist.

THREE OTHERS

"In addition, it is a fine example of mid-Victorian domestic architecture and members of her family lived there until the 1930s," Miss Hart said.

Her committee also wants three other Victoria houses to become historic monuments. They are:

The former residence of the Hudson's Bay company chief trader at 2564 Heron, believed the oldest dwelling still standing in Victoria;

FORCED CLOSURE
All liquor outlets in Victoria were forced to close while a scant 2,773-13.23 per cent of the eligible electorate and the smallest voter turnout in the city's history — made their choice of one alderman.

Mr. Burger said the close-down was ridiculous when so few turned out at the polls.

NO SALES

The August byelection, he estimated, cost beer parlors $12,000 in sales. In addition, they were forced to pay hundreds of dollars in wages for work not done.

The local hotelmen's protests will form a resolution to the annual conference of the B.C. Hotels Association being held in Vancouver later this month.

RESOLUTIONS

Also approved at a meeting of local members Wednesday was a resolution calling for reduction of ferry fares between the Island and mainland, which the hotelmen say is deterring many mainlanders from making the trip to Victoria.

Another measure is for the provincial government to introduce minimum standards to apply to commercial development within and outside municipal boundaries.

The hotelmen claim many of the buildings are eyesores, citing auto junk yards and a furniture factory near Victoria, and harmful to the area's appeal.

RIVERSIDE, Conn.—Dr. Harold F. Davis, noted Nova Scotia-born research chemist, died at his home here aged 76. Davis held many patents and was the author of numerous scientific papers.

Hotel, Motel Industry

Success Rests With Personnel

Obsolete people, rather than technical difficulties or out-worn equipment, are often responsible for failure in the hotel and motel industries, proprietors and managers of B.C. guest houses were told Wednesday.

Speaking here at the first annual hotel and motel seminar, staged by the tourist group of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, J. Ray Corbett, managing director of the B.C. Hotel Association, stressed leadership all the way.

Poor information and obsolete management practices are often to blame for lack of success, he said.

INTANGIBLES

Guest comfort, courtesy and equipment renewal are undoubtedly important factors, he said, but often too much importance is placed on material things and not enough on the intangibles of good leadership.

The leader, rather than the autocratic manager, is a man who realizes he is part of a team, a man who can delegate authority and a man who gets the most out of staff by understanding rather than fear.

POSITIVE APPROACH

Mr. Corbett drew comparisons between the "autocratic manager" who said, "I" and

"Go" and the "leader" who used "We" and "Let's Go."

He said the emphasis had shifted from motivating employees by fear in the form of threats and punishment to one of offering positive incentives and changing basic attitudes.

GOOD HOSTS

On a similar theme, E. Schmutz, of the provincial department of education, said in the accommodations industry he felt it essential to imbue all staff members with the predicate "good host".

"On being a good host" was subject of one of the panel sessions. The other asked, "What about profits?"

ANNUAL MEETINGS

Kenneth King was chairman at the Empress Hotel convention luncheon at which Mr. Corbett was speaker. Earlier in the day delegates were welcomed by the chamber vice-president Courtney Haddock after which annual meetings were held of the B.C. Hotel Association and the B.C. Motel Association.

A panel session was held in the afternoon. Ed Lum, of Saanich, was chairman.

Dr. D. B. Turner, deputy minister, department of recreation and conservation, was evening speaker at the banquet at which Mr. Lum was in the chair.

this is the way
we "weigh" your baggage now on all our North American flights!

We carry these two, free, whatever they weigh!

You carry this one!

This 3-suitcase is about the size of one of the cases you may take free of charge on your trip. The rule to remember here is that the total outside dimension (combined length, width and height) must not exceed 82".

The second bag must not measure more than 55" in total outside size to earn a free trip. You'll find that most 2-piece suitcases fall within this size restriction.

Attache and make-up cases typify this third piece of free baggage. Maximum total outside dimensions may not exceed 45" and the case must be placed at the passenger's feet. Handbags, cameras and other small articles may still be carried.

Good news for air travellers! Now the three pieces of baggage each passenger may take on a trip free of charge are not weighed—it's the overall size that counts! This rule applies as well to those rather sizable accordion-type flight bags and to military-type duffel or dunnage bags which exceed the overall 62" maximum. But, under these circumstances, only one other case (maximum 45" total outside size) will be allowed free and must be placed at the passenger's feet. (Extra and oversize baggage will be assessed a modest charge.) Incidentally, all articles over 80" in total outside dimensions must be shipped as Air Freight. The exceptions to this would be sporting equipment, live animals and containers or the duffel-type bags mentioned previously. One other important point to keep in mind is this: if your final destination is outside North America, your baggage will still be weighed... 44 lbs. Economy... 66 lbs. First Class. Any questions? CRAWFORDVILLE, Ga. (AP)—A civil rights photographer who was attacked by a Ku Klux Klansman was held in jail Wednesday on $500 bond on a charge of possessing fireworks. The Klansman, charged with assault, was free on $100 bond.

The victim of the fist-swinging attack is Brig. Cade, who works for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. State police said Cade had a firecracker when taken into custody. Georgia law makes possession of fireworks illegal.

Klansman Cecil Myers of Athens, Ga., who chased the photographer and tackled him Tuesday, left town with his companion, Joseph Howard Sims, also of Athens. The two men were indicted, tried and acquitted of murder last year in the shotgun killing of a Negro educationist near Colberg, Ga.

"I asked them to leave town," said W. E. Watson, chairman of the county commission. The couple were not on the scene today when 15 Negro pupils tried again to block school buses carrying white children to other counties.

Ship Termed Unstable

MONTREAL (CP)—A counsel for the transport department said Wednesday the freighter Fort William, which sank last month in Montreal harbor with the loss of five lives, had insufficient stability.

Kenneth C. MacKay made

CALGARY (CP) — Three Revelstoke railway union locals Wednesday said the Canadian Pacific Railway has embarked on a policy to discourage passenger traffic.

The remarks came at a Board of Transport commissioners' hearing into a CPR bid to cancel its Dominion passenger train. Hearings have been held in Vancouver and Winnipeg.

Unions represented were the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

W. S. King, representative for the firemen and enginemen, said a Dominion train left Vancouver Sept. 7 with only two coaches and a baggage car. Passengers were not able to get meals until the train arrived in Field, B.C., some 22 hours later.

CPR Policy Disputed

Earlier, Mayor Grant MacEwan of Calgary said the CPR, because of an 1880 contract with the federal government, has a moral obligation to continue its Dominion passenger service.

In the contract the government gave the CPR a $25,000,000 subsidy and a 25,000,000-acre land grant to ensure adequate service.

Year in Office

Wilson's Rating Climbs

By ARTHUR L. GAVSIRON

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson, the tough little Yorkshireman, begins his second year in office Saturday with a fragile grip on parliamentary power but with his national rating high.

He has led near - bankrupt Britain within sight of solvency and begun modernizing many hallowed but hoary institutions and practices.

On the other hand his nation still is in the red in world trade. The Labor government has retreated on big principles, at least temporarily, arousing controversy, criticism and confusion at home and abroad.

MARGIN MAY NAG

In the 630-member House of Commons Labor's overall margin soon may sag to a single vote when a Speaker has to be elected. This would compare with a margin of five after last year's election.

Yet the pollsters report Wilson is on the up-and-up, with an edge over Edward Heath's Conservatives ranging from 3.7 to 7.5 per cent. If this lead were reflected in an election it would substantially boost Labor's parliamentary margin.

In the last year, Wilson's government has survived setbacks after setbacks both inside and outside Parliament. Dominating all was his administration's fight to save the pound sterling from devaluation. That battle has been won, at least for the time being, but it has meant higher taxes, curbs on personal and national spending and the deferment of some promised socialist reforms.

CONVINCED BRITONS

Wilson has seemingly convinced many Britons that the blame for these troubles lies not with him but with his Conservative predecessors.

"But now we can go forward," he claimed at the annual convention of the Labor party in Blackpool last month.

Wilson owes his survival to a combination of political brinkmanship and government with resolution. Even opponents acknowledge his performance has at times been shrewd, skilful, masterly.

PUBLIC NOTICE INVITATION FOR PROPOSALS LOW RENTAL HOTEL ACCOMMODATION CONCESSION BANFF AND JASPER TOWNSITES

The Natural and Historic Resources Branch of the Department of Northern Affairs and Natural Resources invites proposals on the development of low rental hostelry-type accommodation on Lots 4 to 7, inclusive, in Block 38, in Banff Townsite, and Lots 9 to 14, inclusive, in Block 31, in Jasper Townsite, for the accommodation of persons required by reason of their employment or nature of their business to live in the park. Proposals will be accepted by the Superintendent of the respective parks up to twelve o'clock noon on Tuesday, November 30, 1965.

The concessions will be awarded to the tenderers submitting the most satisfactory proposal in respect of: rates to be charged the tenants; type and quality of accommodation including suitability of design; proposed type and quality of furnishings and equipment to be provided; number of units of accommodation to be provided; proposed schedule of construction; best use of site including parking and landscaping; architectural suitability; economic feasibility; demonstrated ability to finance and manage the concession; proposed rates of annual ground rental rate; and proposed concession fee based on a percentage of gross annual receipts from all sales and services. Great emphasis is being placed on the proposed rates to be charged the tenants and the type and quality of the proposed hotel and its furnishings. The highest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

Particulars concerning the sites, tender documents, development brochures, the conditions to be complied with, the terms of the lease to be granted and the basis on which the concessions will be awarded must be obtained from the Superintendent of the respective park for which the proposal is intended at the following address:
The General Superintendent,
Banff National Park,
Banff, Alberta.
The Superintendent,
Jasper National Park,
Jasper, Alberta.

No proposal will be considered unless accompanied by all the information stipulated in the conditions under which the concession will be awarded. Each tender must be accompanied by a deposit of $1,000 in the form of an accepted cheque, money order or draft made payable to the Receiver-General of Canada.

SWEET and SOUR SPARERIBS

3 1/2 lb. lean spareribs, in 2" squares
2 large onions, sliced
1/3 cup brown sugar, packed
1/2 cup vinegar
1 tablespoon soy sauce
2/3 cup canned pineapple juice
1/2 cup water
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon water
Hot fluffy rice.

Pre-heat broiler 10 minutes, or as manufacturer directs. Place spareribs close together in broiler pan; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Broil, turning once, until deep brown on both sides. Place onions in Dutch oven or kettle with 2 tablespoons pork fat from broiler pan; saute 2 minutes; add brown sugar, vinegar, soy sauce, pineapple juice, 1/2-cup water, salt, pepper and ribs. Cover; simmer over low heat 2 hours. Remove ribs; thicken sauce in saucepan with corn starch dissolved in 1 tablespoon cold water; replace ribs in sauce. Serve at once over hot fluffy rice. Makes 6 servings.
TO VARY: Add 1 cup drained canned pineapple chunks.

PANFORTE DI SIENNA (Sweet Meat from Siena)

1/2 cup honey
1/2 cup sifted all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons cocoa
1 tablespoon cinnamon

2 tablespoons diced citron
3/4 cup toasted, shelled almonds
1 1/4 cups toasted, shelled filberts
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
Confectioner's sugar

Start heating oven to 275° F. Butter 10" pie plate. In saucepan, combine sugar and honey; cook over low heat 15 minutes, stirring constantly. Sift flour, cocoa, cinnamon; stir into honey mixture. Stir in preserved fruit, citron, nuts and orange rind. Quickly turn mixture into pie plate. Bake 30 minutes or until firm. Cool. Dust thickly with confectioner's sugar. Cut into pie-shaped wedges. Serve as dessert or candy. Makes 12 servings.

Price Index Falls West Coast Rises

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer prices rose in Toronto and Vancouver during the period that the all-Canada index fell three-tenths of a point last month, the bureau of statistics reported Wednesday.

It also reported consumer prices remained steady in Edmonton and Calgary and dropped in other principal centres, especially in the Atlantic provinces and Montreal.

The bureau's index is based on 1949 prices equalling 100—except for St. John's, Nfld., where the base year is 1951, two years after Newfoundland joined Confederation.

The all-Canada index, measuring prices for about 300 goods and services most prominent in the family spending of lower-to-middle income urban dwellers, eased off to 139.1 for September from 139.4 for August. It had been at an all-time peak of 139.5 in July.

The bureau's indexes for major cities reflects changes in prices within the city areas concerned. They do not indicate whether it is cheaper to live in one city than another.

INDEX ROSE

The index for Toronto rose to 141.1 from 140.5 and for Vancouver it rose to 135.8 from 135.5 between August and September. It remained unchanged at 130.9 for Edmonton and Calgary, taken by the bureau as one city for purposes of the index.

The bureau said that in both Toronto and Vancouver, the indexes for food, housing, clothing, transportation and health and personal care rose. Prices of recreation and reading materials were lower. They were unchanged for tobacco and alcohol.

Fall from Bed Causes Death

BECHUANALAND is bounded by the Republic of South Africa, Southwest Africa, Zambia at the northern tip and Rhodesia and has a population of about 540,000, including some 3,000 whites.

Britain agreed to a constitution for a form of internal self-government for Bechuanaland which came into force this year.

ST. BERNARD, Que. (CP)—District coroner Dr. Paul A. Tailon of St. Malachie rendered a verdict of accidental death following a freakish accident that took the life of 24-year-old Fernand Morin in this community 30 miles south of Quebec City. Morin was killed when he fell out of his bed and fractured his skull.

Missing Planes Spur Search Across Prairies

By The Canadian Press

Efforts continued Wednesday to locate three aircraft missing in separate incidents across the Prairies.

In Alberta a search for an aircraft missing since Oct. 9 with two Americans aboard was hampered by low-lying clouds.

The clouds are below the mountain tops and have prevented expansion of the search to the west and north, said Flt. Lt. Jack Girard, assistant search master.

TWO ABOARD

The missing Mooney Mark 20 single-engine plane, carried George Moore, 43, the pilot, and Eugene Ringe, 42, both of Bellevue, Wash., on a 475-mile trip from Bellevue to Calgary.

The search area has generally covered south-eastern British Columbia and south-western Alberta. The last contact was with Kimberley, B.C., airport control tower, 120 miles south-west of Calgary, Oct. 9.

In Saskatchewan, a search was started Wednesday for two men missing on a flight from Glentworth, Sask., to Sioux City, Iowa.

RCAP said the plane left Glentworth, 133 miles south-east of Moose Jaw, in the morning and failed to arrive at its destination 3½ hours later.

The RCAP said the two persons aboard the plane were believed to be Americans but their names were not released.

A description of the plane was not available.

In Manitoba eight planes were searching Wednesday for a float-equipped Norseman aircraft which disappeared Monday on a 20-mile flight, 300 miles north of Winnipeg.

The plane carried only the pilot, who name was withheld.

The Northland Airlines plane was flying from Angling Lake to Savage Island on Island Lake and took off in overcast weather with intermittent snow showers.

Northland carried out a search with another float-equipped plane and informed the RCAP rescue co-ordination centre at Winnipeg that no clues were found.

The plane carried a radio and survival equipment.

Harvest of Fashion

Suits and 'At Home' Wear Featured at Alumnae Show

Suits and versatile jacket dresses shared the spotlight Wednesday afternoon at the Harvest of Fashion show presented by the Alumnae Association of the Royal Jubilee Hospital School of Nursing in the Nurses' Residence.

A three-piece ensemble in blue knit featuring a Chanel jacket with Chelsea collar worn over a shell blouse and skirt in peacock blue was only one of a number of smart costumes from Jack Burgess Men's and Ladies' Wear, modelled at the show.

An excellent choice for business wear was the dress-maker suit in green and black knitted tweed. Just the outfit for afternoon dress-up was the empire line jacket dress in primrose yellow knit.

Another popular choice was a Paris import in poinsettia blue and green jacquard. Worn over the jeweled-neckline sheath was a matching jacket styled with a shawl collar.

Hollywood inspired was the wrap-around coat in white brush wool with hat to match. Also among the several fall coats modelled was a sophisticated black pincord coat complete with wedding band collar of black dyed muskrat fur. So right for Victoria winters was the smartly styled raincoat in navy blue poplin and featuring a "zip-in" cosy Borg lining.

Several "at home" ensembles still much in the fashion news were modelled during the second half of the show. Making a special hit was the rajah suit in silver brocade and featuring bell-bottomed trousers. The American Beauty velvet geisha coat, with mandarin collar, worn over a matching slipper-length skirt featuring "daring" side slits was designed for that special evening at home.

Proceeds of the show, which was commented by Jack Burgess, are slated for Alumnae bursary. Mrs. R. Bolt, president, welcomed the guests and conveners were Mrs. C. M. White and Mrs. R. Eldridge.

Modelling were Mrs. F. W. Benton, Mrs. G. B. Page, Mrs. D. A. Straith, Mrs. C. M. Nicholson, Mrs. Eldridge and the Misses Marlene Parfitt, Margaret Plunkett and Betty Chorlton.

Hairstyles were by Marge Beauty Studio.

No Pointed Toes This Season

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP)—Look at your shoes. If they're sharply pointed with high, slim heels you're out of style.

If they have an oval toe, a set-back heel, opened-up styling or perhaps a high-riding strap or buckle you're in step.

If the toes are shaved and squarish and the heels low and thick you're avant garde.

This is the fashion picture from experts on Canadian and European shoes. Shorter skirts and textured nylons have accelerated the shift away from the needlepoint toe, they say.

"We're moving into the wider toe and the thicker heel but we're doing it through evolution, not revolution," says Beth Hammond of the Shoe Information Bureau, which represents 90 per cent of the Canadian shoe industry. "We don't want to outdate every shoe in a woman's closet."

Mrs. Hammond says the fashion-conscious woman won't wear a pointed toe this season unless it's late day. "Even then it will be a medium toe and not the old pointed toe."

Not everyone agrees that the new styles are attractive. Some experts feel the chunky look emanating from Italy and France is feminine but others say it's not ladylike.

The shoe people seem to agree that the French are still leading the way in shoe styling. But this doesn't mean you have to buy shoes made in Europe to be in fashion.

"The newest shoe styles are available in Canadian shoes, and Canadian leathers are among the finest in the world in color and quality," says Mrs. Hammond. "Today Canadian shoe manufacturers and retailers travel everywhere for ideas and adapt them to the Canadian market."

IMPORTS MODIFIED
Even imported shoes are likely to be modified for the Canadian market. The dealers here say they buy their European shoes directly from factories in Italy, France and Spain, but not from samples.

The pointed look is out in the latest shoe styles. Lower, thicker heels are also news. These Canadian-made casual shoes are, left, a low cut sandal with double insole straps in pale yellow leather and a variation with a four-eyelet ghillie tie in oyster and black.—(CP Photo)

Changes are suggested in color, the leather or the patterns before they are ordered for sale in Canada.

Asked what the differences are between European-inspired Canadian shoes and European-made shoes that have been adapted to the Canadian market, Mrs. Hammond says:

"Canadian shoes fit better than European shoes. In 95 per cent of the world's nations, shoes are available in only one width and a few sizes but Canadian manufacturers make shoes in nearly 300 different sizes and widths."

The dealers in European imports agree that Canadian shoes fit better but say their customers are more interested in fashion than fit.

Retailers here say they often solve the problem of fit by having the shoes made up in Europe in Canadian sizes and lasts. They maintain the end product is then superior because cheaper labor makes hand craftsmanship and intricate detailing possible at lower prices.

Everyone agreed that the most popular heights in winter boots will be mid-calf or below-calf. The taller boot will still be around this year with elasticized topline to keep it closer to the leg. Some will show spats effects, two texture combinations, the quilted look, fake fur or novelty prints.

Sound Sleep Necessary For Health and Looks

By EVELYN FORBES

The London Sunday Times

Words such as stress, strain and insomnia are too often on our lips today and it is reported that there is a tremendous increase in the making of sleeping pills and tranquilizers.

Overworked doctors are not without blame in this. It is often easier and quicker to prescribe sedatives than to listen to the possibly long story of how the conditions arose.

Unfortunately, the sedatives prescribed for insomnia harm the looks. I can almost always tell when a woman is taking sleeping pills regularly. There is a grey tinge to the skin and sagging muscles.

Sound sleep is necessary to health and looks — an average for a woman in normal health is 50 hours a week—and if it is a question of insomnia or sleeping pills, pills are the better of the two evils. Before becoming a pill addict, however, for the sake of your looks, try some of the other simpler and safer methods.

To begin with, do not jump to the conclusion that you are suffering from insomnia when you have an occasional sleepless night. Most of us tend to be too worried about this, and as the hours tick by and the clock chimes two, three or four, we begin to fret about how dreadful we shall look in the morning. How difficult it will be to get through the day ahead, and so on. But actually one completely sleepless night makes very little difference to the looks. It is worrying about it that makes one look drawn and haggard.

The thing to do is to relax and enjoy it. Make yourself a comforting warm drink, or a tempting snack. Arrange the pillows comfortably and settle down to read an amusing book. The chances are that you will be asleep in no time but even if you are not, the thing to do is to tell yourself how wonderful it is to have these extra hours to read and relax.

When sleep refuses to come night after night, however, something must be done about it. Assuming that the room is airy, the bed is comfortable and the bedclothes not too heavy, lack of sleep is most frequently caused by a too active or over-stimulated brain or by tension, physical or mental; occasionally, by a mild form of indigestion caused by a too late or too heavy meal.

A too-active brain can be slowed by spending the last hour before sleeping by listening to music, taking the dog for a walk, reading a not too exciting book or in bedroom-putter.

Now making their home in Edmonton, Alta., are Mr. and Mrs. Delfin Adolph Bulman, pictured following their recent marriage in St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church. ## Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a woman who decided the day my daughter became a mother that I would never interfere with her in any way, and above all that I would never tell her how to raise her children. Something has come up now and I'm finding it difficult to keep quiet. Please advise me because this may be a matter of life and death.

Yesterday while we were having coffee I asked my daughter where the three-year-old was. It seemed very quiet in the youngster's room. "Oh, Martha is playing in the bathtub," was the answer.

I was horrified that my daughter would leave such a small child alone in the tub. I went to see what was going on. There was Martha, having a great time with her rubber toys and celluloid boat. My daughter said, "See, she's perfectly fine." Ann, it takes only a few seconds for a tragedy to occur and I am worried sick that something might happen. What is your opinion? — PANICKY GRANNY.

Dear Granny: No child under seven years of age should be left alone to play in a bathtub. Many people do not know that a child can drown in a few inches of water if he falls face first. I urge you to call this to your daughter's attention. This is not interference.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl who will be 17 very soon. My problem is that I am going with a boy who isn't 16 yet. I am not old enough to think seriously about any boy and I know it. Les and I are just good friends, but the kids in my crowd have really been piling it on. When one of my girl friends heard Les and I were going to the band concert together, she said, "You ought to charge his mother 50¢ an hour for baby sitting."

I asked my parents if they thought it was wrong for me to go with a boy who is a year and a half younger than I am and they said it is up to me to decide. Please, Ann, tell me what is your opinion? I like Les a lot.

Veterans' Hospital WA Raises $4,046 in Year

The annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Veterans' Hospital took place recently with Mrs. H. F. Jarvis presiding.

The annual coffee party and the Dogwood Festival were very successful affairs.

The Dogwood Crafts committee made and sold many articles. Three thousand visits to patients were made, taking small comforts to each patient. Monthly birthday parties for patients were held, and library books and magazines distributed weekly.

The membership convener reported 97 members.

The treasurer's report showed receipts of $4,046.90. From this amount $1,131.07 was used for special equipment for the hospital. The sum of $1,385.39 was spent for comforts and entertainment for patients.

Officers are: Honorary president, Mrs. George Parkes; president, Mrs. F. R. Roberts; first vice-president, Mrs. Helen Phillip; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. B. B. Bowen; treasurer, Mrs. H. F. Jarvis; recording secretary, Miss Dorothy Crighton; and corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. Finkow.

Special guests at the meeting were: Brig. John Adams, district administrator of veterans' affairs; hospital chaplain, Rev. Douglas Kendall; Dr. H. F. Cooke, chief of staff of hospital; Mrs. E. D. Farmer of Red Cross Lodge; Mrs. H. W. Hicks, president of Golden Key Women's Auxiliary to the Multiple Sclerosis Society; and Mrs. K. Bradley, dietitian at the hospital.

Mrs. Jarvis welcomed the guests and, after a brief report of her work, thanked the members for their co-operation. She then introduced the in-coming executive. Padre Kendall gave the benediction after which the meeting adjourned. Tea was served in the Pavilion Lounge where Mrs. S. T. Sehl and Mrs. H. F. Jarvis presided at the flower-decked table.

Kashmiri Fight Continues

NEW DELHI (AP) — India claimed Wednesday its troops killed 95 Pakistanis in major fighting that threatened to shatter the United Nations ceasefire in Kashmir.

The development was reported shortly after New Delhi announced Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri had travelled secretly to the western front and warned his army Pakistan is threatening "wider conflagration and a bigger war."

BLOODY BATTLE

Fighting in Kashmir was the bloodiest reported since Sept. 23 when India and Pakistan ostensibly agreed to a ceasefire under UN auspices after 22 days all-out conflict.

The Indian version was that the Pakistanis launched a "massive attack" by more than a battalion—at least 600 men—on Indian positions in west central Kashmir Monday morning.

BLOODY TENSE

Other sections of the 1,500-mile ceasefire line, part of which was established in 1949 and the rest last month, were reported tense and bloody.

The Indians said Pakistanis were firing artillery and mortars in Naushera and Jhangar sectors. There apparently also was fighting on the western front, south of Kashmir.

ESCALATION

Meanwhile in Karachi, Pakistan claimed to have halted an Indian Air Force-backed brigade attack Tuesday on the post of Ghoratru, in the Rajasthan sector.

He said "this shows that the Indians are prepared to escalate the fighting to regain lost territory."

Introducing the tuned car. 1966 Buick.

What makes a car a car is styling, performance, braking and ride and handling. Only when they're all tuned together is the car a Buick.

We tuned the 1966 Buick. Not just the engine, but the whole car. We tuned all the elements. Like you would the instruments in an orchestra. And just as the tuned orchestra gives the effect of one-piece, the tuned car says blended perfection from bumper to bumper and road-line to roof-line.

Tuned Performance. We tuned Buick performance. Not just by increasing the efficiency of the six Buick engines, but by tuning everything that translates this power into activity. The transmission, the full coil suspension, the balanced drive-shaft, the brakes. All working together. All tuned.

Tuned Ride. We tuned the traditional Buick ride. And came up with something unique. Boulevard comfort with enough road-feel to let you know you're in charge. We added extra jolt-cushioning rubber to places that get a lot of pounding. And to make you more comfortable, we added more sound-deadening insulation. The result is a very special kind of ride. A tuned ride.

Tuned Styling. We even tuned the way Buick looks. Possible? Look at any one of the Buicks. Every sweeping line and gentle curve suggests motion. Inside and out, the car has been designed to move. And to say so. Quietly. But emphatically. That's tuned styling.

Drive the 1966 Buick. Riviera, Electra 225, Wildcat, LeSabre, Skylark or Special Deluxe. They're all Buicks. All tuned cars. All tuned to you. Wouldn't you really rather have a Buick?

Defendant Begs for Life And 'Chance to Serve'

SEATTLE (AP)—In a dramatic, personal appeal, Antonio Nathaniel Wheat of Chicago stood before a superior court jury Wednesday and begged for his life.

Wheat and Arthur Aiken, 20, each are charged with three counts of first-degree murder in the robbery-slayings of three Seattle-area service station attendants last spring.

The pair are airmen stationed at Paine Air Force Base near Everett, Wash.

"Give me that all-important one chance to rectify my mistake," Wheat asked the jury.

"I put myself on my knees and ask no more than a chance to put my life to a good use if I'm permitted to live."

Wheat had asked permission to address the jury without having to take the witness stand.

Judge William Wilkins granted the request after reading the statement, but told Wheat if he deviated from the statement he would have to testify.

MEMORIZED

The airman committed the statement to memory.

"I would like to give whatever portion of my life I can to serving humanity . . . I can only do that if I am permitted to live," he said.

Washington juries must choose between life in prison or death by hanging if they find a defendant guilty.

Wheat was followed by his weeping attorney who told the jurors his client had "forcefully demonstrated to me that no matter what the position of the body, the soul—the soul can be on its knees."

Aiken's attorneys declined to allow their client to make a statement.

Both defendants pleaded innocent.

Owen Fair, 55, was shot five times on March 26. Daniel Wolf, 19, was shot twice on April 12. Testimony showed the fatal bullets struck him as he prayed on his knees. James Harp, 22, was shot three times just 12 days later.

Nurse Parker

Novelist, Inventor Too

Nurse Dies, 86

Funeral services will be held today for Nursing Sister Eleanor Parker who died suddenly in Sandringham Private Hospital Sunday.

Miss Parker, 86, of 2493 Eastdowne, was a novelist and inventor as well as nurse during her long career.

OVERSEAS

Born in Britain, she graduated from Winnipeg General Hospital and in 1910 joined the first contingent of the Canadian Army Medical Corps as a nursing sister.

She served overseas during the First World War with the 2nd Canadian General Hospital near Dieppe.

Her two novels, The Land Lay Waiting and The Flower of the Land relate her overseas experiences.

Letters from Sir Winston Churchill, King George V and President Charles De Gaulle congratulating her on these works will be turned over to provincial archivist Willard Ireland.

RARE MEDAL

She was in France when the first gas cases came in from Vimy and the Somme and was with the First Canadian Division in the Battle of Mons, receiving the Mons Star, one of few awarded to women.

Inventions included a magnetic detector, fore runner of radar, used by the British government.

SUEVIVORS IN U.K.

Miss Parker was a member of the Red Chevrons, the Canadian Overseas Nursing Sisters' Association and the John O'London Literary Association.

She is survived by relatives in London and Bognor, Sussex. Funeral services will be held at 3:15 p.m. in McCall Brothers Floral Chapel, Canon Frederick Pike officiating.

Author Amy Wilson Dies

Amy V. Wilson, author of the book No Man Stands Alone describing her adventures as a northland nurse, died Wednesday in Olds, Alta.

The book was published recently by Gray's Publishing of Sidney.

Miss Wilson, who was in her 50s, was born of a pioneer family and received her training as a nurse in Calgary.

CAREER IN NORTH

Her book is an account of her career in the Yukon and Northwest Territories which she covered by canoe, dogsled, car, plane and horseback.

It tells of the interdependence of the people of the north, the hardships she faced in servicing the vast area of her territory.

"A sordid story! Perhaps I was," she wrote. "But certainly the great north boasted many of them. White people, Indians—the ham radio operators, the Mounted Police, the RCAF and countless others ready to extend a helping hand."

'ONE OF GREAT ONES'

The book's publisher, Gray Campbell of Victoria, said the book is selling "extraordinarily well."

"This is because she was one of the great Canadians, so many people knew her, especially throughout the north," he said. "I'm just sorry she's not around to read all the nice reviews she's been getting."

Mr. Campbell said she had planned to write other autobiographical books and intended to come to Victoria to work on them this winter.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Arthritis costs the U.S. economy more than $1,000,000,000 a year and cripples more in low-income families than in other groups, the U.S. public health service reports. There are estimated 15,000,000 Americans with arthritis.

Togo Layman Speaks To Council

VATICAN CITY (AP) — An African, the first Negro layman ever to address a Roman Catholic general council, told the assembled prelates of his church today that men are becoming more and more impatient with racial inequality.

Eusebe Adjakpley of Togo, African regional secretary of the International Catholic Youth Federation, addressed the Vatican ecumenical council as it completed debate on its missionary scheme (draft) document and voted its preliminary approval.

He is one of 57 Roman Catholic laymen admitted to the council as observers. They occasionally have been permitted to express their views to the council on specific subjects affecting laymen.

Federal Grants Asked for Road

TERRACE (CP) — Frank Howard, New Democratic Party candidate in Skeena, in a letter to Resources Minister Laing, has asked for federal grants to complete the Stewart-Cassiar road.

Mr. Howard said the Liberal candidate in Skeena, Arthur Baines, recently publicly agreed Ottawa should share the cost of the remainder of the road, about half of which has been built at a cost of $15,000,000. However, he said, the government so far has not relaxed its no-grant policy. He said the road is vital to open up the north of B.C.

Federalists

National Defence Queried

Canada should abolish its Department of National Defence and substitute for it a Department for United Nations Co-operation, said Ian Arrol, freelance writer, at a meeting Tuesday night of the Victoria branch of the World Federalists of Canada.

"The reason why the world is equipped to destroy itself can be summed up in one sentence: POLICE DUTIES."

"People believe that until such time as we have an agreement on world disarmament and on a plan for the UN to take over police duties for the world, we have to keep our defences strong."

"All nations," said Mr. Arrol, "act on that premise; all nations remain armed."

DEADLOCK
He said the deadlock could be broken if one nation, "regardless of the actions of other nations," gives up the right to use its armed forces.

"I suggest Canada be that nation and I suggest that if Canada were to be that nation, it might well become the most powerful nation on the face of the earth—'acting' for peace, instead of talking about it."

A CAUSE
Canadians are looking for a cause, said Mr. Arrol.

"Why could not this be our cause, our way of asserting ourselves nationally in the service of an ideal that would go beyond our own national boundaries?"

NIGHTMARE
Fear of invasion, he said, is a nightmare of our own creation. "The Communist countries cannot even handle their 'own.'"

The speaker said many individuals in the United States, as throughout the world, would welcome a middle-power initiative in league with the growing moral force of mankind.

WORKSHOP TRAINING
Mr. Arrol said the proposed Department for U.N. Co-operation could work with the UN to set up schemes of workshop training in Canada for underdeveloped nations, could originate mutual inspection teams for Arctic security and could offer its military for world policing duties.

A World Federalist committee is to be established in Victoria under the chairmanship of Mr. Arrol to prepare a study paper on the proposal for submission to all 2,000 members in Canada for discussion.

OUTLINE PLAN
On Nov. 13 at Royal Roads Tri-Services College, Mr. Arrol will outline his plan at the annual seminar of the Greater Victoria Social Studies Teachers Association.

Other meetings are being arranged with service and religious groups.

Competition Trail Ride To Be Held

A competition trail ride will be held Sunday at the Metchoan Equestrian Centre, 743 Pearu Road.

The ride starts at 11 a.m. with entrants departing at three-minute intervals, and will take approximately two hours to complete.

Judges will be stationed along the trail to assess horse and rider's skill at handling natural obstacles.

Horses will be judged on condition before and after the ride. The competition will be open to riders in senior and junior divisions.

A turkey supper will be included in the entry fee.

Sailors Refuse Viet Nam Trip

KOBE (AP) — A British freighter loaded with 4,000 tons of relief goods for South Viet Nam delayed in departure from here after 36 Indian seamen walked off the ship. Agents for the 10,000-ton London Craftsman said the Indians refused to go to South Viet Nam because of the fighting there and Indian consuls were unsuccessful in efforts to talk the men into manning the vessel. It is loaded with grain and foodstuffs.

Indian Program Probed

By GERARD McNEIL
OTTAWA (CP)—The government's Indian affairs branch says poverty, inertia and hopelessness prevail among inhabitants of Indian reserves and it blames itself for this unhappy state of affairs.

In a brutally frank self-assessment, the branch admits that its past approaches have "tended to emasculate development work at the community level."

NEW MEASURES

Now it plans sweeping new measures under which the country will provide the tools and, the branch hopes, the Indians will do the job, in a program aimed at infusing reserves with community spirit. The self-assessment says the current situation in many areas is reflected in statistics on Indian mortality and crime rates, school drop-outs and living standards.

UMBILICAL CORD

Despite notable exceptions like Alberta Senator James Gladstone and Montreal model Khan-Tineta Horn, it says Indians have become "bystanders on the national scene," largely as a result of their dependence on the "umbilical cord" the Indian affairs branch has become for them.

Often the branch and its agents are the only link a reserve has with the outside world.

WIDE SPLIT

"An economic, social and cultural gulf separates the Indian from the non-Indian. This gulf may be widening, and concerted emphasis on broad rehabilitative measures is indicated," the branch concludes in a specially prepared document.

During the last decade, its spending has increased 280 per cent. Much of the $1,000,000,000 budget goes into a school system for 55,000 children. It has the highest rate of drop-outs in the country. While relief cheques have climbed to $11,000,000 annually, living standards have been sliding.

The branch talks of a virtual cold war between its agencies and the reserves, with the agencies trying to hold the budget and the reserves trying to get it increased.

Indians who leave the reserve are worse off, if anything. A Vancouver coroner estimated that half the 1,000 Indian women living there were on the skids.

EDUCATION

Seeking a remedy for the situation, the Indian affairs branch has brought in a Toronto specialist, Prof. Farrell J. Toombs, to educate hand-picked men in community development.

Thirty already are on key reserves and eventually there will be more than 50, their object to get the Indians themselves to bring reserves up to the social and economic level of surrounding municipalities.

NUCLEUS

The initial group includes three Indians, a former CBC producer, a lawyer and an assortment of Indian affairs veterans and bright young men. They were thrown into a therapeutic three-month course under Prof. Toombs that provided plenty of opportunity for self-discovery.

FIRST TIME

"I found I've been an s.o.b. for 15 years," said an Indian affairs superintendent, with more wonder than wit.

It was also a revelation for Isaac Beaulieu, 27, from Manitoba's Sandy Bay Pond reserve. Mr. Beaulieu, one of 270 Indians employed by Indian affairs, said that despite several years of work in the United States and Canada, he found himself "at home with the white man" for the first time in the Toombs course.

Walter Rudnicki, 38-year-old director of the branch's social programs division, says the community development officers will be backed by "all the considerable resources of the country."

NEW APPROACH

Rather than councillors, they will be consultants for the Indians, liaison men with the intricate world of federal, provincial and municipal programs.

Once the spark of self-development has been ignited, the branch hopes to be able to put grants into bank accounts opened by band councils rather than into the hands of the traditional administrator of all Indian funds, the agent.

Refugee Tells Hunger Story

(Among those who fled Cuba in the past few days in small boats was a cousin of Cuban Communist President Che Guevara, Torrado. Here is her story as told to CFI at the Cuban refugee centre in Miami.)

By MARIA NABELE DE TORRADO

MIAMI—If you like watery soup and hunger, spying by neighbors, lack of the bare essentials of life, you stay in Cuba.

They killed our son, half starved us and spied on us. Still they demanded loyalty to the government. When the chance came, my husband and I didn't even stop to think. We left everything and got out.

I'm 54 years old, and Nicolas is 30. He made $24 a month in the waterworks department in Havana. Even if we could afford food on our ration card, there is just none available. You know what the government does out for fruit? — a half-pound of pumpkin and a half-pound of alligator pear (avocado) to each housewife per month for each person in her household.

We were hungry all the time. The Communists don't admit being hungry, though.

Our last meal before leaving the colony at Camarioca must have been for propaganda steak, sweet potatoes, white rice, mango marmalade and cheese and coffee. My stomach nearly fainted. I hadn't seen a steak since Fidel took over.

Sickness abounds in Havana. The Russians have a medicine for everything from corns to hepatitis. We call it "Curalo todo" (cure everything).

We are getting to the age where we just couldn't stand it any more. When our second son, Anthony, came to Cuba from Miami to get us we just had to leave.

In 1962, they arrested our other son, Robert, who was 32, for what they called "counter revolutionary activities." I am a first cousin of President Dorticos and I called his mother to beg for Robert's life. She refused help. Neither Nicolas nor I were allowed to see Robert after he was arrested or during his trial. We got a brief note in November of 1962 that he had been put to death by a firing squad.

We talked it over for some time and decided that if the chance ever came, we would leave. But we had almost given up hope. Anthony was forced to take refuge in the Uruguayan embassy and then fled to the United States after Robert's arrest, and we thought we would never see him again.

We thought it was no use to put in for a visa to leave. The lines at the immigration office in Havana were blocks long. One of my friends was given a number—5,383.

Out of a clear sky Friday, however, we got a call to be ready to go. Nicolas threw our clothes into some small suitcases and we were picked up and carried to Camarioca. The land trip took two days and was made by 12 of us in rented cars — not in government cars — apparently in order not to draw attention to us.

The women were separated from the men during the trip and had to spend the night in a dirty barracks-like structure on coots. None of us got any sleep; we thought we were going to be tortured.

When we finally got to Camarioca and saw the boats, we realized the dream had come true. They fed us the "banquet" and then led us into a little room where we saw Anthony for the first time in three years. We fell into each other's arms and sobbed. Now we are together.

Young Musicians Thrill Audience

Two young musicians thrilled an enthusiastic audience last night at the Victoria School of Music in a recital sponsored by the Victoria Registered Music Teachers Association.

Pianist Ruth Callander, 20, and violinist Donald Whyte, 22, displayed fine phrasing and color in their opening piece—Sonata in D major (Vivaldi-Raspigli).

Miss Callander, in the seldom-heard Beethoven Sonata in E flat major, displayed virtuosic qualities and a remarkable power. The full authority of complete understanding was lacking, but with time and living, she has the ability to rise to Beethoven's depths.

In Brahms' Sonata in D minor for violin and piano, Donald Whyte's phrasing and understanding of this difficult work were both sensitive and masculine. Miss Callander was excellent, playing obviously from the heart.

The young pianist, after playing the exquisite J'aux d'eau by Ravel, tackled the difficult Balade in F minor by Chopin. After a hard-toned start, she ended with professional brilliance.

The pair—who have only known each other for a month—then joined forces for Ravel's Tzigane. This fiery gypsy piece did not quite come off.

The tiny auditorium did nothing for the recital. All the works played were designed for large halls and the choice of venue is to be regretted.—S.O.

Workers Move Underground On Peace River Powerhouse

By ALLAN EATON

United Press International
HUDSON HOPE—Here in northern British Columbia, some 600 miles north of the nearest major metropolis, work has neared the half-way mark on the largest public works project in North America — the Portage Mountain dam.

To describe its enormity, Dr. Gordon Shrum, co-chairman of the publicly-owned B.C. Hydro, inconspicuously but graphically compares the project to a "great wall."

"If you were to take the material going into this dam, you could build a wall across Canada... 12 feet high, and nine feet thick," says Shrum proudly.

DUE IN 1968
The $700,000,000 project began three years ago, and is scheduled for completion in the fall of 1968. Eventually it will produce 2,300,000 kilowatts.

To build the 600-foot high, 14-mile long, earth-filled edifice hundreds of workers are toiling around the clock, inching their way upward, at one and one-half feet a day.

SUDDEN ROPE GROWS
The immense project attracts 50,000 tourists each year, and the nearby town of Hudson Hope has expanded from 92 persons to a population of 7,000.

When the first stage is completed in '67, will provide much-needed power for the dozens of new pulp mills and mines under construction in B.C.

LIARD NEXT?
With the Peace River dam nearing the half-way mark, and the tri-dam Columbia River project nicely underway, 800 miles to the southeast, there already is talk about next developing the Liard River.

As a result, B.C. is booming with new industry, commerce and development.

DRIVING SNOWSTORMS
But within the next few weeks, freezing temperatures and driving snowstorms will hit the area. Mechanical ants will haul tons of balled straw over the dam's top and seal it with huge sheets of polyethylene.

Work will not freeze on the

Private Film Industry To Receive Ottawa Aid

TORONTO (UPI)—The Canadian government is taking steps to aid the country's private film industry. Secretary of State Maurice Lamontagne announced Wednesday.

Lamontagne, addressing a meeting of the Canadian Confederation of the Arts, said the government intends to establish a Crown corporation with an initial capital of $10,000,000 to help the Canadian private film industry in the production of feature films.

EMPOWERED

"The corporation will be empowered to make arrangements with private producers under which it will make loans or investments without, however, becoming a legal partner," Lamontagne said.

Cary Grant Awaits First Child

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Cary Grant's fourth wife is expecting the star's first child, it was reported Wednesday.

Grant wed the former Diane Cannon in July. A spokesman for the film star, now on location in Tokyo, said Mrs. Grant is expecting her baby in May.

Grant, 61, formerly was married to Virginia Cherrill, Barbara Hutton and Betsy Drake.

The corporation will also make financial awards to Canadian films "judged to be of high quality by appropriate juries," the secretary of state added.

An advisory board, composed of people involved in the film industry, will be set up to provide liaison between the industry, the corporation and the government.

Garden Notes

By M. V. CHESNUT

Yesterday we were discussing the culture of the Paper White narcissus in ornamental bowls of pebbles and water. There are two big advantages in this form of culture; one is the speed with which the bulbs can be brought into bloom, for bulbs started before the end of this month can provide fresh, living flowers to grace the Christmas dinner table.

The other advantage is no long period of cold darkness is required. This cold stage after potting is absolutely necessary when growing hyacinths, tulips and daffodils, and rules out automatically the flower lover who lives in a single room or apartment. And, as a matter of fact, it isn't easy to find a cold enough storage place in ANY modern home. For such folks without a root cellar or cold fruit cupboard, it is better to stick to the very few kinds of bulbs which can be grown successfully without a cool start, and in pebbles and water instead of soil.

The big disadvantage is that pebble culture is strictly a one-shot proposition. For four years these bulbs have been plumping themselves up and charging their batteries, then they blow the works on one grand splurge of bloom and are of no further use. The spent bulbs are discarded after the last of the flowers fade.

The Paper White narcissus isn't the only bulb which can be grown in this way. This flower has several cousins which will bloom without a prolonged rooting period in cold darkness and which do well in pebbles and water. Even quicker to come into bloom than the Paper White is the Chinese Sacred Lily, and I should point out here that this is only a nickname; the plant is not a lily but another narcissus—actually Narcissus tazetta orientalis.

To the best of my knowledge, the only place where these bulbs are grown commercially is in the heart of Red China, in a group of ten villages lying to the south of the city of Chungking. Started from small off-sets, the villagers transplant the bulbs every year for three years, and in the fourth summer the flowering-size bulbs are lifted, dried and exported to world markets through the port of Hong Kong.

I think this is about the first indoor plant I ever grew. Long before the Madison Avenue types started giving away fancy desk sets and gadgets to clients and customers, an old Chinese laundryman in our neighbourhood would always have a stock of these bulbs in the fall, presenting one to each of his steady patrons as a goodwill gift, just as he would have lilies for Christmas for the children. Incidentally, the chaste white flower of the oriental narcissus is considered an emblem of purity by the Chinese.

Not quite so quick to come into bloom is Narcissus tazetta "Cragford"—a beauty, with a pure white perianth and brilliant scarlet cup and with a heady, sweet fragrance that can perfume a whole room. The individual flowers are on the small side, but with five to eight blooms on each stem. Bulbs cost 20 cents to 30 cents each, and for a really enchanting display, pack in as many bulbs as your bowl of pebbles will hold.

In the same branch of the narcissus family is one called Grand Soleil d'Or, probably the showiest of all the bulbs that can be grown under pebble culture. Bearing anywhere from 8 to 14 flowers per stem, the blooms are a rich golden yellow with a bright orange cup. The bulbs sell for around 30 cents each, as against 15 cents for the Paper Whites.

All four kinds—Paper White, Cragford, Grand Soleil d'Or and the Chinese Sacred Lily—do best with plenty of sun and a coolish room while making their topgrowth, and as with all indoor bulb flowers, the bowl should be given a quarter-turn every day to keep the stems from leaning toward the light. Once the flowers come out, they will last longer in bloom if removed from direct sunlight.

ART BUCHWALD Makes Poor Case for Flu

Johnson Bustling Invalid

Everyone has been delighted with the fast recovery of President Johnson from his gall bladder operation. I myself wish he had taken it a little easier after the operation and this is why.

I came down with the flu over the weekend and ordinarily in these situations my wife is very sympathetic. But not this time. I told her I planned to stay in bed for the day and maybe watch a couple of football games and the World Series until my temperature went down.

She showed me a newspaper and said, "President Johnson had a gall bladder operation and look what he did. He appointed four ambassadors, two judges, saw Vice President Humphrey, talked to the press, and signed three bills, and you want to stay in bed just because you have a little flu."

"But he's stronger than I am," I protested. "Besides, they say flu can be serious."

She turned to another part of the paper. "Here is a picture of Mr. Johnson's gall bladder with the stone still in it. And yet do you know what he's going to do tomorrow if the doctors let him?"

"What?"

"Dictate his budget for 1966. Inspect a hospital, talk to Dean Rusk and Robert McNamara, telephone seven astronauts, and address a joint session of Congress in the operating theatre of the hospital. And you're complaining about a little fever."

"It isn't just the fever. I feel kind of groggy too."

"How can you feel groggy after what the president went through? I just heard on the radio that if all goes well, the day after the president plans to meet with the National Security Council, hold a press conference, attend a barbecue at the hospital for doctors and their wives, talk to the United Nations and help Mrs. Johnson plant 12 trees. I don't see why you should feel sorry for yourself."

"I'm not feeling sorry for myself," I said. "It's just that the flu takes a lot out of you."

***

"Are you trying to say that a gall bladder operation doesn't take a lot out of a person?" Listen to the president's schedule for Thursday. He's having breakfast with the Senate and House leaders, meeting with labor leaders, lunching with the League of Women Voters, making a film for a fund-raising dinner in California, and attending an army dance."

"Okay, I'll go out and cut the lawn," I said.

"If you want to stay in bed, I'm perfectly agreeable," my wife said, "but it seems to me you're not showing much moral fibre. Here's the president's schedule for Friday."

"I don't want to hear it," I said, slowly putting on my shoes.

"The president is going to sign several more bills, attend the opening of a new ward, settle the India-Pakistan dispute, and if he has time perform an appendectomy operation on a lieutenant-commander."

I started shuddering as I tried to put on my shirt.

"Where should I put the leaves after I take them up?" I asked.

"There is no reason to be surly. If you really don't feel well, stay in bed."

I went back to bed.

"Is there anything I can get you," she asked.

"Yeah. Get me Vice President Humphrey. I'll talk to him first. Then you can let the press come in. I'll talk to the Joint Chiefs of Staff this afternoon, and tonight if I feel up to it we'll take down all the billboards along the avenue. There is no sense letting a little flu bug get me down."

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Melina Cheers Cast

MADRID (NANA)—On the set of 10:30 p.m. Summer, the new title for Jules Dassin's Ten Thirty of A Summer's Evening, Melina Mercouri was feeling dizzy. And Bony Schneider was feeling antagonistic. She had expected to do her big scene that day and had spent most of the night preparing for it. But actors plan and directors have other ideas. It was not a serious snarl. No one can be disagreeable too long with Miss Mercouri in the vicinity. Even with a headache, she was full of energy and laughter. Next for Melina and Dassin, Pericles, during the golden age of Greece. "Melina, of course," Dassin informed me, "will play Aspasia, the wife of the great Greek."

Melina's recent movie, The Mechanical Piano, by the way, has not yet passed the censors of Spain. There is a love affair with James Mason and overtones of homosexuality with a couple of the boys in the film... they are very strict in this country about such situations.

In Doctor Zhivago, there are 140 very small roles. Some just a line. Directors David Lean wanted certain types for the parts and he picked them from all over Spain. Then he brought over six top character actors and actresses from England, and for three weeks they dubbed all of the 140 roles. Zhivago will run three hours and 10 minutes with an intermission.

George Hamilton was holding court in the lobby of the Castellana Hilton, and his face was out from here to there. "It was worse yesterday," he told me, "when I flew up from Almeria where I am starring with Claudine Auger in The Road to Diamonds. I'm the only person in the world who could get an infection opening a bottle of antibiotics. I have an abscess in the root canal of a back tooth. I went out on the town last night with Sean Flynn and that seemed to help, so I am going back to Almeria tomorrow. I'm not a playboy. I believe in abstinence and then having fun. Especially with Sean Flynn. He didn't know his father Errol Flynn very well because he lived mostly with his mother. He's only just beginning to appreciate him."

Phil Silvers was telling me that he is supposed to have been the guest of honor at 100 parties since he arrived here several weeks ago to star with Zero Mostel in A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum. He hasn't been to one, and he won't be going, although wife Evelyn has just returned to their five daughters in Hollywood after visiting Phil for a month.

Latin-looking Raquel Welch has become a blonde for One Million BC which she is making on an island off the coast of Spain with John Richardson as the gorgeous hunk of man, played in the original by Victor Mature. It seems that cave men also preferred blondes.

Prejudices

By SYDNEY HARRIS

Fairly Personal Prejudices: The success of evil assures its own failure—for example, counterfeiting can gain only as long as most people are honest and most money is hard to come by. If counterfeiting becomes widespread, then all money would fall under suspicion and the counterfeiters would eventually perish by the very prevalence of their "successes."

The density of auto traffic has created a new problem which we have scarcely begun to attack—namely, that the driver who sets off a chain reaction culminating in an accident is not ordinarily involved in the collision taking place around him, and is sometimes even unaware that he has caused an accident.

We complain about "difficult" modern poetry, as though we really understood the great poetry of the past; but not one person in a thousand really knows that Polonius meant, when he said of Hamlet, "Though this be madness, yet there is method in it." He didn't mean, as most believe, that Hamlet was being calculating or ably witty.

(Likewise with dozens of other famous Shakespearean quotations, such as "more honored in the breach than in the observance," and "one touch of nature makes the whole world kin," which are grossly misunderstood even by those who use them.)

People simply have no conception of the amount of destructive power at our command; as Prof. Mario Salvadori has graphically said, if we had begun dropping a Hiroshima-type bomb the day Christ was born, and we had continued dropping a bomb a day, every day of the week, every week of the year, from the year zero to the present, we would still have a lot of megatons left over—and each of these bombs can kill 100,000 people.

To the mechanists who still stubbornly insist that the universe is "just like a machine," one can only repeat Robert Frost's question: "Did you ever see a machine without a pedal for the foot, or a lever for the hand, or a button for the finger?"

Why are there demagogues, but no "anti-demagogues"? Why are there men who can whip up our feelings of hate and anger and vengeance, so that we form mobs and rush across town, or form armies and rush across borders—but none who stimulate our feelings of love and compassion so that we rush anywhere to perform good deeds and acts of mercy?

The saying, "each to his own taste" is useful only after we know which things are matters of taste only, and which are matters of judgment; when a subject permits of judgment, to evaluate it by "taste" is as silly and uninformed as comparing the engine efficiency of two cars by their colors.

Grits-Creditiste Linked

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Star quotes Dr. Guy Marcoux, former Social Credit member of Parliament, as saying in a book published Wednesday that Transport Minister Pickersgill and mining promoter John Doyle were involved in negotiations that led to six Creditiste MPs supporting the Liberals after the 1963 election.

THE ALASKAN CAMPER

will be demonstrated at THE HOLIDAY COURT MOTEL SATURDAY, OCT. 10, 1 P.M. TO 8 P.M. See this hydraulically operated raise and lower Camper for travelling safety and camping comfort. Manufactured at Red Deer, Alberta.

The story from Quebec City quotes the book by Dr. Marcoux, member for Quebec Montmorency in the last Parliament, as saying the six Quebec Creditistes signed an affidavit three days after the election promising to support the Liberals in Commons voting.

THE SWITCH
The Liberals, with the six additional votes, then had control of the house. John Diefenbaker resigned as Progressive Conservative Prime Minister and the governor-general then called on Liberal leader Pearson to form a government.

The newspaper quotes the book as saying Mr. Pickersgill and Hubert Ducharme, lawyer for Mr. Doyle, drew up the original draft of the affidavit. Mr. Doyle controls Canadian Javelin Corp., with vast iron ore and timber holdings in Labrador.

The story quotes the

Doyle

Marcoux book as saying a $25,000 bribe offer "was floating around for anyone who would finger MPs who would sign such an affidavit."

In excerpts from the book also published today in The Star, Dr. Marcoux writes that when he heard the six members had "deserted the ship" he "summoned one of the party's principal organizers to my home."

CONVERSATION
"So the scheme came off?" he asked me.

"What scheme," I demanded. "The organizer replied: 'No later than today I was visited by an individual who offered me $25,000 if I could provide him with the names of at least five Secret MPs who were prepared to switch to the Liberals. I told him that I had no names to give and that this deal didn't interest me."

ADVANCE COPY
Dr. Marcoux, running in the Nov. 8 federal election as an independent, was to bring out the 24-page book at a press conference later today, a week ahead of its announced publication date.

The Star says he advanced publication to today "to head off threats and pressures." He told reporters he is getting special protection from town police in Beauport, a Quebec City suburb.

Captain's Console On Trial

Something new in the form of a glass and aluminum house has sprouted atop the bridge of the destroyer-escort HMCS Saskatchewan.

The eight-foot square bridge will contain experimental equipment which will allow the ship's captain to control the ship directly. At present engine orders have to be passed through four of the crew before they are carried out. With the new system only two men are required.

The experimental control console will give direct command to engines and rudder.

And while the navy is putting a great deal of faith in the new equipment they will play it cagey to make sure the good ship Saskatchewan doesn't get banged up during the experiment.

A full complement of ship's officers will be on the regular bridge while manoeuvres are carried out. The control console will be operated separately.

Trials are expected to begin in mid-October and will run until December. First trials will be docking operations in the harbor.

Trials will be observed by ranking naval officers from naval headquarters and other ships' commanding officers. Sea-going manoeuvres will be photographed from helicopters.

Quebecois Inspired By Pearson

By FRASER KELLY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

QUEBEC CITY — Prime Minister Lester Pearson Wednesday night called on Quebec to spread its economic, social and cultural revolution across the nation to build a new, more dynamic Canada.

An enthusiastic audience of close to 1,000 applauded vigorously as he told them of the increasing awareness in the rest of Canada of their problems.

The interest is sincere and there is much sympathy for Quebec's legitimate aspirations.

HELP SHARE

"We have often asked the rest of the country to understand what is going on in Quebec."

"Today I am asking you, the people of Quebec, to help the rest of Canada share in the aspiration of French Canadians as they remodel their social, economic and political aspirations," he said.

NEW IDEAS

"The ferment of new ideas, the evolution of the French-speaking citizens of Quebec must be passed on; Quebec must give the rest of Canada the benefit of its labors."

Aside from two short interjections, the prime minister spoke for a full 25 minutes in vastly improved French.

GOOD DAY

The rally, which also unveiled the dynamic oratory of labor-leader-turned-Liberal candidate Jean Marchand triumphantly capped an arduous but apparently successful campaign day for Mr. Pearson.

Wednesday night he told the Quebecois to look beyond their own borders and work for the good of the whole nation.

POSITIVE PART

"I am here because I believe in Quebec, in the part Quebec can play in our Confederation. In the full and positive part which French Canadians can play in the destiny of this country.

"Quebec must contribute to the building of a new Canada. ... I am here to ask you to have faith in Canada," he said.

PRAISES QUEBEC

He praised Quebec's challenging of existing institutions and her attempts to create new social and political structures.

"Quebec brings us a different culture, its own concept of political action and sound criticisms of our work habits."

"These are the contributions which Quebec must make in order to enable the rest of Canada to make the most of the ferment of ideas which is at the root of Quebec's dynamic development," he said.

FOR FUTURE

He used this buildup before urging his audience to send strong representatives to Ottawa to cope with the problems facing the nation in the future.

The crowd, which filled the hall, cheered and burst into the French version of For He's a Jolly Good Fellow, as Mr. Pearson arrived.

ST. LAURENT

They had been warmed up by a series of French Canadian cabinet ministers and members who extolled his virtues and lavished praise on his contribution to national unity.

Pathetic and Forlorn

Stranger in a Crowd

QUEBEC CITY (Special) — It was a forlorn and wistful Leon Balcer who stood at the back of the hall—in the centre of a faceless crowd—as Prime Minister Pearson spoke.

The former transport minister in the Diefenbaker cabinet, who quit his party in disgust, tried to be humorous with newsmen. But he was slightly pathetic.

***

Mr. Balcer parted company with the Conservatives after a bitter dispute with Mr. Diefenbaker over the chief's attitude to Quebec. So he was at the Liberal meeting.

He assured newsmen that he could attach no significance to his presence. "I was driving through so I stopped—it is the first Liberal meeting I have attended," he said.

***

"I'm one of the undecided in this election. I'm like an old fire horse. Politics has been my life for 16 years."

"After six elections it's a little strange to be back here with you fellows," he joked.

Any predictions on the outcome of the election? he was asked.

"No," he replied. "I don't know anything about politics."

Victoria Communist

Hear Red View, Hopeful Pleads

The father of W. S. E. Morrison, Communist candidate for Victoria, was chief surgeon with International Nickel at Sudbury, Ont.; one of the candidate's sons is superintendent of 17 branches of the Royal Bank of Canada on Cape Breton Island.

Mr. Morrison, himself, is a retired naval commander and, at age 68, tends his garden at 6769 Dufferin Avenue in West Vancouver, part of the property of the old Gen. Victor Odium estate.

AVOID POLITICS

What do his neighbors think of his being a Communist?

"I get along fine with my neighbors. We don't discuss politics," he said in an interview Wednesday night.

POLITICAL VISIT

However, his visit to Victoria was political.

He arrived Tuesday afternoon from the mainland with provincial Communist leader, Nigel Morgan, to discuss with Island party secretary, Ernest Knott, the strategy of the campaign.

DOOR TO DOOR

"We plan to distribute our program pretty well completely over the riding," said Mr. Knott.

"We'll have a couple of dozen workers go from door to door."

On Oct. 21 the national leader of the Communist Party of Canada, Bill Kaschman, will speak at 8 p.m. in the Williams Hall, 749 Broughton.

POINT OF VIEW

"We want nothing more than to give our point of view," said Mr. Morrison, who will also be a platform speaker.

The candidate's point of view was established "mainly because of conversations my father used to have with me. He was a socialist."

STUDENT

"Then, I have been a student of Marxist-Leninism for a good many years," he said.

My reading of history convinces me that the Slavs, including the Russians, have never been war-like people.

"They have never set out to conquer. It has always been enough to look after their own country."

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State University police jailed five youths here after they refused to leave a U.S. marine exhibit where they had set up signs attacking U.S. policy in Viet Nam, officers said.

250,000 Voters Refused Listing By Enumerators

OTTAWA (UPD) — A cross-Canada enumeration of Canadians has revealed a "unique apathy" of the voter towards the Nov. 8 national election.

Canadians by the thousands have refused to even have their names on the election lists, sources here said Wednesday. One estimate was that 250,000 voters refused to be listed.

The number of eligible voters has actually dropped in four provinces and the national figure has increased by only a "small" number at a time when the population is up and many thousands of Canadians have reached voting age.

REFUSE LISTING

The 70,000 enumerators conducted a virtual door-to-door search for voters across the country. Some reported having angry householders refuse to be listed.

The general apathy of the public towards the campaign has been a chief topic of conversation here among reporters who have gone out on the national hustings trips on both Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson and opposition leader John Diefenbaker. Political organizers and candidates are concerned by it.

"If it rains or even if there is a ball game on Nov. 8, they will stay away from the polls in droves," said one reporter back from the constituencies.

But the most significant evidence of the lethargy of the voter is the reports of the enumerators and the number of names they have returned with.

ENUMERATORS

Chief Election Officer Nelson Castonguay reported Wednesday that his 70,000 enumerators who polled the country for six days last month came up with only 10,191,825 names of eligible voters.

This is an increase of 281,068 from the 9,910,757 eligible last election, April, 1963, but officials here say the increase isn't enough. It should have been much larger and would have been if the voters were more interested.

NAMES MISSING

"The most unique thing about this election," said a federal polling expert, "is that the people don't want their cotton-picking names on the lists."

He and other experts here were amazed by the fact that the number of eligible voters actually fell in four of the 10 provinces — Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Manitoba.

Pair Shoestrings Will Have to Do

TIMMINS, Ont. (CP) — John James Buchan, running here as an independent candidate in the Nov. 8 federal election, quipped "I can't even afford a shoe string" in describing his campaign budget last week. He will be able to operate on a shoe-string after all. Wednesday he received a parcel from an anonymous contributor. It contained a pair of shoe strings.

National Inquiry Begins

Servicemen's Credit Poor

HALIFAX (UPI)—Unmarried, junior ranks of the Canadian armed forces have been described as "having a lack of responsibility" by a nationally known finance company; being "similar to an unskilled laborer" by an oil company executive; and as a "bigger risk" by an insurance underwriters spokesman.

These comments were heard in the course of a defence ministry inquiry now under way. The inquiry resulted from a Canadian Legion complaint which alleged there exists credit discrimination against lower rank buyers.

The allegations suggested major oil, insurance and finance companies, and other national organizations, had flatly refused to accept applications for credit from members of the armed forces below the non-commissioned rank.

William Shakespeare, manager for the Nova Scotia board of insurance underwriters, who represent some 120 insurance companies and more than 800 agents in the province, said "the service insurance record is out of this world; they are a bigger risk than their opposite numbers on civilian street and they have less sense of maturity."

The finance company manager, R. Hall of Crescent Finance, said it was not the policy of his company to refuse loans, but in its experience junior servicemen have a "terrible lack of responsibility." After they acquire a loan, they seldom abide by their commitments and only if "provided," will they "do something about it." Hall added that in efforts to get an "interview" with the delinquent servicemen, he "gets no co-operation" from his commanding officer or immediate superior.

P. H. Etter, national president of Credit Granters' Association of Canada, and an executive with Imperial Oil said, "It's not our practice to discriminate against service personnel."

He added that "all applications (for credit) were judged on their own merit with due consideration . . . and analysis of bad debts and assessment of credit risks over a long period of time."

In referring to the "number of bad debts" for people in the services below the NCO rank, Etter said, "They're nomads in the general sense . . . they are similar to unskilled laborers who are subject to transfer of duties, and while their service status indicates brief employment, they are not unlike persons who move from job to job, and are very poor credit risks." Their pay is not subject to garnishee to pay their delinquent accounts, Etter added.

The first indication that a ministerial inquiry was in progress was revealed in Halifax, and defense officials here and in Ottawa told United Press International that all unit commanders across the nation were instructed to report on instances where credit to other ranks is refused.

In this context, officials were particularly concerned with the credit habits of large national organizations.

During a recent visit to Halifax, Defence Minister Paul Hellyer said a report on the inquiry would be presented soon.

An Ottawa spokesman said the complaint was received from the Canadian Legion and added "this was the first time a complaint of this kind had ever been received at Canadian forces headquarters."

Cabinet Ponders Proposal

Rhodesia Is Ready To Talk, Talk, Talk

SALISBURY (Reuters)—The Rhodesian cabinet reached no decision in a meeting Wednesday on the issue of a unilateral declaration of independence for Rhodesia, Prime Minister Smith said Wednesday night.

Speaking in a television interview, he also said his government still is considering a proposal Tuesday night by British Prime Minister Wilson for a Commonwealth mission on the critical issue of independence for the white-ruled African colony.

Smith said he would be glad to welcome Australian Premier Sir Robert Menzies, who has been mentioned as a member of such a mission, to discussions in Salisbury.

IMPORTANT DECISION

The Rhodesian cabinet would "talk and talk and talk" before coming to "the most important decision of their lifetimes," Smith said.

But he reiterated he could think of no better time than the present for Rhodesia to take its independence.

MAKES THREAT

Smith's minority - white government of this British colony has threatened to declare unilateral independence now Britain has refused to grant it on Rhodesia's terms.

Britain has insisted any independent Rhodesian government must give more representation to the country's majority 4,000,000 Negroes.

MINDS UNCHANGED

Smith said he does not think the Rhodesian people have changed their support for a unilateral declaration of independence.

He said if he had any doubts, he would not hesitate to ask for another mandate from the electorate before going ahead.

Tuesday night in a radio-TV speech Wilson proposed the Commonwealth initiative to break the independence deadlock.

Britain has said that a unilateral independence declaration

Wise Proposal

Pearson
Hails
Mission

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson Wednesday acclaimed as "a wise and imaginative proposal" a suggestion of Prime Minister Wilson of Britain that a mission of Commonwealth leaders attempt to solve the problem of independence for Rhodesia.

Mr. Pearson said: "I have wired back that I thought this was a wise and imaginative proposal and we would give it our full support and complete approval. We will do anything we can to help in this matter."

POSTPONEMENT

"I hope that a mission of this kind, if it could be sent and received by the Rhodesian government, might through consultation postpone—if not prevent—a step which I think would be disastrous for Rhodesia."

Asked whether he would be a member of the mission, Mr. Pearson said:

"I have no reason to believe I would be asked to take part in it, but if I were asked to take part and it was considered important that I should be a member of the mission, well of course I would go."

NOT EXPECTED

"But I don't expect that will happen. I haven't heard yet about the composition of the mission."

Sources in London said Mr. Wilson suggested to Commonwealth leaders four prime ministers be chosen—those from Australia, Ceylon, Nigeria and Zambia.

Diefenbaker:

'Liberals Feared Deal Disclosure'

By RON COLLISTER

LETHBRIDGE, Alta.—Opposition leader John Diefenbaker charged Wednesday that the Liberals called an election because they were afraid of disclosures now being made about a Liberal-Creditiste power deal back in April, 1963.

The disclosures, Mr. Diefenbaker said, are new evidence of the "famine in integrity" around the government.

In the controversial deal, six Creditistes reportedly offered to guarantee support for the Liberals, who had come out of the election without a majority.

This forced the hand of John Diefenbaker, then prime minister, who was considering holding on as a minority leader and daring the other parties to defeat him.

The details of the deal are contained in a book authored by former Social Credit whip Guy Marcoux.

The book is sure to be valuable new ammunition for Mr. Diefenbaker as he tries to turf

Unity Theme Stressed

Tory Heartland
Cheers PearsonBy FRASER KELLY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

ORILLIA—Prime Minister Pearson stormed this bastion of Ontario Toryland with the largest, most enthusiastic political rally of his campaign Wednesday night.

Marcoux and pamphlet

Liberal organizers were surprised and exuberant as about 2,500 supporters jammed the city's community centre in what had been considered a solid Conservative preserve.

According to the building superintendent only Don Messer has outdrawn Mr. Pearson in the arena and they only beat him by about 300.

Just as he had done a few hours before in Guelph, Mr. Pearson used the platform in Union Jack country to develop and refine the national unity theme he is carrying across the nation.

He told both audiences of being on stage in Quebec City the night before and singing O Canada in English while

Ex-Socred Fears for Life

QUEBEC (CP)—Dr. Guy Marcoux, who says he had to get mixed up with the underworld to dig up information for a booklet he published Wednesday, fears for his life and has asked for police protection.

"I am not able to ensure my security nor that of my family," the former Social Credit member of Parliament said in a written plea for protection sent to Claude Wagner, Quebec justice minister.

At a press conference, Dr. Marcoux said he had been under pressure not to publish the booklet, his version of the circumstances which led six Social Credit members to grant their support to the Liberal party following the 1963 election. (See Page 39.)

'Nothing to Do with Bribe'
Pickersgill Tells Pearson

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson issued here Wednesday night the following statement in connection with a pamphlet by Dr. Guy Marcoux:

"I have spoken to Mr. (Transport Minister) Pickersgill and he has assured me that he had nothing to do—directly or indirectly—with any offer of a bribe to any member of Parliament or to anyone else on the matter referred to in the reports on Dr. Marcoux's book."

The former MP for Quebec Montmorency said the pressure to stop publication of the book came from persons who dealt with or had contacts in the underworld.

"I received several telephone calls exerting pressure on me, calls which stressed that I could be charged with libel and that it could cost me a great deal if the book was published."

At another press conference here Wednesday, Mr. Wagner said he had sent a letter to Dr. Marcoux telling him he would receive the fullest protection of the Quebec City detachment of Quebec Provincial Police.

No Finger on Trigger—But...

Nuclear Say
Demanded
By Germany

LONDON (UPI)—West Germany has told the Allies bluntly it wants a voice in decisions on when and what types of nuclear weapons should be used and the targets against which they should be directed.

The official English language overseas organ of the ruling Christian Democratic Party reaching here said Bonn "insists" on nuclear co-determination within the alliance.

It spelled out, moreover, the details of terms for German participation in nuclear sharing.

"Bonn wants to be included in the planning of targets, determining target priorities, deciding when atomic weapons will be used as well as the strength and type of atomic weapons at the disposal of the alliance," the CDU organ stated.

The German demands for nuclear sharing came during a revived Anglo-American debate about the controversial issue with Britain backing away from its earlier projected inter-allied nuclear force.

NUCLEAR CONSULTATION

He made it clear Britain does not want to endanger prospects for possible agreements with Russia by promoting either the American-proposed mixed manned nuclear surface fleet or the earlier British plan for an Atlantic nuclear force. Britain now favors instead a nuclear consultative committee within NATO with German participation.

PSYCHOLOGICAL

Meanwhile, West Germany, in setting out its terms for nuclear co-determination in the clearest language yet, said the projected nuclear atom committee has mainly "tactical, psychological meaning."

Bonn does not want a finger on the nuclear trigger, the CDU said, but it wants certainty "that the exchange of blows will not be initially confined solely to German soil, that the attacking enemy will not be fought only on the front lines and that the operative plans of defence are not geared only to a long phase of conventional resistance."

Fishing Rights

Indians Ambush
Game Protectors

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP)—More than 40 Indians and a dozen state fish and game protectors tangled Wednesday in a rock-throwing, fist-swinging, club-wielding melee on the banks of the Nisqually River east of here.

The affray, second of its kind in less than a week, stemmed from a state court order prohibiting the Indians from net-fishing off their reservation.

The Indians maintain an ancient treaty with the United States permits them to fish in their usual fishing grounds, even though they are off their reservation.

They stoned the fish and game protectors and succeeded in knocking one of them out of his boat into the river. More than half a dozen other fish and game protectors suffered minor cuts and bruises.

Six Indians were arrested during the melee, brought to jail here, booked, and released on $100 bond each.

Later, two Indian fishermen and a boy were arrested and taken to jail.

Clarence Pratt, a spokesman for the state game department, said the first skirmish was touched off when two Indians put a net into the river as a protest against the court injunction.

Economic Dictatorship

'Canadians
Are Fed Up'

YORKTON, Sask. (CP)—New federal election campaign that Douglas said Wednesday Canadians are fed up because they are slowly realizing the society in which they live is an economic dictatorship.

Speaking to a capacity crowd of 900 in a high school auditorium, Mr. Douglas said Canada is controlled by less than 1,000 Canadians in major industries and corporations.

"They decide whether prices go up or down, or whether the savings of Canadians will be used to develop Canadian industries or lie idle for another 50 years, and we, the people, have nothing to say."

Prime Minister Pearson was telling Canadians during the federal election campaign that they never had it so good. "This is the soft—sell approach—affluence for everybody—but it depends who you are and where you sit in our society."

Mr. Douglas said it is not so good if "you're sitting with the 20 per cent in poverty in Canada or with the other 30 per cent suffering privation."

"CONTROL OLD PARTIES"

In the economic dictatorship, he said, those who own and control Canada's economy also control "the old-line parties."

"The glory may be in Ottawa but the power is in Bay Street in Toronto and in Jesse James Street in Montreal. They have made the old-line parties their political chore-boys."

Prisoners Going, Too?

Angry Seas Braved
By 102 More Cubans

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Braving angry seas in small craft, 102 more Cubans crossed the Florida Straits Wednesday before bad weather temporarily stopped the flow.

However, one boat, the 30-foot Mistral, set out during the day with 23 refugees aboard. The coast guard said none of its ships and planes had spotted the craft.

At the same time, a possibility arose Fidel Castro might set free tens of thousands of political prisoners who are in jail because they oppose his regime.

The state department said Castro had replied to a U.S. program for massive exodus without flatly turning down a proposal that the prisoners be among the first to leave.

"That's a surprise," said a

Italy Weighs
China Move

ROME (Reuters)—Premier Aldo Moro said Wednesday night Italy is ready, on certain conditions, to recognize China and back its admission to the United Nations.

Replying in Parliament to foreign policy questions by Communist and other deputies, Moro said the Italian government recognizes "the importance of direct talk with Peking and adequately evaluates the weight of the Chinese state's 700,000,000 inhabitants in the international community."

Peek over ump's shoulder at Grant's fast ball

Howdy Doody, Scotty On Mudcat's Mind

By JOE REICHLER
MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Jim Grant read the telegram once more.

"Win the next one for Scotty... your friend, Howdy Doody."

Grant carefully put the paper back into the envelope, laid it atop the shelf in his locker, walked out on the field and proceeded to pitch and bat Minnesota Twins to a 5-1 must victory over Los Angeles Dodgers Wednesday.

Minutes later, the strong-armed right-hander was explaining the telegram.

"Howdy Doody is a close friend of mine from Kansas City," Grant said. "His wife, Scotty, was killed in an automobile accident about a week and a half ago. They had been married less than a year."

"I thought about her and the telegram when I went out to the mound. I'm glad I made my friend a little happier."

Grant's performance made a great many people happy. The partisan crowd of 49,578 gave the 30-year-old native of Lacoochee, Fla., a standing ovation after he hit a three-run homer in the sixth inning that clinched the Twins' victory and ended the world series at three games apiece.

GAVE HIM THRILL

"That gave me a bigger thrill than the home run," Grant said. "Imagine looking up and seeing more than 49,000 standing up and cheering just for you. I'll never forget it."

Neither will the fans. Grant, bothered by a nagging cold and halting knees, and pitching with just two days' rest, pitched perhaps his greatest game of the year.

It was a game the Twins had to win. A defeat would give Dodgers the series.

HE WAS SHARP

Grant allowed only six hits. None until Ron Fairly led off the fifth with a single to center. He struck out five and walked none, not allowing a runner to pass second except for Fairly's home run in the seventh.

But he wanted to talk about his home run, not his pitching. "I watched the pitcher (Howie Reed) carefully as I waited in the deck circle while he was purposely walking Frank (Quillie) to get at me."

"I said to myself, 'he's going to throw me a curve. He can't afford to give me a fast ball in a situation like this.' We had runners on first and second, you know."

"Sure enough, he threw the curve. I knew it was gone the moment I hit it. I remember starting to run, then stopping and yelling 'a home run, a home run.'"

"When I rounded third base, Billy Martin, our coach, grabbed my hand. 'How about that, baby,' I grinned at him. I was laughing by the time I reached the dugout."

Someone asked Grant if Reed had thrown him a high-hanging curve.

"It was a helluva curve," Jim corrected. "It was a beauty... sharp breaking... right around the knees."

Grant, a fairly good hitter for a pitcher, recalled that he had hit three or four home runs during his big league career—none this past season—but couldn't remember his last one.

The cold that has been bothering him for six weeks is still there, he said. "But I forgot about it once the game started."

"After the series, I'm going to take a complete physical and find out what's wrong with me, lasting too long to suit me."

The cold, or whatever it is, is still there.

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (AP) — Jim (Mudcat) Grant, pitching with only two days rest, squared the world series for the Minnesota Twins Wednesday by hurling a six-hitter and belting a three-run homer in a 5-1 sixth-game victory over Los Angeles Dodgers.

Grant's triumph, the Twins' third in three games at Metropolitan Stadium after losing three straight in Los Angeles, threw the series into a decisive seventh game today. So far, it has been a home park series. Twins' manager Sam Mele named left-hander Jim Kaat to start the seventh game, but Walter Alston of the Dodgers refused to pick a pitcher, saying he would not decide until Thursday between right-hander Don Drysdale and left-hander Sandy Koufax.

Today's game may be seen over channels 2, 5 and 6 at 11:45 a.m. and heard over radio station KJLW at the same time, according to network announcements.

Bob Allison's two-run homer off Claude Osteen in the fourth gave the muscular Grant the margin he needed. Then he came up in the sixth and blasted reliever Howie Reed's first pitch 392 feet and deep into the left field stands with two men on base.

WILD APPLAUSE

A record crowd of 49,578 rose in a thunderous ovation to Grant, 21-game winner, as he trotted home. Grant was the first pitcher to hit a homer in the series since Lew Burdette did it for Milwaukee, Oct. 2, 1958. It was the first by an American League pitcher since old Jim Bagby for Cleveland in 1920.

Grant, beaten Sunday in the fourth game when he was knocked out in the sixth inning, came back strong as though he had a month's rest. He had a no-hitter going until Ron Fairly opened the fifth with a single to center.

BURNED SHUTOUT

Fairly's seventh-inning home run ruined Grant's bid for a shutout, but the big fellow never faltered.

After Lou Johnson singled for the sixth hit with two out in the ninth, Grant closed out the Dodgers by making Wes Parker roll out to Frank Quillie. The entire Twins' bench came out to greet the 30-year-old right-hander as he walked off the hill.

Osteen, who never before had lost to the Twins in his days with Washington and the Dodgers, finally dropped his first decision to the Minnesota slugger after beating them six times.

SHUT THEM OUT

The crafty lefty had shut out the Twins in Los Angeles in the third game Saturday 4-0.

The Twins started out making life miserable for Osteen in the first inning when Zolo Versalles led off with a single. He was erased on Joe Niese's double play, but Tony Oliva kept the water boiling with a single to left.

WALKED VERSALLES

Again in the third, Osteen was in trouble when he walked Versalles on a 3-2 pitch, but the next three went quietly.

Dick Tracewski, playing second for the injured Jim Lefebvre, meased up Battey's lead-off grounder in the fourth. Allison, who had struck out earlier and had only one hit in 10 trips, ripped into Osteen's third pitch and drove it into the lower pavilion in left for the two-run homer that really won the ball game.

Osteen had been getting behind the hitters, and his pitches were high instead of in his usual low-breaking groove.

IN COMMAND

Grant was in command all the way. The Dodgers never got a chance to use the speed that practically ran the Twins out of the park in Los Angeles. Only once, in the sixth when Tracewski and Maury Wills singled, did they have two on base at the same time.

The second guessers will have a field day with Dodger manager Walter Alston for his move in walking the weak - hitting rookie Quillie in the sixth to pitch to Grant.

SUPERB PLAY

Parker had made a superb play to throw out leadoff man Battey in the sixth, but Allison walked. Reed, who had just replaced Osteen at the start of the inning, curled a third strike past Don Mincher.

Alston ordered Reed to give Quillie a free ticket to first, setting the stage for Grant.

The powerful pitcher, who was one of the Twins' best-hitting pitchers in regular season play with a .155 average, slammed the first pitch into the wildly-cheering fans in the left-field pavilion.

It was Grant's first homer of the year, and he wouldn't sell it for $10,000—the amount he can make if the Twins follow through and win the seventh game.

Happy Twins pummel Grant at dugout steps

Sandy or Don, Dodgers Favored

MINNEAPOLIS — If Don Drysdale pitches today, Los Angeles Dodgers are 13-10 favorites for the whole ball of wax. If Sandy Koufax is manager, the odds are even higher at 3-2.

Last night's rain showers were expected to continue through this morning and there was a distinct chance that the game would be postponed until Friday.

About $3,000 per player will be riding on every pitch. Winners will get about $10,000 each and the losers about $7,000.

Alston plans no lineup changes today. This means that Dick Tracewski will stay at second base even though he made a big error Wednesday. There is no chance that regular Jim Lefebvre will get back into the lineup with his bruised heel.

Sports editor Charlie Johnson of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune has gotten himself and Twin coach Billy Martin in trouble with the umpiring staff after a ghost-written article appeared recently.

Johnson, writing under Martin's name, wrote that umpire Ed Hurley said Sandy Valdespino was really safe, and not out, on a controversial tag at yesterday's first inning of the fourth game. The Twins outfielder was trying to stretch a single into a double.

Hurley and Martin both spent much of yesterday denying that the statement was made. Writer Johnson is sticking to his version.

Asked about the pitch that Bob Allison hit for a homer, Dodger pitcher Claude Osteen said: "It was high. I didn't intend for it to be there."

Somebody asked Minnesota manager Sam Mele if he really believed that the home crowd meant that much to professional athletes.

"Certainly do," he replied. "I think the fans inspired our players. Being met by all those fans on a cold night when we came back from California was a big lift."

Grant's performance made a great many people happy. The partisan crowd of 49,578 gave the 30-year-old native of Lacoochee, Fla., a standing ovation after he hit a three-run homer in the sixth inning that clinched the Twins' victory and ended the world series at three games apiece.

Neither will the fans. Grant, bothered by a nagging cold and halting knees, and pitching with just two days' rest, pitched perhaps his greatest game of the year.

It was a game the Twins had to win. A defeat would give Dodgers the series.

Grant allowed only six hits. None until Ron Fairly led off the fifth with a single to center. He struck out five and walked none, not allowing a runner to pass second except for Fairly's home run in the seventh.

But he wanted to talk about his home run, not his pitching. "I watched the pitcher (Howie Reed) carefully as I waited in the deck circle while he was purposely walking Frank (Quillie) to get at me."

"I said to myself, 'he's going to throw me a curve. He can't afford to give me a fast ball in a situation like this.' We had runners on first and second, you know."

"Sure enough, he threw the curve. I knew it was gone the moment I hit it. I remember starting to run, then stopping and yelling 'a home run, a home run.'"

"When I rounded third base, Billy Martin, our coach, grabbed my hand. 'How about that, baby,' I grinned at him. I was laughing by the time I reached the dugout."

Someone asked Grant if Reed had thrown him a high-hanging curve.

"It was a helluva curve," Jim corrected. "It was a beauty... sharp breaking... right around the knees."

Grant, a fairly good hitter for a pitcher, recalled that he had hit three or four home runs during his big league career—none this past season—but couldn't remember his last one.

The cold that has been bothering him for six weeks is still there, he said. "But I forgot about it once the game started."

"After the series, I'm going to take a complete physical and find out what's wrong with me, lasting too long to suit me."

The cold, or whatever it is, is

Soccer Player Dies of Injury

Funeral services were held yesterday for Derek Fendt, 30, a member of Victoria West second division soccer team who died Sunday as a result of injuries suffered in a match Sept. 26.

Fendt, who turned out with the club as a means of staying in shape, was playing in its first match against Esquimalt. He and another player went up to head a ball, and Fendt slumped to the ground.

He died as a result of brain injuries. There will be no inquest.

Victoria and Oak Bay Co-Leaders in League

Victoria High and Oak Bay maintained their deadlock in first place in the inter-high school senior soccer league Wednesday, clearing the way for the big game of the season Friday night.

Oak Bay won by default over Esquimalt, which couldn't field a full team. Vic High edged Claremont, 2-1, and third-place

Mount View beat Mt. Douglas, 1-0.

The Bays, defending B.C. champions, play Vic High Friday night at 6:30 at Royal Athletic Park.

Vic Grass gave Vic High an early lead, but Rod Sutton tied it up in the second half on a penalty shot. Rick Couch tapped in the winner on a cross with 15 minutes left.

Grant was in command all the way. The Dodgers never got a chance to use the speed that practically ran the Twins out of the park in Los Angeles. Only once, in the sixth when Tracewski and Maury Wills singled, did they have two on base at the same time.

Salmon Runs Need Money

NANAIMO — More federal assistance to preserve salmon runs is an immediate need, Walter Matthews, Progressive Conservative candidate for Nanaimo-Cowichan Islands said Wednesday.

He said the national issues have been given very good coverage in the press, but there were some local issues he wished to outline.

SHORT LINK

He pointed out the value to the area of a faster and shorter link between Vancouver Island and the mainland.

The youth of the nation is getting in poor physical condition and is becoming more interested in being a spectator than a participant in the various sports, he said.

He called for the revitalization of the country's youth on a national scale, by a greater participation in sports.

This could be accomplished by instituting programs designed to inspire today's youngsters in taking an active part in sports as a part of their growing up process.

DAM LAKES

He proposed the damming of all lakes where practical on Vancouver's East coast to preserve winter run-off of fresh water.

He said the Nanaimo River tide flats should be reclaimed and construction of an alternate airport should be started on the property.

He advocated the old age pensioners should receive a pension of $100 a month.

Port Regrets
Loss
Of Bowen

PORT ALBERNI — With regret, the Board of School District 70 and the Port Alberni City Council accepted the resignation, this week of Earle Bowen from his positions as high school teacher and alderman.

Mr. Bowen served two 2½-year terms on city council, was active with the recreation commission and in teen town work, and has been a teacher at the high school for several years.

Alberni City Council also regretfully received the resignation this week of R. A. "Bob" Waugh, city works superintendent who has served 9½ years with the corporation. Mr. Waugh will take up similar duties shortly in Castlegar.

Crash Costs
Show Drop

COURTENAY — Property damage in 28 traffic accidents during August of $12,623 showed a slight drop from July when 29 mishaps caused $13,065 in damage, according to a report of the highway patrol of the Courtenay RCMP detachment.

No month this year comes close to high June damage total of $25,460 from 41 accidents, one of which killed two young people.

From January 1 to September 30 the highway patrol laid 911 charges arising out of traffic violations and accident investigations.

Island Has Huddle

NANAIMO — Centennial projects ranging from a graveyard fence to $300,000 sports arena were discussed by Vancouver Island Centennial committees Wednesday night in Nanaimo.

Committees from 25 Island communities north of the Malahat attended the meeting, which was chaired by Laurie Wallace, chairman of the B.C. Centennial committee.

SOME UNDECIDED
Some of the centres reported they were still undecided on their projects.

North Cowichan committee said they have decided on a $300,000 arena; Lake Cowichan a $55,000 community centre — which is two-thirds completed. Nanaimo had not decided between a museum, ice rink, seafront promenade, theatre, curling rink and an art gallery.

SWIMMING POOL
Port Alberni had settled on a swimming pool project despite it being turned down twice at the polls.

Democracy Drowning
Protests RatepayerDuncan Road Plan
Mexican Standoff

DUNCAN — Old to traffic problems seems to be the idea at city council. Acting Mayor Jim Saunders told aldermen Tuesday Mexico may offer a solution to downtown speeders and hot-rodgers.

He explained that on some streets in Mexico the pavement is dotted with small studs.

"No one can travel faster than 15 miles an hour or their tires are wrecked."

Port Alberni

Teachers Seek Board Meeting

PORT ALBERNI — The matter of public relations came to the fore several times in the course of Tuesday night's school board meeting.

A letter from the Alberni District Teachers Association requested a meeting with the school board for the purpose of discussing some of the problems involved.

The Alberni Elementary Principals Association also expressed concern, and suggested the board should carefully consider all controversial statements before they came into the possession of what the association termed "mass media."

The third letter, also from the Alberni Elementary Principals Association, condemned the school board's recent action in cutting off two days pay from W. F. Marshall, principal of Alberni elementary school, and Alberni Alderman, on the occasion of his two days leave to attend part of a recent convention.

The Principals Association claimed that in view of Mr. Marshall's seventeen years service to the school district, the distinction earned by his extracurricular sports activities, and the fact that he has never limited his own time spent for the good of the community, the board should have been more lenient.

MAPLE BAY — One of the Maple Bay ratepayers who strongly oppose the establishment of a marina and a mobile trailer village for retired people on Genoa Bay Road, George Maggs told the representatives from other ratepayer groups: "We are crying out for help. We are overruled by the council and it seems that democracy is drowning at Maple Bay."

He made reference to a large protest meeting at Maple Bay over a week ago and to a public hearing over five weeks ago.

The bone of contention is the rezoning of the Waimanowood property on Genoa Bay Road from rural residential to commercial and multiple dwelling to make possible the marina-mobile home village scheme planned by four men from Calgary.

THREE READINGS

North Cowichan council so far and in the face of the strong opposition gave the first three readings of the rezoning bylaw. A final reading will probably be given next Wednesday.

Answering one of many questions shot at attending council members, Coun. George Whittaker said it is not the business of a council to tell people that they would fall in their venture and although some people would be inconvenienced, property in the Maple Bay area would not depreciate in value.

EASIER TO PAY

He made three points—the development would be strictly controlled, people would have a chance to go to the beach at that point, fear of pollution would be unfounded and it would be much easier to pay for a proposed city of Duncan water supply line to the Maple Bay area.

Reeve Morton said he will propose to the council at its next meeting very strict terms be drawn up by the municipality's solicitor whereby the developers of the Genoa Bay Road scheme will be controlled at every phase of the development.

He stressed once more the proposed area is the right place for a marina.

DENTIST'S OFFICE

Ucluelet has settled on a library and a dentist's office as its project.

Duncan has decided on a city park development and one other project, Ladysmith wants a salt water beach, while Harewood has settled on a tennis court and a lacrosse box.

Willard Ireland, provincial archivist, who spoke to the meeting, said the 1886 amalgamation of Vancouver Island with the Mainland was the shotgun marriage of the century.

First Time Ever

Duncan Construction
Passes a Million

DUNCAN — For the first time in the history of Duncan, the value of building permits has gone over the one million dollar mark, reported Acting Mayor Jim Saunders, "and we still have three months left to go in the year."

Ald. Barney Cocks reported that building permit values for the first nine months of 1965 have risen to the total of $1,154,208, when he spoke at a council meeting Tuesday night. He said, "This is over a 100 per cent increase over the same nine-month period last year when the total was $370,954."

ADDS $100,000

Additions and renovations at the local Super Valu market, by K. & R. Enterprises, contributed $198,000 in building permits for the month of September.

In other discussion on works and building topics, Ald. Hamish Mutter recommended that the city council set a policy for the construction of future boulevards in the city.

He said, "Boulevards are a new project in Duncan, and as more and more will be constructed in the future, we need a policy for next year."

UNDER ONE MAN

He suggested that all boulevards be put under the charge of one man who would be responsible for the upkeep of the grass and small flower beds.

Ald. Mutter stated, "We also need to know how to lay out the boulevards, and what kind of trees, grass and equipment is needed."

Acting Mayor Jim Saunders added that the council must also decide the amount of money which will be available for watering, fertilizer, grass cutting and general maintenance.

Aldermen Cocks and Mason were appointed to a special committee to discuss the recommended policy.

Duncan Idea

Follow
The Dogs

DUNCAN — This city seems to be going to the dogs.

Ald. Hamish Mutter charged Tuesday that council had been dragging its feet on the wandering dog problem and urged legislation to correct it.

Clerk Gordon Berry was instructed to investigate the North Vancouver "licket system" which Ald. Robert Masonn said was most effective.

Ald. Mason said that in North Vancouver dogs are followed to their homes and their owners issued a summons for not keeping the animals under control.

Filtration
Would Cost
$2,000,000

NANAIMO — Filtration plant to clear Nanaimo's water would cost $2,000,000, water commissioner C. F. Newcombe said Wednesday.

At Tuesday night's city council meeting Ald. Jack Parker asked the water committee to investigate remedies for the cloudy water which has plagued the Greater Nanaimo Water District throughout the summer.

He maintained that everytime something is boiled a scum is left around the top of the utensil used.

Mr. Newcombe said harmless algae in the water is the main cause of the cloudiness.

200 Farmers
Meet Nov. 22

More than 200 delegates are expected to attend the annual convention of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture at the Empress Hotel Nov. 22 to 24.

Aldermen Alarmed

Duncan Pays $1,552
To 35 Single Men

DUNCAN — City aldermen expressed alarm at Tuesday's council meeting following a report from Ald. Barney Cocks that the city of Duncan paid out $1,552.41 in welfare to 35 single men in September.

Ald. Hamish Mutter stated, "We have the best employment rate since the war. Why are these men not working?"

Acting mayor, Jim Saunders agreed that the number of single men being supported by welfare seemed to be high, but he pointed out that many of these men probably cannot carry out most forms of employment.

Ald. Mutter said, "I have had difficulty recently in getting men for casual labor. I cannot help but feel there is not a strong liaison between the Unemployment Commission and the local welfare department."

Ald. Cocks said he would visit the local welfare officials as soon as possible to discuss the situation. In his report he stated that the city paid out a total of $6,236 in September for 75 persons.

He added that the total amount was an increase of over $500 compared to May, five months ago, when the total was $5,665.

Courtenay Dilemma

School Board Studies
Teacher Ratio Problem

COURTENAY — The problem of how to reduce pupil-teacher ratio, keep all the parents of school children happy, and still keep within the teacher entitlement, is one which has caused the trustees here to consider the old maxim "what you lose on the roundabouts you make up on the swings."

Recently a delegation of parents from Union Bay attended a board meeting to protest a situation in their school where one teacher has three grades with 43 pupils. The parents felt this was unfair to both staff and students and with a new arithmetic course in Grade 2, the pupil might possibly be the loser. At that time the board promised to look into the matter.

UP 10 PER CENT

At a meeting this week, the problem came up for discussion again when trustees learned that pupil enrollment in the district had risen over 10 per cent.

Board members looked at two possibilities with further investigation to be made in both courses of action.

At present Union Bay has an enrollment of 89 and 3 teachers. One teacher has Grades 1, 2 and three with a total of 43 students. Fanny Bay is a 2-teacher school with 29 students.

MOVE STUDENTS

Trustee Jack Nicol suggested taking students presently attending Union Bay, but who live closer to Fanny Bay and placing them in that school, while the second solution discussed was to close Fanny Bay school and transport all the 29 pupils to Union Bay with an additional staff member to be placed there and the surplus teacher from Fanny Bay relocated in the district.

Whatever the outcome of the board's deliberations, it seems definite that parents of children attending Fanny Bay are opposed to its closure, while some of those residing in the Buckley Bay area, whose children attend Union Bay, are anxious to have them returned to Fanny Bay.

Police Capture
Mental Patient

NANAIMO (CP) — Tear gas was rushed from Victoria Tuesday after RCMP reported a mental patient had ordered them to leave a suburban home or get shot.

But the gas wasn't needed. After a wait of several hours, police moved in and captured the man before it arrived.

May Match Offer

Twin Cities Seek Another Chance
On Fair Buildings

PORT ALBERNI — Tom Barnett, NDP candidate in this area, and member of Parliament at the time the struggle to obtain the Fall Fair buildings began in the Twin Cities, expressed his surprise and indignation at the possibility the buildings could be lost to a private concern.

When the Crown Assets Disposal Corporation first indicated that they considered the offer of $1,000 made by Mayors Hammer and Bishop as too little for the three buildings involved, a letter was written to the Prime Minister, asking for his support in helping the two cities obtain the buildings permanently.

Copies of the letter to Mr. Pearson were also sent to two B.C. cabinet ministers, and to Mr. Barnett, at that time the Member of Parliament for Comox-Alberni.

"I wrote immediately," said Mr. Barnett, "urging that all possible support be given to the Twin Cities' request to obtain the buildings. It was regrettable that the Crown Assets hadn't accepted the original offer, but I urged that if it was not possible at this time to give full cabinet consideration to the matter, that at least a holding order be issued to prevent the sale until the cities' case could be considered."

In their letter to the Prime Minister Mayors Hammer and Bishop pointed out that the buildings in question were originally part of a 35-acre tract purchased by the city of Port Alberni for emergency housing after the war.

DELAY ATTEMPT

Meantime, wires are being rushed to the Prime Minister to try and hold up any further proceedings, until some decision can be made on whether or not the Twin Cities should attempt to match, by Oct. 15th, the offer of $10,000 said to have been made by some group or person, unnamed, by the Crown Assets Corporation.

Resubmit Flood Plan
Reeve Recommends

NORTH COWICHAN — A day night. He is a director on the Cowichan and Koksilah River Flood Control Committee.

Chairman of that committee is Gen. C. A. P. Murison former North Cowichan reeve.

SCHEME HAS CHANCE
Reeve Morton said the scheme which had been rejected previously might be eligible under the new terms of ARDA.

Dormant for several years the plan had been designed by government engineers.

The approximate cost given about three years ago was $240,000 and at that time it was suggested the scheme should be shared between the two senior governments, the two civic governments plus private industrial groups.

Reeve Morton quoted part of the act to show it would be applicable to this area.

Morton Urges Think Hard About Arena

NORTH COWICHAN — Introducing North Cowichan's centennial project, a $300,000 ice arena at Fuller's Lake, to the Southend Ratepayers' Council, Dennis Hogan said the multi-purpose arena could be constructed by March, 1967 if the taxpayers will give their approval at a referendum some time early next year.

He stressed while the Fuller's Lake Arena is the sole responsibility of the municipality, North Cowichan also would be prepared to assist in the building of another arena further south whenever groups there are ready for it.

Reeve Morton said there is a resentment growing about the arena because it will be located in the northern part of the municipality. Defeating a by-law for the arena would not be fair as people had a long time to make another suggestion. He asked the ratepayers "think carefully before you go out and say no to the arena proposal."

The Reeve emphasized, "a lot of thinking has been done and the Recreation Commission has come up with the proposal after almost two years of hard work."

DUNCAN — Members of the council have been invited to attend a meeting called by minister of municipal affairs, Dan Campbell to be held Friday.

Guest speaker will be Deputy Minister, J. D. Baird, who will discuss the feasibility of the formation of a regional district to include school districts 64 (Salt Spring), 65 (Cowichan), 66 (Lake Cowichan), and 67 (Ladysmith).

Acting mayor Jim Saunders said, "the formation of a regional district is a step in the right direction for co-operation between recreation commissions and mutual projects. The area proposed for the regional district may be too large, but these problems will be straightened out."

NORTH COWICHAN — The construction of the $4,000,000 Cowichan District Hospital is progressing "very well, indeed" and at the present rate of progress the roof will be on the structure by the beginning of 1967.

This was announced by Claude Green, Hospital Board Chairman at the Tuesday night meeting of the North Cowichan Southend Ratepayers' Association.

DUNCAN — Members of each 4-H club in the Cowichan-Cobble Hill area will participate in a fund raising venture this Friday and Saturday. The youngsters will sell coffee and 4-H decals at the 4th anniversary of the Duncan shopping plaza to be held during the two days.

The 4-H Cowichan-Cobble Hill advisory council gave its approval to the activity at its recent meeting which was also attended by junior members of 4-H clubs in the district.

"I hope this will be a permanent feature of future advisory council meetings," said 4-H supervisor on Southern Vancouver Island Ken Jameson.

Youngsters attending the meeting were: Sandy McAdams, Cowichan beef club; Maureen Kinney, Cowichan Jersey club; Laurel Donaldson, Cowichan Sheep club; Gladys Roberts, Cowichan Holstein club; Margaret Mayer, Cowichan Valley Basting Belles; Olwen Sanderson, Cobble Hill home arts club; Sherry McKay, Cobble Hill Sheep club.

NANAIMO — Social Credit has not officially opened its campaign in Nanaimo yet, but party candidate for Nanaimo-Cowichan-the Islands Lyle Wilkinson said Wednesday that these are perilous times for Canada.

"The perils are not merely those of nuclear warfare and destruction, terrible as they are, an equal peril is of the total breakdown of our way of life and all that it stands for," Wilkinson maintained. Canada has built a challenging example of unity between different cultures, pioneering enterprise and free institutions of government.

NORTH COWICHAN — In an almost four-hour marathon meeting at the North Cowichan Fire Hall the North Cowichan Southend Ratepayers' Association worked its way through problems ranging from water supply systems, the contentious issue of a proposed marina at Maple Bay and a $300,000 arena project proposal.

With representatives from Maple Bay, Westholme and Crofton Ratepayers' Associations in attendance the Southern Ratepayers' Association decided to approach officially the other sister group to establish closer liaison between all in the North Cowichan Municipality.

The representatives from the various groups agreed smaller issues could be handled more effectively on a local basis but with problems of a greater magnitude all associations should combine their efforts.

Secretary-Treasurer of the North Cowichan Southend Ratepayers' Association, Bob Waddy, who chaired the meeting, warned members in the south-end of the municipality unless the group gets better support it will "fall apart."

Sewer System Awaits Fall Voters

NORTH COWICHAN — Reeve Donald Morton told members of various ratepayers' association of North Cowichan Tuesday night a Chemainus sewer system bylaw will be put before voters in this year's December civic election.

Representatives from different groups had accepted the invitation from the North Cowichan Southend Ratepayers' Association. The Chemainus sewer project's cost will be about $400,000. The reeve said the decision was made last week after the pollution control board approved in principle of the proposed system.

Property Future Unknown

PORT ALBERNI — A delegation from the Beaver Creek recreation commission attended Tuesday night's school board meeting, following the recent announcement that the property known as Timberline Park had been offered to the school board by Mr. Carl Hastings, one of the trustees of the property, under a clause of the lease giving the school board first refusal of the site.

Orville Chase, president of the Beaver Creek recreation group explained that the commission had no objections whatsoever to the school board taking over the lease, but they wished some assurance that the work and money expended by the recreation commission on development of the area would not be lost to the district.

School board members assured the delegation that they could be certain their interest in the park would receive the board's close consideration. Meantime the future of the park remains unknown until the school board receives a reply to their letter requesting further details of the offer from the trustees of the ratepayers' group.

Party Forum

Indian Band To Hear Candidates

PORT ALBERNI — All-party meetings, with all candidates on the platform to state their policies, appear to be replacing the old-time single party political meetings in popularity.

The Indian bands at Port Hardy have given evidence of a quickened interest and enthusiasm for politics by scheduling an all-party meeting at Port Hardy on the afternoon of October 23rd. Following the meeting, candidates will fly to Alert Bay for another all-party meeting in the evening. The Chamber of Commerce at Alert Bay has arranged the evening meeting for the area which has about 600 voters.

Other all-party meetings have been scheduled for Port Alberni Nov. 1, Campbell River Nov. 2 and Parksville Nov. 3. Most recently announced all-party gathering will be a last-ditch meeting on the final day for such events, Nov. 5, in Courtenay.

Have Kayak Will Paddle

PORT ALBERNI — Anyone got a yen to paddle their own canoe?

The B.C. Kayak and Canoe Association is looking for individuals or groups in this area who might be interested in sponsoring a kayak and canoe club.

The association is offering a one-day clinic including technical training, club organization, management and the technique of kayak building.

Skaters Jam Civic Arena

PORT ALBERNI — Report of the Parks and Recreation Commission at Tuesday night's city council meeting showed the Civic Arena must be one of the busiest spots in town.

Since it opened Sept. 24, 7,612 skating tickets have been sold and 1,163 pairs of skates have been rented.

The ice goes into use as early as 6:00 a.m. several days each week, and concludes at 1 a.m. on most nights.

Mayor Hammer expressed council's appreciation of the new $750 scoreboard, donated as a community project with funds raised under the chairmanship of well-known business and sportsman, Murray Grant.

Retarded Class Try Skating

PORT ALBERNI — The School Board has decided that pupils of the school for retarded children here will be able to take advantage of skating classes offered by the recreation commission in the civic arena each Friday afternoon.

A letter from the principal of Glenwood School, on whose grounds the Beaufort Building for retarded pupils is located, pointed out that any activity that will increase co-ordination and stimulate muscle development is to be encouraged. Thirteen of the older children in the group will skate under the guidance of Mrs. Hope Porter, senior teacher at the school, and a volunteer assistant. Transportation has also been arranged for the group from the school to the arena and return.

Cabinet Ponders Proposal

Rhodesia Is Ready To Talk, Talk, Talk

SALISBURY (Reuters)—The Rhodesian cabinet reached no decision in a meeting Wednesday on the issue of a unilateral declaration of independence for Rhodesia. Prime Minister Smith said Wednesday night.

Speaking in a television interview, he also said his government still is considering a proposal Tuesday night by British Prime Minister Wilson for a Commonwealth mission on the critical issue of independence for the white-ruled African colony.

Smith said he would be glad to welcome Australian Premier Sir Robert Menzies, who has been mentioned as a member of such a mission, to discussions in Salisbury.

IMPORTANT DECISION

The Rhodesian cabinet would "talk and talk and talk" before coming to "the most important decision of their lifetimes," Smith said.

But he reiterated he could think of no better time than the present for Rhodesia to take its independence.

MAKES THREAT

Smith's minority white government of this British colony has threatened to declare unilateral independence now Britain has refused to grant it on Rhodesia's terms.

Britain has insisted any independent Rhodesian government must give more representation to the country's majority 4,000,000 Negroes.

MINDS UNCHANGED

Smith said he does not think the Rhodesian people have changed their support for a unilateral declaration of independence.

He said if he had any doubts, he would not hesitate to ask for another mandate from the electorate before going ahead.

Tuesday night in a radio-TV speech Wilson proposed the Commonwealth a 14th initiative to break the independence deadlock.

Britain has said that a unilateral independence declaration

Wise Proposal

Pearson Hails Mission

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson Wednesday acclaimed as "a wise and imaginative proposal" a suggestion of Prime Minister Wilson of Britain that a mission of Commonwealth leaders attempt to solve the problem of independence for Rhodesia.

Mr. Pearson said: "I have wired back that I thought this was a wise and imaginative proposal and we would give it our full support and complete approval. We will do anything we can to help in this matter."

POSTPONEMENT

"I hope that a mission of this kind, if it could be sent and received by the Rhodesian government, might through consultation postpone—if not prevent—a step which I think would be disastrous for Rhodesia."

Asked whether he would be a member of the mission, Mr. Pearson said:

"I have no reason to believe I would be asked to take part in it, but if I were asked to take part and it was considered important that I should be a member of the mission, well of course I would go."

NOT EXPECTED

"But I don't expect that will happen. I haven't heard yet about the composition of the mission."

Sources in London said Mr. Wilson suggested to Commonwealth leaders four prime ministers be chosen—those from Australia, Ceylon, Nigeria and Zambia.

Doctor Bags Elusive Bobo

A doctor with a laundry bag and sheet ended a freedom binge by Bobo, the spider monkey, early today. Bobo was seen entering a room in Royal Jubilee after midnight, and the door was slammed shut behind him.

An intern, Dr. H. J. Helmlich, followed and muffled any resistance with the cloth.

Rush-Hour Pile-Up Snarls Montreal Traffic

Eight cars were damaged and another crushed when large van careened down steep hill into main Mont-

Diefenbaker:

'Liberals Feared Deal Disclosure'

By RON COLLISTER

LETHBRIDGE, Alta.—Opposition leader John Diefenbaker charged Wednesday that the Liberals called an election because they were afraid of disclosures now being made about a Liberal-Creditiste power deal back in April, 1963.

The disclosures, Mr. Diefenbaker said, are new evidence of the "famine in integrity" around the government.

In the controversial deal, six Creditistes reportedly offered to guarantee support for the Liberals, who had come out of the election without a majority.

This forced the hand of John Diefenbaker, then prime minister, who was considering holding on as a minority leader and daring the other parties to defeat him.

The details of the deal are contained in a book authored by former Social Credit whip Guy Marcoux.

The book is sure to be valuable new ammunition for Mr. Diefenbaker as he tries to turf

Tory Heartland Cheers Pearson

By FRASER KELLY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

ORILLIA—Prime Minister Pearson stormed this bastion of Ontario Toryland with the largest, most enthusiastic political rally of his campaign Wednesday night.

Liberal organizers were surprised and exuberant as about 2,500 supporters jammed the city's community centre in what had been considered a solid Conservative preserve.

According to the building superintendent only Don Messer has outdrawn Mr. Pearson in the arena and they only beat him by about 300.

Just as he had done a few hours before in Guelph, Mr. Pearson used the platform in Union Jack country to develop and refine the national unity theme he is carrying across the nation.

He told both audiences of being on stage in Quebec City the night before and singing O Canada in English while

Ex-Socred Fears for Life

QUEBEC (CP)—Dr. Guy Marcoux, who says he had to get mixed up with the underworld to dig up information for a booklet he published Wednesday, fears for his life and has asked for police protection.

"I am not able to ensure my security nor that of my family," the former Social Credit member of Parliament said in a written plea for protection sent to Claude Wagner, Quebec justice minister.

At a press conference, Dr. Marcoux said he had been under pressure not to publish

'Nothing to Do with Bribe' Pickersgill Tells Pearson

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson issued here Wednesday night the following statement in connection with a pamphlet by Dr. Guy Marcoux:

"I have spoken to Mr. (Transport Minister) Pickersgill and he has assured me that he had nothing to do—directly or indirectly—with any offer of a bribe to any member of Parliament or to anyone else on the matters referred to in the reports on Dr. Marcoux's book."

ATOMIC SAY DEMANDED BY GERMANY

LONDON (UPI)—West Germany has told the Allies bluntly it wants a voice in decisions on when and what types of nuclear weapons should be used and the targets against which they should be directed.

The official English language overseas organ of the ruling Christian Democratic Party reaching here said Bonn "insists" on nuclear co-determination within the alliance.

It spelled out, moreover, the details of terms for German participation in nuclear sharing.

"Bonn wants to be included in the planning of targets, deciding when atomic weapons will be used as well as the strength and type of atomic weapons at the disposal of the alliance," the CDU organ stated.

The German demands for nuclear sharing came during a revived Anglo-American debate about the controversial issue with Britain backing away from its earlier projected inter-allied nuclear force.

NUCLEAR CONSULTATION

He made it clear Britain does not want to endanger prospects for possible agreements with Russia by promoting either the American-proposed mixed manned nuclear surface fleet or the earlier British plan for an Atlantic nuclear force. Britain now favors instead a nuclear consultative committee within NATO with German participation.

PSYCHOLOGICAL

Meanwhile, West Germany, in setting out its terms for nuclear co-determination in the clearest language yet, said the projected nuclear atom committee has mainly "tactical, psychological meaning."

Bonn does not want a finger on the nuclear trigger, the CDU said, but it wants certainty "that the exchange of blows will not be initially confined solely to German soil, that the attacking enemy will not be fought only on the front lines and that the operative plans of defence are not geared only to a long phase of conventional resistance."

Fishing Rights

Indians Ambush Game Protectors

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP)—More than 40 Indians and a dozen state fish and game protectors tangled Wednesday in a ruck-thrashing, fist-swinging, club-wielding melee on the banks of the Nisqually River east of here.

The affray, second of its kind in less than a week, stemmed from a state court order prohibiting the Indians from net-fishing off their reservation.

The Indians maintain an ancient treaty with the United States permits them to fish in their usual fishing grounds, even though they are off their reservation.

They stoned the fish and game protectors and succeeded in knocking one of them out of his boat into the river. More than half a dozen other fish and game protectors suffered minor cuts and bruises.

Six Indians were arrested during the melee, brought to jail here, booked, and released on $100 bond each.

Later, two Indian fishermen and a boy were arrested and taken to jail.

Clarence Pratt, a spokesman for the state game department, said the first skirmish was touched off when two Indians put a net into the river as a protest against the court injunction.

'Canadians Are Fed Up'

YORKTON, Sask. (CP)—New federal election campaign that they never had it so good. "This is the soft-sell approach—affluence for everybody—but it depends who you are and where you sit in our society."

Mr. Douglas said it is not so good if "you're sitting with the 20 per cent in poverty in Canada or with the other 30 per cent suffering privation."

They decide whether prices go up or down, or whether the savings of Canadians will be used to develop Canadian industries or lie idle for another 50 years, and we, the people, have nothing to say."
